

Introduction

Welcome to Star Wars Battlefront

Welcome to Star Wars Battlefront. As you are reading this, I am guessing you have just sat down, dimmed the lights, and are getting ready to play.

It is my hope that when playing Star Wars Battlefront, you will have an amazing Star Wars experience that will transport you to a galaxy far, far away.

I also hope you will have the same feelings of awe and wonder that I had when experiencing Star Wars for the first time all those years ago.

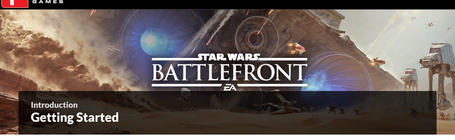

A feeling I got the opportunity to feel once more when visiting Lucasfilm and learning that I would become a part in making this game for you.

It is time to grab your blasters, hop into your X-wings, and make your way to Battlefront. May the Force be with you, always!

— Niklas Fegraeus, Design Director

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Introduction

Getting Started

What kind of gamer are you? Are you new to shooters? Maybe you're a Star Wars fan, and you want to get into Battlefront to get the full Star Wars experience. Either way, there's nothing to worry about because this official strategy guide will help you through both the basics and the advanced tactics of Star Wars Battlefront. Get a feel for the game by playing through the training missions, and you will have a grasp on the mechanics in no time.

This guide teaches you everything from how to navigate the menus to how to use your weapons and special characters in ways that will give you the advantage over other players. Live the full experience that is Star Wars Battlefront, and look through these tactics and strategies to gain the upper hand and the opportunity to learn each piece of this game efficiently and effectively. Whether you're a brand-new player to first-person or third-person shooters or practically an expert, this guide will show you some things you might never have known. Read carefully, don't be afraid to practice some of these tactics in trial runs, and most of all, remember to have fun. May the Force be with you!

INTERFACE

GAME SCREEN—ON FOOT

GAME INFORMATION

The top area of the screen in reserved for relevant game information, such as scores, time, or remaining lives, depending on your current game mode.

RETICLE

The reticle in the center of the screen indicates where you are aiming. Its appearance changes depending on the type of weapon you have equipped.

HEAT GAUGE

As you fire your blaster, a Heat Gauge appears under the reticle. As you continue firing, the gauge grows and turns red in color. Ceasing fire for a short period of time automatically reduces the heat. Fire for too long, and your blaster overheats, preventing you from firing until it cools back down. If your weapon overheats, an active yellow sequence is triggered. Press the button indicated on the screen when the falling dot reaches the yellow area of the gauge to cool down your weapon. Should you succeed, this sequence increases in difficulty for each consecutive overheat. However if you fail, your blaster will fill with extreme heat and render the weapon completely useless for an even longer period of time.

HAND

This shows your current hand of Star Cards. The background of a Star Card empties when used and gradually fills as the cool-down time of the Star Card passes. Some cards require charges before you can use them; you can find Charge pick-ups in various levels.

HEALTH

As you take damage from enemy attacks, your health decreases. It regenerates if you avoid taking damage for a short time.

SCANNER

The scanner shows the locations of both enemies and allies. Blue objects are allies, a yellow dot indicates your partner, and red objects are enemy forces. Sections of the scanner flash red to indicate an adversary in that direction. As the foe gets closer to your location, these red flashes move toward the center of the scanner. Objectives appear on the scanner as white dots when neutral or as blue or red, depending on which team controls it.

GAME SCREEN—IN VEHICLES

ABILITIES

These icons represent your vehicle's unique offensive and defensive abilities. Press the left button to activate the left ability, press the right button to activate the right ability, and press the top button to activate the middle ability. Each ability requires a brief cool-down time before you can use it again.

THROTTLE (AIR VEHICLES ONLY)

This indicates your current speed. Move the throttle stick or keys up or down to increase or decrease your speed.

Note that increasing the throttle channels power from the weapon systems to the engines, reducing the damage your weapons can inflict. Inversely, decreasing the throttle channels power from the engines to the weapon systems and increases the damage of your weapons.

HEALTH

Your health decreases as you take damage from enemy attacks. To refill your health during Fighter Squadron and Mission game modes, find and collect a Vehicle Repair pick-up.

SCANNER

The scanner shows the locations of both enemies and allies. A yellow object is your partner, blue objects are allies, and red objects are enemy forces. Sections of the scanner flash red to indicate enemy infantry, while enemy heroes and vehicles are displayed as red dots. Your allies appear as blue circles, regardless of distance.

Note that in Fighter Squadron, enemy ships appear only as red directional flashes on the scanner.

COLLECTIBLES (MISSIONS ONLY)

In single-player game modes, these icons indicate the total number of collectibles hidden in a mission and how many you have collected.

EVASIVE COOL-DOWN (AIR VEHICLES ONLY)

You can perform Evasive Maneuvers in certain air vehicles, such as X-wings or TIE fighters, by pressing the left directional or function button, the up directional or function button, or the right directional or function button. This icon represents the cool-down time until you can perform another Evasive Maneuver.

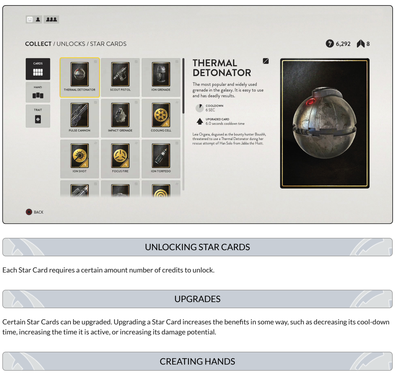

STAR CARDS

Star Cards assembled into a hand represent different weapons and equipment you can take into battle. A hand consists of two Star Cards and one Charged Star Card.

To view your Star Card collection or purchase new Star Cards, enter the COLLECT menu, select UNLOCKS, and then select STAR CARDS. Highlight a card to view its effects, unlock cost, and upgrade cost (if available).

You can use the left and right Star Cards repeatedly during a battle, as they are limited only by their cool-down time.

The center Star Card slot is reserved for powerful cards that require you to find a Charge token on the battlefield before you can use them.

UNLOCKING STAR CARDS

Each Star Card requires a certain amount number of credits to unlock.

UPGRADES

Certain Star Cards can be upgraded. Upgrading a Star Card increases the benefits in some way, such as decreasing its cool-down time, increasing the time it is active, or increasing its damage potential.

CREATING HANDS

Select HAND from the Star Cards menu, and then select a slot to assign any unlocked Star Cards to your hand. You can create two sets of cards to bring into battle. If you have a partner, you also have the option of selecting his or her chosen hand and potentially trying out Star Cards you have yet to unlock.

FORMING A PARTY

Select the three-person icon in the upper-left corner of the menu screen to bring up a list of your friends currently online, and then select their names to invite them to your party. A party can contain up to eight players.

PARTNERS

You can set one of your party members as your partner by selecting the single-person icon in the upper-left corner of the screen, located immediately to the right of your player icon.

If a player dies, his or her character can spawn near their partner if the partner is alive and not in an immediate firefight. Partners also share their first hands with one another, potentially allowing access to Star Cards you have yet to unlock.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Introduction

Companion

Whether you're in a galaxy far, far away or somewhere closer to home, get ready for battle with the official Star Wars Battlefront Companion.

Featuring the tactical card-based game, the Companion lets you earn in-game credits that unlock Star Cards, weapons, and more in Star Wars Battlefront.

In addition to Base Command, the Companion also lets Rebels and Imperials alike check game stats and progression, customize load-outs and appearance, connect with friends, and get notified when they're playing Star Wars Battlefront—as well as gather intel on your friends' stats and progression so you can see how you match up!

Get the Companion app in the iOS App Store and Google Play for Android, or use the Companion on the web at www.starwarsbattlefront.com.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

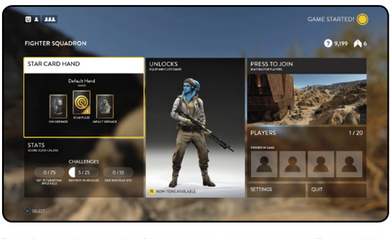

Introduction

Multiplayer Tactics

Tactics are some of the most important things you can practice in Star Wars Battlefront. Your shots must be accurate and they should land if you are going to be successful in a gunfight, however being able to shoot your enemy isn't enough to keep you alive for an extended amount of time. Good tactics combine both your skill with a blaster and your wit on the battlefield to score the most points for your team, as you defend the Empire or fight for the Rebellion.

PACK FOR THE OCCASION

The most frustrating thing that happens in any first-person shooter game, let alone what happens in specific modes here in Star Wars Battlefront, is being dropped into a match without the right tools for the job. Taking a "shotgun" to a Blaster Rifle fight may lead to your demise more than you might think. However, a "shotgun" like the CA-87 in a game mode like Blast, and on a map like the Rebel Base on Hoth could put you on the top of the leaderboards because of how effective this weapon is in this situation.

Generally, game modes such as Supremacy, Walker Assault, and Droid Run are going to be the modes that call for the utmost range for weaponry. Blast, Cargo, and Drop Zone are game modes that play at a more mid-range to close range engagement, but Hero Hunt and Heroes Vs. Villains are special circumstances due to the differences in playstyle of the Star Wars heroes.

PICK YOUR BATTLES

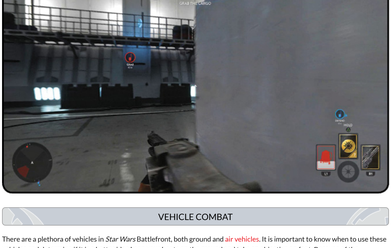

Picking your battles carefully can lead you to the most success. See an enemy equipped with a mid to long-ranged blaster in the distance? Try to avoid them and take an alternate route in your immediate area to close the gap with this foe to reduce their advantage.

Distance is a very important factor in the gameplay of Star Wars Battlefront, especially in some of the larger game modes like Supremacy and Walker Assault. Equipping both a blaster for close to mid-ranged firefights and a Cycler Rifle or Pulse Cannon will keep you ready for most situations. However, it is still important to stay keen about the types of enemies you are fighting against.

COVER

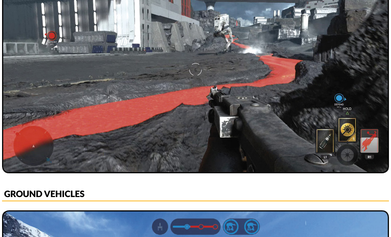

Use everything in your vicinity as cover and protect yourself with a Squad Shield or Personal Shield to protect yourself when there just isn't any cover. Because of the regeneration aspect in the game, cover is sometimes the only way you can regain health without being killed first. The Star Wars universe is extreme in the sense of terrain and ground cover. If there isn't a piece of ship wreckage nearby, a cargo container or structure, there is more than likely a cliff, some bushes, a couple of trees, or at least some giant rocks to hide behind either for stealth or for protection while you regenerate health.

As it was stated before, there are several uses for both natural cover and manufactured. For the most part, it does not matter which mode you are playing because there is always a need for cover. The best way to use cover is to always stay behind something no matter the situation. If there is a wall you can see over, try crouching and popping up to shoot your enemies. Keep the lower half of your body covered by the object to make yourself a much more difficult target to hit. When you are up against an object that covers your entire body while standing, don't completely jump out of cover to engage an enemy. The best way to go about engaging the enemy is to quickly peek out and attempt to aquire your target. If no one is there, and the coast is clear, move forward and find another piece of cover, or slip back behind the object and wait for your opportunity to strike another target.

VEHICLE COMBAT

There are a plethora of vehicles in Star Wars Battlefront, both ground and air vehicles. It is important to know when to use these vehicles and determine if it is a better idea keep your boots on the ground and take an objective on foot. Because of the overwhelming firepower that comes from the Empire, Imperial forces have a much greater number in vehicles, but that does not ultimately make them more powerful. Between the AT-AT, AT-ST, Speederbike, and each of the starfighters there is always a counter to these vehicles, or some way to avoid them.

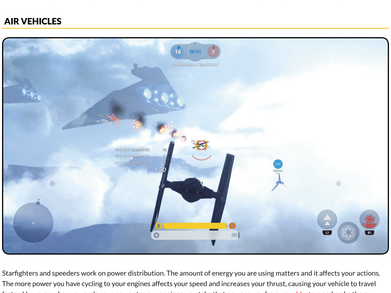

GROUND VEHICLES

In modes like Walker Assault and Supremacy, AT-ST walkers can be extremely dangerous when they are being used to hold down specific locations. This is where Star Cards like Ion Grenade, Ion Torpedo, and Ion Shot come into play. A well placed Ion Grenade can destroy an AT-ST if it has taken a bit of damage. The problem with this is you must sacrifice a Star Card slot in order to carry one of these items with you. This is the time where you and your partner must maintain coordination to remain as a well balanced duo. It is a good idea to designate one partner to focus on vehicle watch, while the other is equipped for full trooper battle. Obviously there will always be more troopers on the battlefield than vehicles, but having the tools to deal with a walker is incredibly more safe than not having the tools when you really need them.

As the Empire, using walkers and Speederbikes to control the battlefield is extremely advantageous. Block choke points with heavy blaster fire for a short amount of time. This slows down any enemies attempting to escape an area or infiltrate one of your objectives. Keep your enemy busy and move on. The longer you sit in one location, the longer the Rebel forces have to set up an anti-vehicle ambush or counter-attack. Remember to attack or block, then move on to the next location. It is a good idea to move from one location, to the next, and then back again. Be sure to alternate and don't stay in one position for too long.

AIR VEHICLES

Starfighters and speeders work on power distribution. The amount of energy you are using matters and it affects your actions. The more power you have cycling to your engines affects your speed and increases your thrust, causing your vehicle to travel faster. However, when you cycle your power to your engines, you take that power away from your blasters and make them weaker. Slowing down and conserving thruster power affects the strength of your blasters, so they are much stronger when you lower your speed. When dog fighting in big game modes, but especially in Fighter Squadron, there are several reasons to pay attention to your thruster gauge. Speed up to chase down enemies, but slow down to splash them with damage quickly.

Take your skills into battle and maneuver through the terrain to take advantage of your air superiority. Blaster fire from air vehicles will not take out enemy forces on the ground at an extreme rate, but they will do damage to both vehicles and infantry. More importantly, being able to attack from the sky and and fly away at extreme speeds leaves you with the advantage to attack without real fear of retaliation. Assist your teammates on the ground while the air space is yours. Use the blaster fire from air vehicles to support your troops. Keep an eye on your radar to stay keen to your surroundings, but try not to fly around aimlessly. Your team needs you to take advantage of your powerful weaponry at all times.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Introduction

Battle Beyond

Something very unique to Star Wars Battlefront is the action happening in both the background and the foreground that composes the Star Wars environment. There are many diverse aspects to Battle Beyond, but they all complete the Star Wars experience.

What is Battle Beyond? Battle Beyond is the reason you see the flying Rebel Cruiser or crashing Imperial Star Destroyer in the backgrounds of Outpost Beta on Hoth or in the skies of Tatooine around the Jundland Wastes. It is also why you see iconic characters from all over the Star Wars universe on the battlefield with you. While you can interact with most of the objects and pieces that are considered part of the Battle Beyond system, some are purely for atmosphere. This section discusses each one to give you a little insight on how they affect your gameplay experience.

ENVIRONMENTAL OBJECTS/CHARACTERS

OBJECT/CHARACTER	LOCATION	DETAIL 1	DETAIL 2
Y-wings	All Walker Assault maps	Fire on AT-ATs when called in	Players can destroy them
Power generator	Walker Assault only	Blows up during cutscene at EoR for Empire win	—
GR-75 Medium Transport	Walker Assault only	Blows up during cutscene at EoR for Empire win	—
Jawas	Only on Tatooine	Run from players when nearby or shot at	—
Ewoks	Only on Endor	Run from players when nearby or shot at	—
MC80 Liberty Type Star Cruiser	Jundland Wastes, Survival on Tatooine and Sullust, and the Overpower Training Mission	Triggered by Rebel map progression	Interacts with Imperial Star Destroyer that can appear
CR90 Corellian Corvette	Hoth and Tatooine	Accompanies Star Cruiser	—
II-class Star Destroyer	Outpost Beta, Jundland Wastes, SoroSuub Centroplex, Sulphur Fields, Survival on Hoth and Tatooine, and Overpower Training	Triggered by Imperial map progression	Interacts with Rebel ships that can appear
Executor-class Super Star Destroyer	Outpost Beta, Jundland Wastes, SoroSuub Centroplex, Sulphur Fields, Survival on Hoth and Tatooine, and Overpower Training	Triggered by Imperial map progression	Background only
Nebulon-B Escort Frigate	—	Triggered by Rebel map progression	Imperial Laser Turrets fire at it
Ion cannon	Outpost Beta	Triggered by Rebel map progression; fires at Star Destroyers	Destroyed by Star Destroyer during Empire progression
Dogfighting	Jawa Refuge and Sulphur Fields	Amount of fighters varies per map and mode	Number can further be affected by which side is winning
AT-AT	Jawa Refuge and Survival on Hoth	Walk a set path	—
Smoke plumes	Survival on Hoth	Triggered on quick kills in succession	Can happen on either Rebel or Imperial side, depending on who is getting killed
Banthas	On Tatooine only	Walk a set path	—

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Heroes:
Playable Characters

DARTH VADER

Darth Vader, Dark Lord of the Sith, is notorious around the galaxy as the right hand of the Emperor and one of the most powerful beings in existence. Born as a slave and later trained to be a Jedi Knight, Darth Vader is extremely skilled with a lightsaber and a master of the Dark Side. He serves the Empire, leading an elite Imperial task force in the hunt for Rebels across the galaxy. Lord Vader works under the notion that it is better to be feared than loved, constantly reminding his inferiors of this belief.

Darth Vader is an extremely powerful melee character, hindered only by his movement speed. Vader cannot run, but he can make large jumps using his Force abilities to compensate for his poor agility. With his ability to deflect incoming blaster bolts and his high amount of hit points, anyone attempting to attack him head-on will more than likely be struck down. Like all playable heroes and villains, Darth Vader has three unique abilities that all have specific uses. When these abilities are used properly, Vader can become nearly unstoppable.

ABILITY	DESCRIPTION	SITUATION
Force Leap (A)	Using his Force power, Darth Vader can render himself weightless, temporarily floating them up and choking the life out of them.	Enemies not affected by the choke can interrupt this ability, so it is best used in a group. Also, this ability is extremely hard to target. If you're successful, this ability is a guaranteed kill against Rebel troopers.
Saber Throw (Y)	Darth Vader throws his lightsaber forward and hits everything within the throw range. The lightsaber then magically returned into Vader's Force ability.	Throwing his lightsaber is not Darth Vader's most powerful ability, but it is his only ability with a long reach. Use it whenever your target is at mid-range.
Heavy Strike (X)	Darth Vader spins in a full 360-degree turn, using his full strength to take out anyone within reach.	This ability is meant for that moment when Vader is surrounded by Rebel troopers and must get rid of them efficiently. Using this ability kills all foes in Vader's immediate vicinity.

LUKE SKYWALKER

Luke Skywalker, son of the legendary Jedi Knight Anakin Skywalker, is one of the most powerful Jedi to exist in the time of the Galactic Empire. Having a large part in the Rebellion against the Empire, Skywalker is full of passion and skilled with a lightsaber. Control this hero on the battlefield throughout Star Wars Battlefront to take down entire groups of stormtroopers and help the Rebellion.

Luke Skywalker has many strengths and just a few weaknesses that you should know about before controlling him on the battlefield. Not only is he primarily a melee character whose strength lies in face-to-face combat, but he can create clones in between himself and his foes if necessary by using his Force Push. With his 20 percent faster running speed, he can close the gap on a single enemy, thus controlling the battle however he chooses. With that said, Luke has three abilities, all with very different tactical advantages. Keep these effects in mind when controlling Luke Skywalker—using them properly makes you as effective as possible.

ABILITY	DESCRIPTION	SITUATION
Force Push (A)	Using his Force power, Luke can send a wave of energy toward his target, dealing heavy damage and pushing the foe back some distance.	Use this ability when you must quickly kill an enemy at a short distance or when you become overwhelmed.
Saber Rush (Y)	Luke lunges forward using Force energy and takes a wide slash at whomever is at the end of his lunge.	Use Saber Rush when you need to quickly close a distance gap or when there are keeping close at range. This ability can inflict a great deal of damage if you judge the distance correctly.
Heavy Strike (X)	Luke spins in a full 360-degree turn, using his full strength to take out anyone within reach.	This ability is meant for that moment when Luke is surrounded by Rebel troopers and must get rid of them efficiently. Using this ability kills all enemies in Luke's immediate vicinity.

BOBA FETT

Boba Fett, the bounty hunter in Mandalorian Armor, is a battle-hardened warrior who only works when the money is right. Fett is one of the most respected bounty hunters in the galaxy and was trained as a young child after leaving his home of Kamino. Because of this, Boba Fett does not work for cheap, although some special circumstances may be possible for targets like the smuggler Han Solo.

Fett is primarily a ranged character and should always be treated as such. Because of his jetpack, the bounty hunter can traverse almost any terrain and normally escape from a bad situation whenever appropriate. Avoid getting close to any enemy attackers. Even though Boba Fett is a tough, experienced warrior who can brush off a few hits, he is still vulnerable to short-range combat and should avoid those situations at all costs.

ABILITY	DESCRIPTION	SITUATION
Wrist Rocket (A)	Boba Fett has a highly explosive rocket attached to his wrist. It's an explosive range and can be fired from any location.	The Wrist Rocket is great for taking out multiple opponents at once or firing at enemy heroes who can reflect blaster bolts(like Luke Skywalker).
Flame Thrower (Y)	Fett's wrist-fired flamethrower launches a stream of short-range flames, burning multiple enemies within range.	Flame Thrower is designed to use when Boba Fett is stuck in a situation that he may not want to be in. You can also use it tactically as a touch-and-go ability. Flame enemies, then jump, land from flying through the air, catch a few foes on fire, and take off.
Jetpack (A)	The jetpack attached to Boba Fett's back allows him to jump and reach most heights or fly over the battlefield may fly prey.	The jetpack is one of the most important abilities that Boba Fett has. Use it to get anywhere quickly and to escape death by going where most characters cannot.

HAN SOLO

This human smuggler from Corellia has a bad attitude and loves getting paid, so much so that he has gained the skills and has the instinct to get him out of any situation. Han Solo is known for aiding the Rebellion and assisting Luke Skywalker and Leia Organa in their efforts to crumble the Empire.

Han Solo is another primarily ranged character who has a problem with enemies directly in his face (albeit no fear of them). Han's blaster is one of the most powerful blasters in the game and should be treated as such, but it is a single-shot weapon that requires precise aiming. The smuggler has a few abilities that make his blaster even more powerful. If they are combined in a specific order, they can take down even the most powerful characters in a matter of seconds.

ABILITY	DESCRIPTION	SITUATION
Rapid Fire (A)	Han Solo can rapidly fire his blaster pistol without it overheating.	The ability to fire the already powerful blaster pistol as quickly as you can pull the trigger gives you a great advantage when Han must attack a large number of enemy troopers.
Lucky Shot (Y)	This incredibly powerful blaster shot deals an area-of-effect explosive damage, killing nearby, second-tooth opponents and vehicles.	Lucky Shot is essentially your tool in every situation. Using this ability each time its cool-down resets off will be significant.
Shoulder Charge (B)	Solo brutally charges shoulder first straight forward, taking down everything in his path.	Use this ability to get Han out of tight situations, or if you see a group of stormtroopers that is just too close together. The Shoulder Charge runs over everyone in Han's path for a short distance.

LEIA ORGANA

Leia Organa, Luke Skywalker's twin, was adopted by Senator Bail Organa directly after birth in order to split the twins and hide them from their father, Darth Vader. Because of her adoptive parents, she was raised Princess Leia and later became one of the heads of the Rebellion. Leading her Rebel troops into battle, she has become highly respected amongst her new people after her home planet was destroyed by the Death Star.

Princess Leia is fully a support character and uses her leadership on the battlefield to heavily assist her fellow troopers. She is slightly more powerful than the average trooper and can use an with a blaster rifle. Use her abilities to support your team and lead them to victory.

If Leia Organa is on the battlefield, there is a chance that two friendly players can spawn in as the Rebel Honor Guard. Armed with the A280, these special characters are harder to kill because they can heal themselves and their teammates. Because of this, they are extremely helpful when attacking a heavily defended position. Even if you don't spawn in as an Honor Guard, you can control her as these characters will also earn more points in your score and sticking together will keep them alive longer. In addition to these bonuses, each Alderaan Honor Guard character is equipped with a fixed set or Star Cards, both the Smart Rocket and Homing Shot are in your arsenal granting you the ability to deal with both vehicles and infantry creating a somewhat unstoppable force.

ABILITY	DESCRIPTION	SITUATION
Supply Drop (A)	Leia drops a Power-up Star Card for the friendly troopers.	The Power-up Star Cards are some of the most powerful abilities in Star Wars Battlefront, and they are available to all troopers. Use this ability whenever friendly troopers are nearby because they can protect Leia and attack their target with greater ease.
Enhanced Shield Squad (Y)	Leia deploys a Squad Shield that is stronger and lasts longer than protection than an average Squad Shield.	Drop this Enhanced Squad Shield when Leia and her squad are stuck in a highly defensive position and need extra protection. Another use for this ability is to dictate your own battlefield, creating a zone that you determine.
Trooper (B)	Leia fires highly powerful shots from her blaster pistol that can shot and can also fire straight through shields.	Use this ability when there is a large group of troopers in front of Leia or if you must shoot through Leia's shield to attack anyone on the outside of it.

EMPEROR PALPATINE

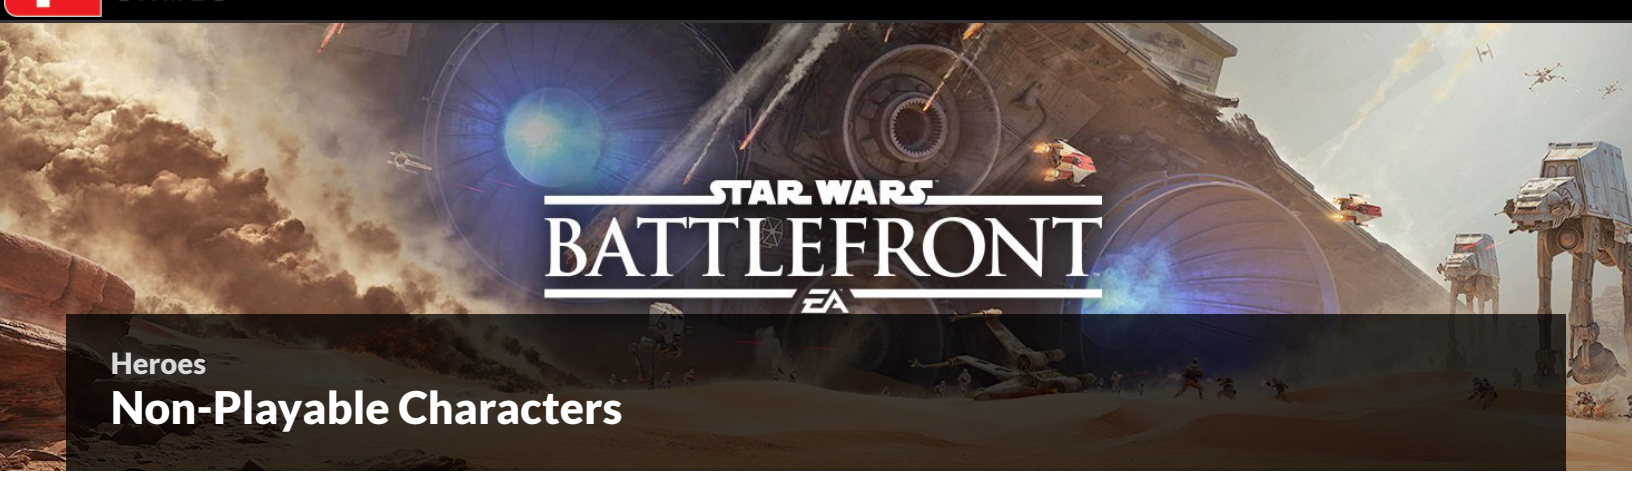

Emperor Palpatine, also known as Darth Sidious, is the Dark Lord who became the first emperor of the Galactic Empire and took Darth Vader as his apprentice. An extremely powerful Force user, Emperor Palpatine is known by most in the galaxy and highly feared.

The Emperor is primarily a support character who specializes in helping his fellow villains. Because of his mobility and charging abilities, Palpatine can get to his teammates rather quickly. He should normally travel with troopers as bodyguards.

If Emperor Palpatine summons himself to the battlefront, he only has three troops he can summon. When he is in play, it is possible that two friendly players will spawn in as shock troopers. The Emperor's shock troopers are equipped with the E11, and two Star Cards, the Smart Rocket and Homing Shot granting you the ability to deal with anything the Rebel scum can throw at you. These special characters are more difficult to kill than normal troopers as they have an added bonus to their health pool and they can deal more damage. More importantly, if you and your teammates are spawned in as one of these characters, stay close to Emperor Palpatine and protect him as these characters will also earn more points for your score and sticking together will keep them alive longer.

ABILITY	DESCRIPTION	SITUATION
Imperial Resources (A)	Palpatine drops a power-up for his team to pick up.	The Power-up Star Cards are some of the most powerful abilities in Star Wars Battlefront, and they are available to all troopers. Use this ability whenever friendly troopers are nearby because they can protect Palpatine and attack their target with greater ease.
Chain Lightning (Y)	This sends a charge of Force Lighting that attaches to one target and is spread through any other nearby targets with one blast.	Use this ability primarily for groups of troopers standing close to each other. It weakens all of them, making them easier targets for your team.
Force Push (B)	Emperor Palpatine launches forward extremely rapidly.	To make up for Palpatine's slow movement speed, he can use Force Dash to travel extremely quickly. Because this ability has a short cool-down time, whenever you need to be somewhere, as the cool-down returns relatively quickly so you can use it again.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and screen audiovisuals visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Heroes

Non-Playable Characters

ACKBAR

R2-D2

C-3PO

PATROL LEADER (SCOUT TROOPER)

PLAYABLE APPEARANCES
	Human male (Rebel)
	Human female (Rebel)
	Stormtrooper (Empire)
	Scout Trooper (Empire)
	Shadowtrooper (Empire)
	Sullustian (Rebel)
	Twi'Lek (Rebel)
	Rodian (Rebel)
	Duros (Rebel)
	Zabrak (Rebel)
	Ishi Tib (Rebel)
	Quarren (Rebel)

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Missions

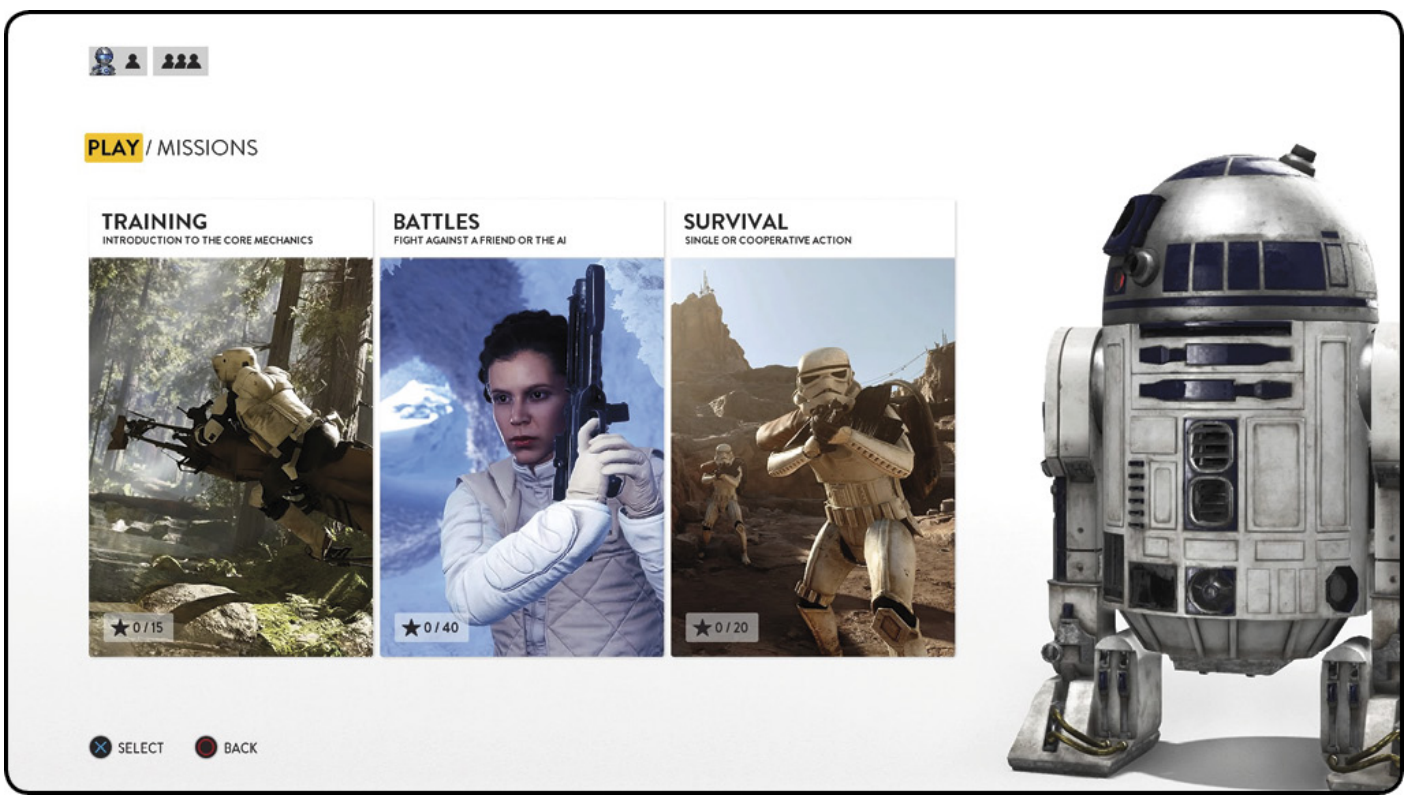

Introduction

You can play Star Wars Battlefront in solo or two-player modes by selecting Missions from the Play menu. Three modes offer a variety of gameplay.

Training: Introduces players to various facets of the game in solo or cooperative play.

Battle: Two-player versus mode that allows players to fight as the Rebels or Imperials in the role of infantry or hero.

Survival: Pits one or two Rebel soldiers against 15 increasingly challenging waves of Imperial forces.

NEW RECRUIT

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Simply complete one of the Training, Battle, or Survival missions to earn this award.

TOGETHER WE CAN RULE THE GALAXY

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Complete any mission with a friend. Grab a partner, either online or in local splitscreen, and complete any mission.

YOUR JOURNEY HAS ONLY STARTED

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Complete all 17 missions, including five Training, four Battle, four Hero Battle, and four Survival.

SCRAP COLLECTOR

TROPHY: SILVER

GAMER SCORE: 40

A star is available on each Battle, Hero Battle, and Survival map, requiring you to find all five collectibles and complete the mission. To attain this Achievement/Trophy, earn one of these stars. Note that you must play Battle missions against AI to complete this requirement.

MASTER

TROPHY: GOLD

GAMER SCORE: 55

Earn all mission stars on Master difficulty. Achieve all 75 stars in missions to get this one.

PRECISION SHOT

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Get 10 headshots with the Tusken Cycler rifle. The Hunter Star Card Hand in Battle on Hoth and Marksman in Survival on Sullust both contain the Cycler Rifle Star Card. However, once you have obtained all five stars in a mission, you can use the rifle in a customized hand for that mission. Any Imperial or Rebel infantry killed with a headshot from the Cycler rifle in either Battle or Survival count toward this award. Whenever this ability is available in Survival mode, pick off charging stormtroopers from afar with a quick shot to the noggin.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Missions

Tutorial: Probe Droids

Location: Hoth

Weapon: A280C Blaster Rifle

Opponents: Probe Droids

Difficulty: Very Easy

MISSION BRIEF

Our scanners have picked up possible Imperial signals around the base. Move out and investigate. Eliminate any potential threats before they can alert the Empire to our presence. We cannot afford to be found out.

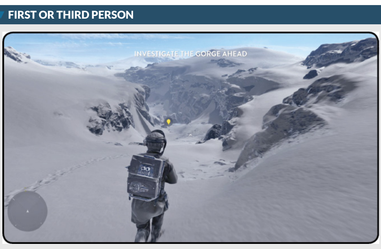

A tutorial is available if you press the Use button at the main menu. This short mission runs you through the basics of Star Wars Battlefront. You receive an Achievement/Trophy for finishing the tutorial, so it is worth completing even if you feel comfortable with the controls. Note that this is outside of the Missions tab and does not count toward any of the missions-specific Achievements.

Make your way to the designated location. Use the left stick to move to the marker ahead. Points of interest within range are pointed out on the scanner, located in the lower-left corner of the HUD. Enemies show up in red.

Investigate the gorge ahead. Run down the hill into the gorge, and jump the rocks as you proceed up the other side.

FIRST OR THIRD PERSON

When playing as infantry or inside an air vehicle, hold down on the d-pad to switch between first- and third-person perspectives. Check them both out and see which you prefer. As a soldier, tap the button to switch your stance and look over the opposite shoulder.

Investigate unidentified object. Sprint up the hill to the next marker, and crouch behind the boulders. Just ahead, an Imperial Probe Droid scouts the area.

Destroy the Imperial Probe Droid. Aim down the sights by holding the Zoom button, and fire at the droid until it explodes in defeat. It is perfectly okay to hip fire at the enemy, but you do lose a little accuracy.

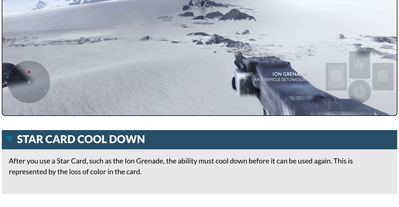

OVERHEATING THE BLASTER

All blasters are susceptible to overheating if fired for too long. As you discharge the weapon, a curved meter appears below your reticle, building outward until it turns red. This indicates that the weapon is heating up. If the meter fills up, the gun stops working, and you must complete a short, active cooling mini-game to regain control. A new meter appears with a small yellow section on each side. As two dots move from the outside toward the vertex, press the Use button when they are lined up with the yellow. With a perfectly timed cooling flush, the gun is immediately ready to fire again. Fail, and you become vulnerable, since it takes longer to cool off. You can choose to ignore this mini-game to recover once the dots reach the bottom. Cooling your weapon becomes progressively tougher the more times you succeed.

Make your way to the designated location. Once you've taken care of the droid, continue on to the next objective marker. Another Probe Droid patrols in the distance. Again, hold the Zoom button down and destroy the machine. Note that your weapon has some kick to it, so fire in bursts to take your target down. Another marker appears in the distance. Traverse the rocky terrain until you reach the spot.

Destroy the Imperial Probe Droid. You are given the Ion Grenade Star Card, and it is equipped in the Left Ability slot. Turn to another Probe Droid that appears nearby, and press the Left Card button to toss the anti-vehicle explosive in its direction. As long as the grenade detonates close enough, the droid is taken out.

STAR CARD COOL DOWN

After you use a Star Card, such as the Ion Grenade, the ability must cool down before it can be used again. This is represented by the loss of color in the card.

Get the power-up. A new marker shows up just ahead. Run over to it, and grab the power-up that lies on the ground. A Smart Rocket shows up just below your hand in the lower-right corner of the HUD. Pressing the Left and Right Card buttons at the same time activates this new Power Ability.

Destroy the Imperial Probe Droid. Spot a fourth Probe Droid in the distance, and equip the rocket launcher. Aim through the scope, and blow the droid out of the air.

DO OR DO NOT. THERE IS NO TRY.

TROPHY: BRONZE

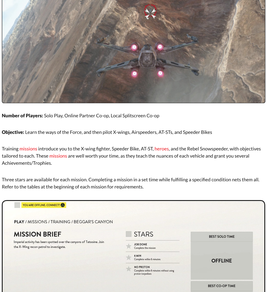

GAMER SCORE: 15

Simply complete this tutorial for an easy Bronze Trophy or 15 Gamer Points.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Training:
Beggars Canyon

Number of Players: Solo Play, Online Partner Co-op, Local Splitscreen Co-op

Objective: Learn the ways of the Force, and then pilot X-wings, Airspeeders, AT-STs, and Speeder Bikes

Training missions introduce you to the X-wing fighter, Speeder Bike, AT-ST, heroes, and the Rebel Snowspeeder, with objectives tailored to each. These missions are well worth your time, as they teach the nuances of each vehicle and grant you several Achievements/Trophies.

Three stars are available for each mission. Completing a mission in a set time while fulfilling a specified condition nets them all. Refer to the tables at the beginning of each mission for requirements.

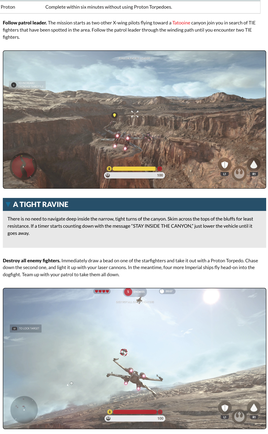

ALL RIGHT, I'LL GIVE IT A TRY

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Earn at least one star on all training missions. Complete the five training missions to collect this one.

Location: Tatooine Canyon

Vehicle: X-wing

Opponents: TIE fighters, TIE interceptors

Difficulty: Medium

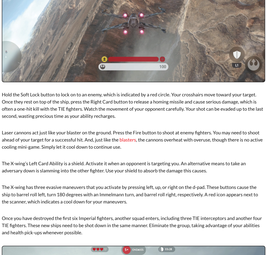

MISSION BRIEF

Imperial activity has been spotted over the canyons of Tatooine. Join the X-wing recon patrol to investigate.

HOW TO GET STARS

NAME	CONDITION
Job Done	Complete the mission.
6 Min	Complete within six minutes.
No Proton	Complete within six minutes without using Proton Torpedoes.

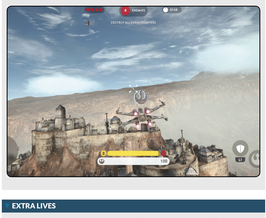

Follow patrol leader. The mission starts as two other X-wing pilots flying toward a Tatooine canyon join you in search of TIE fighters that have been spotted in the area. Follow the patrol leader through the winding path until you encounter two TIE fighters.

A TIGHT RAVINE

There is no need to navigate deep inside the narrow, tight turns of the canyon. Skim across the tops of the bluffs for least resistance. If a timer starts counting down with the message "STAY INSIDE THE CANYON," just lower the vehicle until it goes away.

Destroy all enemy fighters. Immediately draw a bead on one of the starfighters and take it out with a Proton Torpedo. Chase down the second one, and light it up with your laser cannons. In the meantime, four more Imperial ships fly head-on into the dogfight. Team up with your patrol to take them all down.

PILOTING THE X-WING

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Energy Distribution (Throttle)	Left Thumbstick	Left Stick
Aim	Right Thumbstick	Right Stick
Fire	RT	R2
Soft Lock (Hold)	LT	L2
Shield	LB	L1
Homing Missile (Proton Torpedo)	RB	R1
Evasive Maneuvers	Left/Up/Right on D-Pad	Left/Up/Right on D-Pad
Tell 3rd Person (Hold)	Down on D-Pad	Down on D-Pad

Flying the air vehicles in Star Wars Battlefront takes some adjustment, but once you get it, piloting the starfighters is a blast. The right stick aims the aircraft; point the aiming reticle in the direction you want to fly, and the ship follows suit. The left stick acts as a throttle, but it is more than that. A metre just above the fighter's health indicates your energy distribution. Push up, and energy is shifted to your engines, speeding you up. Push down, and power is sent to your weapon systems, making the X-wing a more powerful force against the TIE fighters. Use the throttle to make quick turns and get behind your opponent, and try matching their speed as you light them up.

Hold the Soft Lock button to lock on to an enemy, which is indicated by a red circle. Your crosshairs move toward your target. Once they rest on top of the ship, press the Right Card button to release a homing missile and cause serious damage, which is often a one-hit kill with the TIE fighters. Watch the movement of your opponent carefully. Your shot can be evaded up to the last second, wasting precious time as your ability recharges.

Laser cannons act just like your blaster on the ground. Press the Fire button to shoot at enemy fighters. You may need to shoot ahead of your target for a successful hit. And, just like the blasters, the cannons overheat with overuse, though there is no active cooling mini-game. Simply let it cool down to continue use.

The X-wing's Left Card Ability is a shield. Activate it when an opponent is targeting you. An alternative means to take an adversary down is slamming into the other fighter. Use your shield to absorb the damage this causes.

The X-wing has three evasive maneuvers that you activate by pressing left, up, or right on the d-pad. These buttons cause the ship to barrel roll left, turn 180 degrees with an Immelmann turn, and barrel roll right, respectively. A red icon appears next to the scanner, which indicates a cool down for your maneuvers.

Once you have destroyed the first six Imperial fighters, another squad enters, including three TIE interceptors and another four TIE fighters. These new ships need to be shot down in the same manner. Eliminate the group, taking advantage of your abilities and health pick-ups whenever possible.

VEHICLE REPAIR PICK-UPS

Watch out for pick-ups that appear around the canyon village. When needed, seek one out and fly through it to repair the ship.

EXTRA LIVES

Four lives are available for this training mission. If you die, you can restart at the last checkpoint by spending one of them.

EARNING THREE STARS

The third star requires completing the mission within six minutes without using Proton Torpedoes. Your blasters take several well-placed shots to destroy a TIE fighter, whereas Proton Torpedoes are typically deadly with one shot. You must find your next target immediately once you defeat a starfighter.

Regroup with the patrol. Simply descend back into the canyon to rejoin the others and complete the mission.

BEST STAR-PILOT IN THE GALAXY

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Destroy 10 TIE fighters within two minutes on the Beggar's Canyon Trial. Use homing missiles whenever possible and quickly find your next target. You must limit your down time to achieve this one.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Training

Endor Chase

Location: Endor Forest

Vehicle: Speeder Bike

Opponents: Rebel Scouts on Speeder Bikes

Difficulty: Easy

MISSION BRIEF

Rebel forces are reported to be moving to an extraction point in your patrol vicinity. Flush out all Rebels and hunt them down. They must not be allowed to escape.

HOW TO GET STARS

NAME	CONDITION
Normal	Complete the mission.
2.5 Min	Complete within 2 minutes and 30 seconds.
Kill 5	Complete and kill five Rebels.

This training mission serves as another tutorial for vehicle control. You are an Imperial scout trooper piloting a Speeder Bike in a thick forest of Endor. Rebel infantry, mounted on bikes themselves, flee to an extraction point. You must find and pursue them all the way to the final destination to complete the mission.

PILOTING A SPEEDER BIKE

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Throttle Increase/Decrease	Left Thumbstick Up/Down	Left Stick Up/Down
Strafe Left/Right	Left Thumbstick Left/Right	Left Stick Left/Right
Elevation Increase/Decrease	Right Thumbstick Up/Down	Right Stick Up/Down
Aim	Right Thumbstick Left/Right	Right Stick Left/Right
Fire	RT	R2
Soft Lock (Hold)	LT	L2
Speed Boost	LB	L1
1st/3rd Person (Hold)	Down on D-Pad	Down on D-Pad

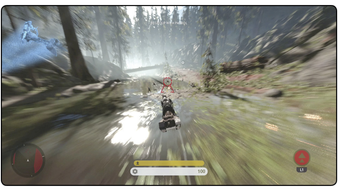

The Speeder Bike controls very similarly to the X-wing, except for two things: the throttle doesn't serve as energy distribution (it simply accelerates and brakes) and the right stick operates slightly differently. Left and right still aims your reticle, while up and down increase and decrease elevation, respectively. This is very useful when dealing with obstacles placed in your path, such as downed trees. You can also use the left stick to strafe from side to side, which is invaluable in this location.

The only weapon is your blaster and your only ability is a speed boost, which is mapped to the Left Card slot. This thing is very fast and Endor's forests are extremely dense, so work that throttle carefully while navigating your way through the thicket.

Regroup with patrol. Start out by following the narrow path ahead as you drive toward the first objective marker.

Intercept the Rebels. At a sweeping left turn, a group of Rebels on Imperial Speeder Bikes crosses just ahead. Accelerate directly behind them, being careful to steer under the toppled tree.

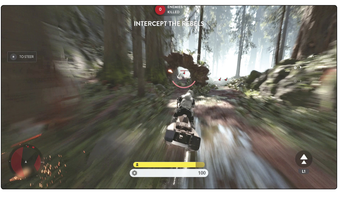

SPEND A LIFE

You are given four lives that can be spent after dying to return to the mission. Checkpoints along the route dictate the area where you restart.

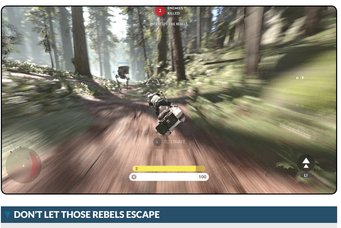

VEHICLE REPAIR PICK-UPS

It is possible to glance off a tree and not destroy your bike. Vehicle repair pick-ups are scattered throughout the forest; watch out for them if your Speeder Bike has taken damage.

Use your blaster to take out the Rebels whenever one is in your sights. Hold the Soft Lock button to target one, and shoot with the Fire button. To get the third star, you must dispatch at least five Rebels.

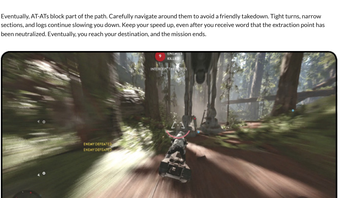

Friendly AT-STs have been deployed in the middle of your route. Strafe left and right to avoid running into them as you remain on the Rebels' trail. As you proceed through the level, more obstacles are continually thrown your way. Keep an eye ahead while continuing to pick off the enemy. Save your speed boosts for the clearings.

DON'T LET THOSE REBELS ESCAPE

If you trail too far behind, a message appears on-screen that says the Rebels are escaping, along with a 30-second timer. Speed up to get back within acceptable range. Fail to do so, and you may have to spend a life to continue the mission.

Eventually, AT-ATs block part of the path. Carefully navigate around them to avoid a friendly takedown. Tight turns, narrow sections, and logs continue slowing you down. Keep your speed up, even after you receive word that the extraction point has been neutralized. Eventually, you reach your destination, and the mission ends.

SAFETY AIN'T THE POINT OF A JOYRIDE

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

Take no damage in the Endor Chase mission. The Speeder Bike is very quick at full throttle. Keep your eyes on the path ahead, using both sticks to navigate around the many obstacles in the Endor Forest. Save speed boosts for clearings so that you don't inadvertently go headfirst into a tree.

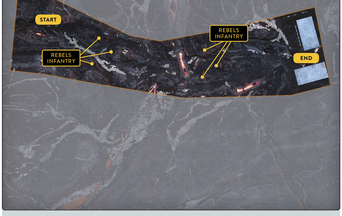

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Training

Overpower

SULLUST IMPERIAL BASE

Location: Sullust Imperial Base

Vehicle: AT-ST

Opponents: A-wings, X-wings, Rebel infantry

Difficulty: Medium

MISSION BRIEF

Lord Vader is on approach to Sullust and expects the Imperial base to be cleared of Rebels before his arrival. Escort the mighty AT-AT walker, and wipe them out.

HOW TO GET STARS

NAME	CONDITION
Job Done	Complete the mission.
6 Min	Complete within six minutes.
A-wings	Complete and take out eight A-wings.

Regroup with the AT-AT. You take control of an AT-ST, who must escort and assist an AT-AT as it wipes out any Rebels who occupy the Sullust Imperial base. This mission runs you through all of the nuances of the AT-ST, teaching how to best utilize its powerful weaponry. Control of the scout walker should be familiar because it handles just like a soldier. Move out of the hangar to get the mission started.

CONTROLLING AN AT-ST

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Move	Left Thumbstick	Left Stick
Aim	Right Thumbstick Left/Right	Right Stick Left/Right
Fire	RT	R2
Zoom (Aim Assist)	LT	L2
Concussion Grenade Launcher	LB	L1
Homing Missiles	RB	R1
Sprint	Left Thumbstick (Click)	L3 (Click)
Abandon Vehicle	X	Square

An AT-ST controls very similarly to normal soldiers, as they move, aim, and even sprint in the same way. They are equipped with three weapons: a grenade launcher, concussion missiles, and a blaster. The grenades are ideal for groups of infantry, while the missiles are great for homing in on targets.

Escort the AT-AT. Take your position ahead of the transport, and lead it down the path toward the Rebel forces. Sprinting too far away results in a warning to return to your post, so keep close to the big guy.

Engage the Rebel ground forces. Small groups of Rebel infantry show up on the three ridges ahead, giving you a great opportunity to test out the AT-ST's main guns. Sweep from one side to the other, and wipe them all out.

FOUR LIVES

If the Rebels take you down, spend one of your four extra lives to return to the action at the last checkpoint reached.

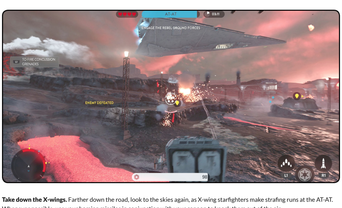

Destroy the A-wings. Continue down the path, where A-wings attack from the skies above. Fortunately, the bipedal is equipped with homing missiles, which easily rips them to shreds—assuming it has enough time to home in on the invader. Keep progressing toward your destination as you pick off fighters with your rockets. Be ready with your next shot once the weapon cools down.

ANTICIPATE ENEMY FLIGHT PATTERNS

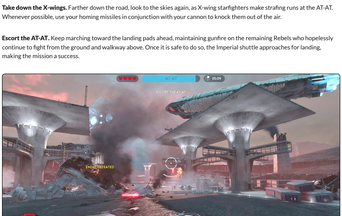

Watch the flight patterns of the A-wings to note the best opportunities to take them down. Your homing missiles require a little time to lock on to their targets. The moment a starfighter appears in the distance is a great time to launch the explosive, giving it plenty of time to do its job.

Engage the Rebel ground forces. With the starfighter threat out of the way, continue ahead until three more groups of Rebels appear in a setup similar to before. Use your Concussion Grenades (mapped to the Left Card slot) to wipe them out with ease. Combine this with your main cannon to make quick work of the opposition.

Take down the X-wings. Farther down the road, look to the skies again, as X-wing starfighters make strafing runs at the AT-AT. Whenever possible, use your homing missiles in conjunction with your cannon to knock them out of the air.

Escort the AT-AT. Keep marching toward the landing pads ahead, maintaining gunfire on the remaining Rebels who hopelessly continue to fight from the ground and walkway above. Once it is safe to do so, the Imperial shuttle approaches for landing, making the mission a success.

EARNING THREE STARS

To earn all three stars, you must complete the mission in six minutes while taking down at least eight A-wings. As long as you stay on the move as you wipe out the Rebel forces, the time isn't too much trouble. Use all of your weaponry at each encounter to speed things up. Taking out the target number of starfighters is a bigger feat. As soon as they appear in the distance, fire a missile in their direction. Maintain plenty of space between the AT-ST and the A-wing, or else the homing missile won't have enough time to get a bead on its target. As soon as it cools down, be ready to fire the next projectile.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Training
The Dark Side

Location: Hoth Rebel Base

Hero: Darth Vader or Emperor Palpatine

Opponents: Rebel infantry

Difficulty: Easy

MISSION BRIEF

The Rebel forces are scrambling to maintain control of their base as dark Lords of the Sith invade. Embrace the dark side, and wipe them out.

HOW TO GET STARS

NAME	CONDITION
Job Done	Complete the mission.
3 Min	Complete within three minutes.
Efficient	Complete with 75 percent or more health left.

Eliminate the Rebels and take control of the base. The Lords of the Sith enter the Rebel base with a small squad of snowtroopers. Before starting your massacre of the helpless Rebels, you must choose between Darth Vader and Emperor Palpatine. The two options offer differing play styles, but they both provide devastating power. As you move into the structure, Rebel forces appear farther inside. Reinforcements appear in waves as you defeat each group.

PLAYING THE HERO

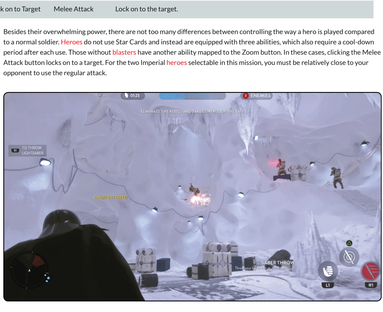

DARTH VADER ABILITIES

ABILITY NAME	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Force Choke	Left Card Ability	Choke current target for an instant kill.
Heavy Strike	Top Card Ability	Perform a strong charging group saber attack. Use this against small packs to wipe them out with one swing of your weapon.
Saber Throw	Right Card Ability	Throw your lightsaber at distant enemies. You can take out multiple foes with a well-placed toss.
Saber Defense	Zoom (Hold)	Use the saber to deflect blaster bolts back at the target. Keep defense up between attacks whenever shots are incoming.
Saber Strike	Fire	Strike with the lightsaber.
Lock on to Target	Melee Attack	Lock on to the target.

EMPEROR PALPATINE ABILITIES

ABILITY NAME	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Chain Lightning	Left Card Ability	This powerful, long-range lightning attack chains between nearby enemies. It is highly effective against groups of Rebels.
Imperial Resources	Top Card Ability	Spawn a hero health pick-up just in front of Palpatine. Grab one immediately if your health is down, or save it for later.
Force Dash	Right Card Ability	Perform a quick, twisting leap to escape cornering or close ground on a target in a hurry.
Block	Zoom (Hold)	Use your hands to block blaster shots, greatly reducing damage taken.
Force Lightning	Fire	Perform a short-range lightning strike. Hold to continually stream lightning from fingertips. The white meter drains until the ability must recharge.
Lock on to Target	Melee Attack	Lock on to the target.

Besides their overwhelming power, there are not too many differences between controlling the way a hero is played compared to a normal soldier. Heroes do not use Star Cards and instead are equipped with three abilities, which also require a cool-down period after each use. Those without blasters have another ability mapped to the Zoom button. In these cases, clicking the Melee Attack button locks on to a target. For the two Imperial heroes selectable in this mission, you must be relatively close to your opponent to use the regular attack.

Five waves of Rebel infantry attempt to rid their base of the Imperial trespassers.

Just inside hangar — Six Rebels with blaster pistols and blaster rifles

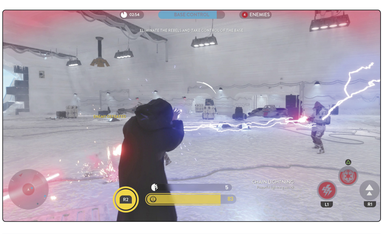

Enter through back blast doors — Five Rebels with blaster rifles and heavy blasters

Second-floor walkway — Four Rebels with blaster rifles

From main hangar doors — Four Rebels with blaster rifles and heavy blasters

Final group from main hangar doors — 11 Rebels with blaster rifles and heavy blasters, including some with shields and Jump Packs

The Rebel soldiers are not much of a match for Darth Vader or Emperor Palpatine, so defeating them is not a huge challenge. However, the final group of 11 soldiers can easily surround you if allowed to do so, and this is where you receive the most damage. Methodically pick off the Rebel scum to complete your hero training.

FORCE LIGHTNING, HEALTH, AND BASE CONTROL METERS

When you play as Palpatine, three meters are utilized on the HUD, while Darth Vader only uses two. At the top of the screen, Base Control shows your mission progress. It slowly fills until you finish off the last group of Rebels. At the bottom, your health is shown as a yellow bar. When playing as Palpatine, a white bar appears above your health that represents his Force Lightning. Once the white is drained completely, this ability must be recharged.

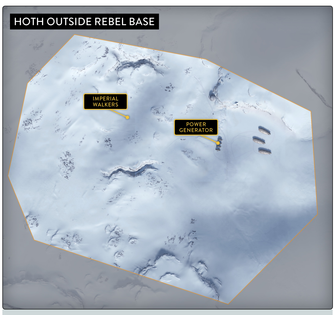

EARNING THREE STARS

To earn all three stars in a run, you must complete the mission within three minutes and with at least 75 percent health remaining at the end. The final wave of Rebels is fairly large, so you should stick to the outside to keep your health up. Of course, Palpatine can simply deploy a hero health pick-up for a small recovery.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Training
Invasion

Location: Hoth Outside Rebel Base

Vehicle: Snowspeeder

Opponents: AT-STs, AT-ATs

Difficulty: Medium

MISSION BRIEF

The Empire has discovered a Rebel base, and it must be defended until all transports are away. Protect the power generator at all costs!

HOW TO GET STARS

NAME	CONDITION
Job Done	Complete the mission.
8 Min	Complete within eight minutes.
Takedown	Complete without failing a TOW-cable takedown.

At the Hoth Rebel base, Imperial scout walkers march toward the power generator. An evacuation has been ordered, but it takes time to get the three Rebel transports loaded and off the ground. The generator must be protected or the shields will fail, giving the Empire access to the fleeing vessels. The mission is divided into three segments—one for each transport ship.

Destroy the AT-STs. Three pairs of AT-STs move toward the generator. Check your scanner, find the two closest to the machine, and head their way. Hit the speed boost to get there quickly, and take them down with your laser cannons. Throughout your strafing runs, jam on the Fire button to cause maximum damage. Use the same tactics to eliminate the other four to continue the mission. Note that a light touch to a badly injured walker may be enough to take it down, but be careful that you don't commit suicide in the process.

If the Imperial walkers are allowed to get within range of the power generator, they begin attacking. A power generator meter at the top of the HUD shows their progress. If the meter fully depletes, the mission is over.

PILOTING THE T-47 AIRSPEEDER/SNOWSPEEDER

The Snowspeeder is flown in the same manner as the starfighters, except there is no energy distribution. The left stick only acts as the throttle. Going full throttle does not fill the yellow meter all the way; this extra speed is saved for your speed boost ability.

Much like the starfighters, the Snowspeeder has three evasive maneuvers, which you activate by pressing left, up, and right on the d-pad. Left and right cause the ship to bank in those directions, making a really tight 180-degree turn. When you push up, the ship rapidly ascends to a higher altitude before settling back down.

Laser cannons provide the only weaponry for the aircraft, though its TOW-cable can be lethal against an AT-AT. A sensor jammer is available, though it is not necessary in this mission.

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Throttle	Left Thumbstick	Left Stick
Aim	Right Thumbstick	Right Stick
Fire	RT	R2
Soft Lock (Hold)	LT	L2
Speed Boost	LB	L1
Sensor Jammer	RB	R1
TOW-Cable	LB + RB	L1 + R1
Evasive Maneuvers	Left/Up/Right on D-Pad	Left/Up/Right on D-Pad
1st/3rd Person (Hold)	Down on D-Pad	Down on D-Pad

Destroy the AT-AT. Next, a lone AT-AT moves in to attack. This provides an opportunity to teach the basics of taking the walker down with a TOW-cable. Follow the given instructions, and drop it to its knees.

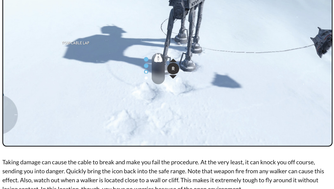

DESTROYING AN AT-AT WITH THE TOW-CABLE

The long, unstable legs of the All Terrain Armored Transport provide a quicker way to defeat this behemoth as opposed to firing at its weakened belly. Wrap a long cable around its legs until it falls to the ground.

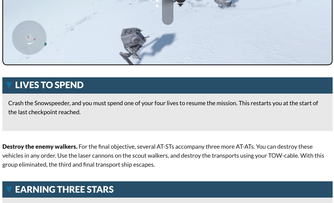

Fly your ship near the AT-AT, and activate the TOW-cable when prompted to do so. This brings up a vertical bar with an Airspeeder icon inside. Press up and down on the right stick to keep the icon inside the bar. As long as the icon remains white, you are fine. It turns red when you are in danger of losing the TOW-cable's hold, though you do have a little time to recover before it is completely lost.

Four dots appear to the left, which turn blue each time you successfully complete a lap. Whenever one changes color, the vertical bar shrinks until your icon barely fits inside. Make very light adjustments to the stick to keep it in the middle. After the fourth dot, you receive confirmation of your success, and the walker is taken down. Be ready to quickly pull back to avoid flying into the ground.

Taking damage can cause the cable to break and make you fail the procedure. At the very least, it can knock you off course, sending you into danger. Quickly bring the icon back into the safe range. Note that weapon fire from any walker can cause this effect. Also, watch out when a walker is located close to a wall or cliff. This makes it extremely tough to fly around it without losing contact. In this location, though, you have no worries because of the open environment.

Destroy the enemy walkers. At this point, two more AT-ATs show up. Take them down in the same manner as before. After you successfully destroy the walkers, the second transport lifts off.

LIVES TO SPEND

Crash the Snowspeeder, and you must spend one of your four lives to resume the mission. This restarts you at the start of the last checkpoint reached.

Destroy the enemy walkers. For the final objective, several AT-STs accompany three more AT-ATs. You can destroy these vehicles in any order. Use the laser cannons on the scout walkers, and destroy the transports using your TOW-cable. With this group eliminated, the third and final transport ship escapes.

EARNING THREE STARS

To earn all three stars in a run, you must destroy the final group of Imperial walkers before the timer reaches eight minutes, without failing a TOW-cable takedown. Use your speed boost when traveling between walkers, and quickly switch targets as you defeat AT-STs. Avoid taking too much damage when you perform the TOW-cable maneuvers.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Game Overview

Welcome to the Star Wars Battlefront game overview guide! Here you will find a complete walkthrough for the game, including tips and tricks for each mode, as well as a complete game overview to help you get started.

HOW TO USE GUIDE

Button	Description
Menus	Will use these buttons often, up and down.
Select	Will use this button often, to select.
Back	Will use this button often, to go back.
Controller	Will use this often, to move around and do actions.
Keyboard	Will use these often, to move around and do actions.

Before we get started, we'll go over the basics of the game. Star Wars Battlefront is a first-person shooter that takes place in the Star Wars universe. You can play as either the Rebel Alliance or the Galactic Empire, and you'll fight in various battles across different planets and locations.

At the start of the game, you'll choose the faction you want to fight for and select the character you want to play as. Each character has their own unique abilities and weapons, so it's important to choose one that suits your playstyle.

Figure out the difference between Rebel Alliance and Galactic Empire. Rebel Alliance is a group of rebels who fight against the Galactic Empire. The Galactic Empire is a group of evil people who want to rule the galaxy.

CHOOSE FACTION

REBEL ALLIANCE

HERO BATTLES

Hero Battles is a game mode where you team up against other players and fight as powerful Star Wars heroes. You can choose from a variety of heroes, each with their own unique abilities and weapons. The goal is to work together with your team to defeat the enemy team and complete objectives.

Hero Battles is a great way to play Star Wars Battlefront if you want to feel like you're in the movies and have the chance to play as your favorite characters.

DIFFICULTY

Now it's time to talk about difficulty. Battlefront has three difficulty settings: Recruit, Trooper, and Veteran. Recruit is the easiest difficulty setting, and it's a good choice if you're new to the game or if you just want to relax and have fun. Trooper is the default difficulty setting, and it's a good choice if you're looking for a challenge but don't want to be overwhelmed. Veteran is the most challenging difficulty setting, and it's only recommended for players who are very experienced with the game.

WEAPON SELECTION

Now it's time to talk about weapons. Battlefront has a wide variety of weapons, each with its own strengths and weaknesses. Some weapons are better for close-range combat, while others are better for long-range combat. It's important to choose a weapon that's right for your playstyle and the situation you're in.

WEAPON STATS

Weapon	Damage	Fire Rate	Accuracy	Range
A280	10	8	7	9
A-700	9	7	8	8
A-180	8	9	6	7
A-300	7	6	9	10
A-500	6	5	10	6
A-100	5	10	5	5
A-400	4	4	4	4

STAR CARD HAND SELECTION

Before starting Battle Arcade, you can select the Hero's star card. Star Card Hand Each character has a unique star card hand that they can use to perform special attacks. The star card hand is a powerful weapon that can be used to deal damage to enemies or to heal allies. The star card hand has a limited number of uses, so it's important to use it wisely.

Here's a list of the star card hands for each character in Battle Arcade:

Character	Star Card Hand	Description
Han Solo	Blaster	Han Solo fires a powerful blaster shot that can deal a lot of damage.
Chewbacca	Bowcaster	Chewbacca fires a powerful bowcaster shot that can deal a lot of damage.
Luke Skywalker	Lightsaber	Luke Skywalker uses his lightsaber to deal damage to enemies.
Leia Organa	Blaster	Leia Organa fires a blaster shot that can deal a lot of damage.
Boba Fett	Jetpack	Boba Fett uses his jetpack to fly around the battlefield.
Darth Vader	Force Choke	Darth Vader uses the Force to choke his opponents.

HUD

Now it's time to talk about the HUD. The HUD, or heads-up display, is the information that's displayed on the screen while you're playing the game. It includes your health, ammo, and other important information.

AI OPPOSITION

Each type of hero will be unique. Although you can dispatch the two opposing AI of the Battlefront Online after playing two heroes, the AI will be different for each hero. Each hero has their own unique abilities and weapons, so the AI will have to adapt its strategy accordingly. For example, a hero with a long-range weapon will be more likely to stay back and snipe, while a hero with a melee weapon will be more likely to charge in and attack.

HERO CHARACTERISTICS ON PLAYER'S SIDE IN NORMAL DIFFICULTY

Hero	Health	Attack	Defense	Speed	Special Ability
Agent of Rebellion	100	10	5	8	Stealth
Agent of Empire	100	10	5	8	Stealth
Rebel Commando	120	12	6	7	Grenade
Imperial Trooper	120	12	6	7	Grenade
Rebel Pilot	80	8	4	10	Jetpack
Imperial Pilot	80	8	4	10	Jetpack

HERO CHARACTERISTICS ON PLAYER'S SIDE IN HARD DIFFICULTY

Hero	Health	Attack	Defense	Speed	Special Ability
Agent of Rebellion	150	15	7	9	Stealth
Agent of Empire	150	15	7	9	Stealth
Rebel Commando	180	18	9	8	Grenade
Imperial Trooper	180	18	9	8	Grenade
Rebel Pilot	120	12	6	11	Jetpack
Imperial Pilot	120	12	6	11	Jetpack

THE HEROES

Heroes are powerful characters with the ability to dominate specific [Effects]. Likewise, they have a lot of going for [Effects] as well. Here's a list of the heroes in the game and their abilities:

ZOOM CAM ASSISTLOCK ON TO YOUR TARGET

Zoom Cam AssistLock On to Your Target is a feature that helps you aim at your target. When you activate AssistLock On to Your Target, your camera will automatically zoom in on your target and help you keep your crosshairs on them.

CAPTURE POINTS AND OBJECTIVES

Button	Action
Capture Point	Capture the point
Objective	Complete the objective

CONTROLS AND KEYS

Button	Action	Description
Movement Keys	Move Character	Use these keys to move your character around the battlefield.
Mouse	Aim	Use the mouse to aim your weapon.
Left Mouse Button	Shoot	Press the left mouse button to shoot your weapon.
Right Mouse Button	Aim Down Sights	Press the right mouse button to aim down sights.
Spacebar	Jump	Press the spacebar to jump.
Left Shift	Sprint	Hold down the left shift key to sprint.
Left Ctrl	Crouch	Press the left ctrl key to crouch.
C	Prone	Press the C key to go prone.
R	Reload	Press the R key to reload your weapon.
F	Interact	Press the F key to interact with objects and characters.
Tab	Scoreboard	Press the Tab key to view the scoreboard.
Esc	Menu	Press the Esc key to open the menu.

CONTROLS AND KEYS

Button	Action	Description
Movement Keys	Move Character	Use these keys to move your character around the battlefield.
Mouse	Aim	Use the mouse to aim your weapon.
Left Mouse Button	Shoot	Press the left mouse button to shoot your weapon.
Right Mouse Button	Aim Down Sights	Press the right mouse button to aim down sights.
Spacebar	Jump	Press the spacebar to jump.
Left Shift	Sprint	Hold down the left shift key to sprint.
Left Ctrl	Crouch	Press the left ctrl key to crouch.
C	Prone	Press the C key to go prone.
R	Reload	Press the R key to reload your weapon.
F	Interact	Press the F key to interact with objects and characters.
Tab	Scoreboard	Press the Tab key to view the scoreboard.
Esc	Menu	Press the Esc key to open the menu.

CAPTURE POINTS AND OBJECTIVES

Button	Action	Description
Capture Point	Capture the point	Move your character over the capture point. The more players on your team that are on the capture point, the faster it will be captured.
Objective	Complete the objective	Objectives will vary depending on the game mode. They may require you to capture a point, destroy a target, or escort a character.

CAPTURE POINTS AND OBJECTIVES

Button	Action	Description
Capture Point	Capture the point	Move your character over the capture point. The more players on your team that are on the capture point, the faster it will be captured.
Objective	Complete the objective	Objectives will vary depending on the game mode. They may require you to capture a point, destroy a target, or escort a character.
Vehicle	Enter/Exit	Press the F key to enter or exit a vehicle.
Weapon Pickup	Pick up weapon	Press the F key to pick up a weapon.
Ammo Pickup	Pick up ammo	Press the F key to pick up ammo.
Health Pickup	Pick up health	Press the F key to pick up health.

CAPTURE POINTS AND OBJECTIVES

Button	Action	Description
Capture Point	Capture the point	Move your character over the capture point. The more players on your team that are on the capture point, the faster it will be captured.
Objective	Complete the objective	Objectives will vary depending on the game mode. They may require you to capture a point, destroy a target, or escort a character.
Vehicle	Enter/Exit	Press the F key to enter or exit a vehicle.
Weapon Pickup	Pick up weapon	Press the F key to pick up a weapon.
Ammo Pickup	Pick up ammo	Press the F key to pick up ammo.
Health Pickup	Pick up health	Press the F key to pick up health.
Jetpack	Activate	Press the F key to activate your jetpack.

WEB BLASTER

Web Blaster is a powerful weapon that can be used to trap enemies in place. It's a great weapon for crowd control, and it can also be used to help your teammates by trapping enemies that are attacking them.

COLLECTING TOKENS

TOKEN VALUES IN THE GAME

Token Color	Points
Bronze token	1
Silver token	5
Gold token	10

Bronze tokens are worth 1 point each. Silver tokens are worth 5 points each. Gold tokens are worth 10 points each.

Web Blaster does not work well on all surfaces. For example, it does not work on surfaces that are made of glass or metal. It's also not very effective against enemies who are moving quickly.

The easiest way to use Web Blaster is to aim at the ground in front of an enemy and then shoot. The enemy will step on the web and get trapped. You can then use your other weapons to attack the enemy while they're trapped.

POWER-UPS

Power-ups are items that you can collect to give you an advantage in battle. There are many different types of power-ups, each with its own unique effect. Some power-ups can heal you, while others can give you a temporary boost in speed or damage.

Power-up	Image	Description
Shield		Absorbs damage for a short duration.
Health Pack		Restores health to full.
Speed Boost		Increases your movement speed for a short duration.
Damage Boost		Increases your damage output for a short duration.
Invisibility		Makes you invisible for a short duration.
Jetpack		Allows you to fly for a short duration.
Grenade		Throws a grenade that explodes after a short delay.
Rocket Launcher		Fires a rocket that explodes on impact.

STAR CARD UPGRADES AND ABILITIES

Star Card Upgrades and Abilities are a way to customize your character and give them unique abilities. You can earn Star Card Upgrades by completing challenges and leveling up. Once you have earned a Star Card Upgrade, you can equip it to your character and use its ability in battle.

COLLECTIBLES

Collectibles are items that you can find in the game world. They can be anything from weapons and armor to cosmetic items and emotes. Collectibles are a great way to customize your character and show off your progress in the game.

STARS

Stars are a currency that you can earn by completing challenges and leveling up. You can use Stars to purchase Star Card Upgrades and Abilities, as well as other items in the game.

GET TO A GOOD START

TABLE OF CONTENTS
CLICK HERE

IMPRESSIVE, MOST IMPRESSIVE

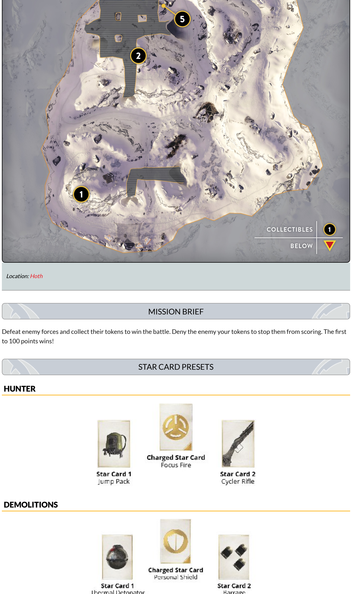

TABLE OF CONTENTS
CLICK HERE

Disclaimer: This guide is not affiliated with, endorsed, sponsored, or approved by Electronic Arts or DICE. The Star Wars Battlefront name and trademarks are property of Lucasfilm Ltd. and its related companies.

Battles

Battle on Hoth

Location: Hoth

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

STAR CARD PRESETS

HUNTER

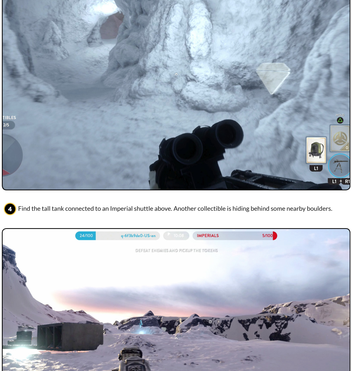

DEMOLITIONS

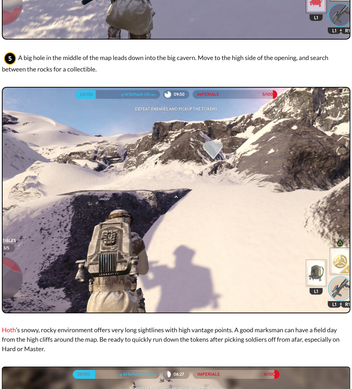

COLLECTIBLES

1 From the start point, turn left and climb to the top of the cliff. A collectible rests on the left side of the plateau.

2 Find the high hilltop that sits above the big cave. Climb to the peak to find a collectible.

3 Look for the narrow entrance to the main cave, located not too far away from the tall tank. Just before you reach the cavern, find a collectible tucked into the side of the tunnel.

4 Find the tall tank connected to an Imperial shuttle above. Another collectible is hiding behind some nearby boulders.

5 A big hole in the middle of the map leads down into the big cavern. Move to the high side of the opening, and search between the rocks for a collectible.

Hoth's snowy, rocky environment offers very long sightlines with high vantage points. A good marksman can have a field day from the high cliffs around the map. Be ready to quickly run down the tokens after picking soldiers off from afar, especially on Hard or Master.

The two Star Card Hand options offer two greatly differing play styles. Hunter includes a Jump Pack, which allows you to reach higher locations quickly and escape danger in a pinch. Settle into one of the great vantage points of Hoth, activate Focus Fire, and dispatch enemies from afar with the Cycler rifle and long-range blaster. Don't forget that you must collect points from the downed soldiers in order to score. Demolitions is more about total destruction. Direct your Thermal Detonator and Barrage at groups of infantry to quickly rack up a high kill count. Equip a high rate of fire, high-damage blaster, activate the Personal Shield, and clear out any remaining foes as you collect the tokens.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Hero Battle on Hoth

Location: Hoth

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

COLLECTIBLES

1 From the start of the mission, run straight ahead and spot the TIE fighter wreckage on the left. Scale the cliff to the right of the debris to find a collectible resting on the side of the mountain.

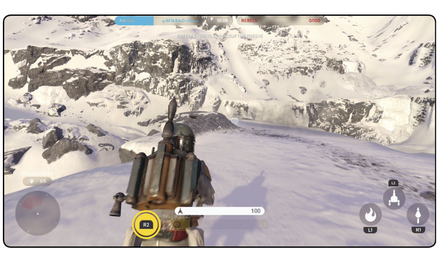

2 From the start of the mission, climb to the very top of the cliff ahead. A collectible lies just inside the map boundary.

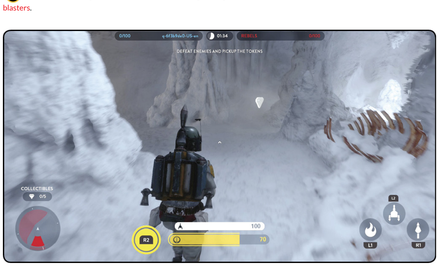

3 Fly up to the high peak in the middle of the map to find a collectible sitting out in the open.

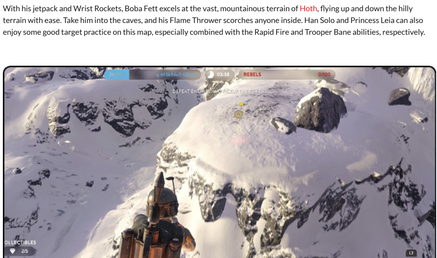

4 An E-Web stationary blaster sits on a plateau between a big hole in the ground and the tall tank. Climb up one ledge to find this collectible hiding behind a big rock.

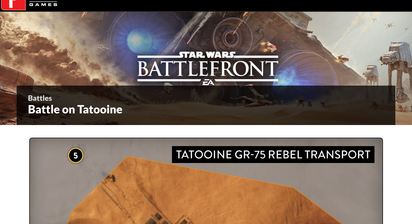

5 Descend into the big cavern and search behind a large stalagmite. You can find this collectible between the two E-Web blasters.

With his jetpack and Wrist Rockets, Boba Fett excels at the vast, mountainous terrain of Hoth, flying up and down the hilly terrain with ease. Take him into the caves, and his Flame Thrower scorches anyone inside. Han Solo and Princess Leia can also enjoy some good target practice on this map, especially combined with the Rapid Fire and Trooper Bane abilities, respectively.

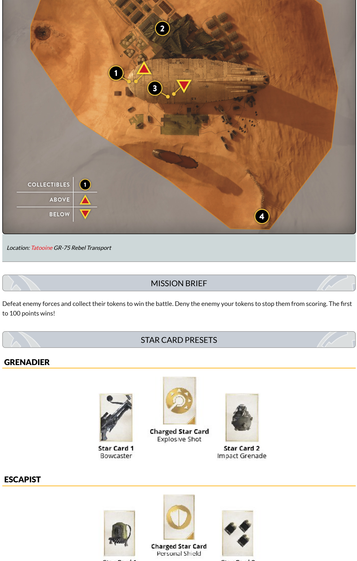

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Battle on Tatooine

Location: Tatooine GR-75 Rebel Transport

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

STAR CARD PRESETS

GRENADIER

Star Card 1
Bowcaster

Charged Star Card
Explosive Shot

Star Card 2
Impact Grenade

ESCAPIST

Star Card 1
Jump Pack

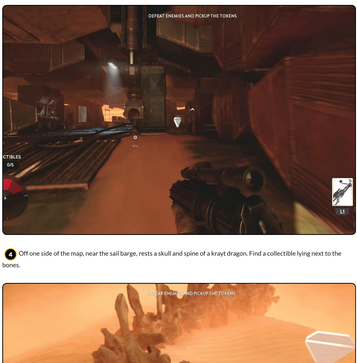

Charged Star Card
Personal Shield

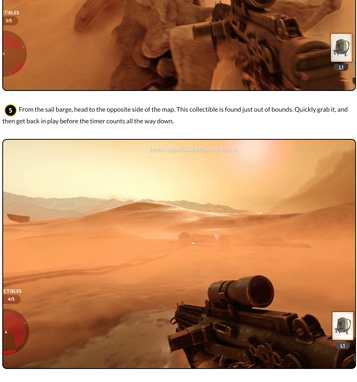

Star Card 2
Ravage

COLLECTIBLES

1 From the start, take the steps ahead to the metal walkway, and then boost onto the GR-75 Rebel transport. Resting at the front of the ship is a collectible, unobtainable without a Jump Pack.

2 From the first collectible, hop off the other side of the ship onto the green tarp. Drop down to the lower level to snag another one.

3 Underneath the transport, another collectible is tucked into a narrow gap behind the computers.

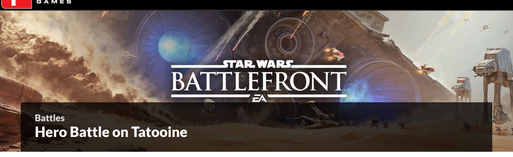

4 Off one side of the map, near the sail barge, rests a skull and spine of a krayt dragon. Find a collectible lying next to the bones.

5 From the sail barge, head to the opposite side of the map. This collectible is found just out of bounds. Quickly grab it, and then get back in play before the timer counts all the way down.

A GR-75 medium transport, ready for loading, dominates the map in Battle on Tatooine. Equipment litters the central area, providing all kinds of cover with multiple distinct lanes that offer decent lines of sight. Open desert terrain surrounds the outside of the map. AI opponents do not chase too far, so you can do some sniping from the map boundaries. With a Jump Pack equipped, you can get on top of the transport and pick off foes from a nice vantage point. Don't expect it to last too long, though, as they start hiding beneath the ship.

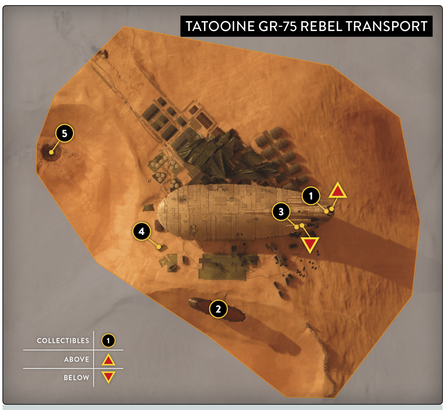

The Escapist and Grenadier Star Card Hands offer options without much in common. The former is all about blowing things up. If you like destruction, this is the hand for you. Obliterate incoming infantry with three deadly weapons to choose from. The latter choice provides a Jump Pack for quick exits, which is great when things get a little overwhelming. Throw down a barrage of grenades and activate the shield for a clean getaway. This hand is essential when you are pursuing the collectibles, as one sits high on the top of the transport.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Hero Battle on Tatooine

Location: Tatooine GR-75 Rebel Transport

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

COLLECTIBLES

1 Fly onto the transport ship, and head all the way to the back to find the collectible sitting behind the command pod.

2 A sail barge is parked at one end of the map, near the krayt dragon bones. Underneath the vessel sits a collectible; run around the ship to snag it.

3 Directly underneath the tail of the transport ship, look inside a small carrier for the collectible hiding inside.

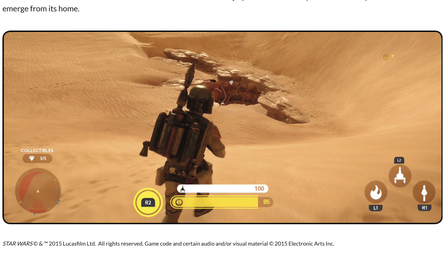

4 Under the rear of the transport sits a pile of small carriers. A collectible sits inside one, hiding out of sight from anyone without a jetpack.

Any of the Force-sensitive heroes will have a field day running between the equipment and under the transport, tearing up infantry around every corner. Those wielding a blaster have plenty of cover, with decent sightlines to infantry spawn points. Boba Fett is essential when hunting for collectibles—one floats above a sarlacc pit, and another sits high on the back of the transport.

5 From the rear of the transport, turn out to the desert, and then look down the hill to the right to spot the Great Pit of Carkoon. Another collectible floats above the hole. Use Boba Fett's jetpack to collect the prize. Don't worry: the sarlacc will not emerge from its home.

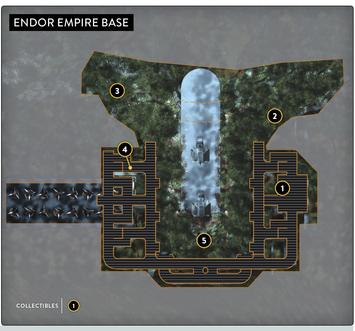

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Battle on Endor

Location: Endor Empire Base

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

STAR CARD PRESETS

SCOUT

Star Card 1
Homing Shot

Charged Star Card
Scan Pulse

Star Card 2
Barrage

WOOKIEE

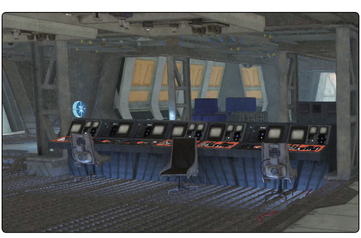

Star Card 1
Bowcaster

Charged Star Card
Personal Shield

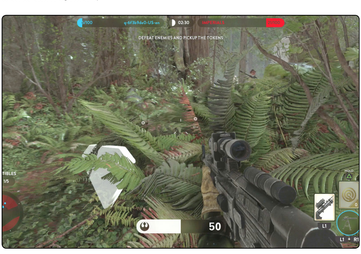

Star Card 2
Impact Grenade

COLLECTIBLES

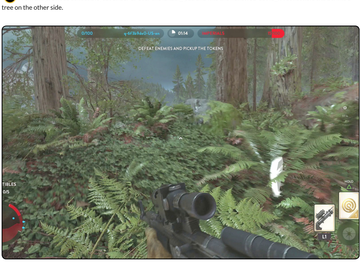

1 From the start, search between the computers on the right to find the first collectible.

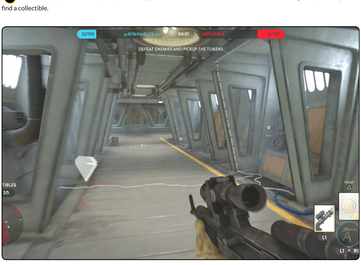

2 From the start, exit the base and head right. Follow the trail around to the right until you reach a fork in the path. A collectible rests in the grass nearby.

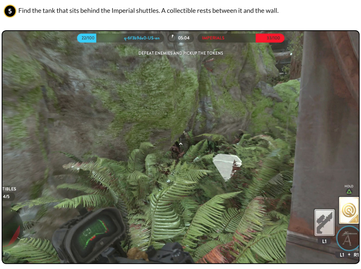

3 From the previous collectible, cut under or over the landing pad and find the hollowed-out log. A collectible sits behind a tree on the other side.

4 Head to the second floor of the base, on the opposite side from where the mission starts. Enter the rightmost hallway to find a collectible.

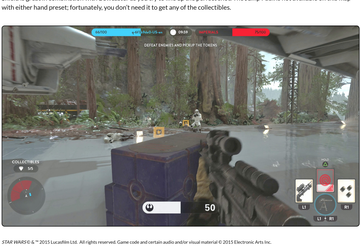

5 Find the tank that sits behind the Imperial shuttles. A collectible rests between it and the wall.

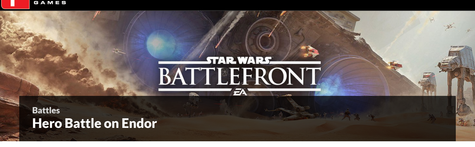

A two-story, U-shaped base surrounds an Imperial shuttle landing pad, and dense Endor forest adds variety to one end of the map. The base hallways make for some exciting gunfights, while the second-floor balconies offer nice lines of sight against infantry as they move from one side of the map to the other. Remember, though, that you are just as vulnerable when you go after their tokens.

The Scout and Wookiee Star Card Hands both offer some serious firepower in the Star Cards, combined with an extremely useful Charged Star Card. Scan Pulse comes in handy when you are not sure what may be around the next corner, while Personal Shield is great in combination with Bowcaster as you try to line up the perfect shot. The Jump Pack is not available on this map with either hand preset; fortunately, you don't need it to get any of the collectibles.

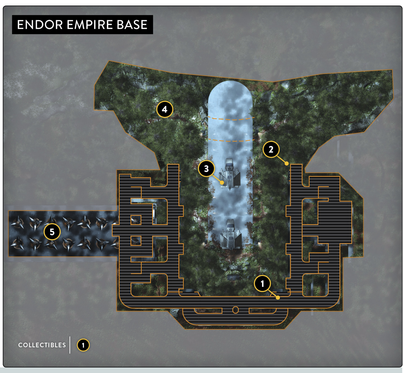

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Hero Battle on Endor

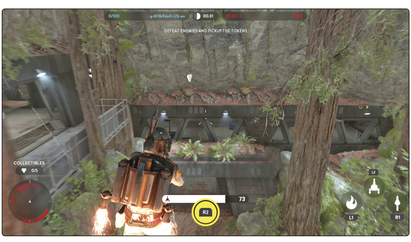

Location: Endor Empire BAse

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

COLLECTIBLES

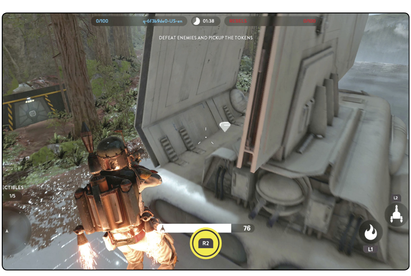

1 From the spawn point, move up to the second floor and go out the far left door. A collectible floats above the ledge on the left.

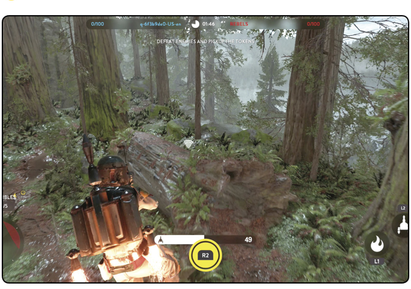

2 From the starting point, exit the base and head right. Just beyond the last door, a collectible rests on a rock ledge high above. Use Boba Fett's jetpack to nab it.

3 Move over to the front Imperial shuttle, and fly onto the left side to gain another collectible that sits just inside the folded wing.

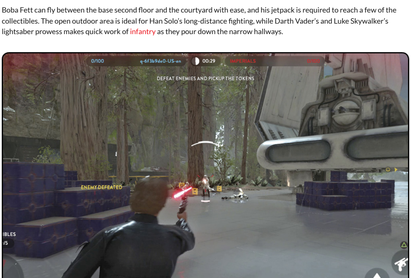

4 From the third collectible, head to the forest area, left of the landing pad. A collectible sits atop the hollowed-out log.

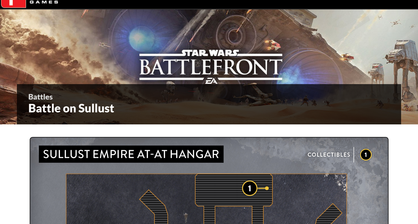

5 Enter the base, opposite from where you started. Head upstairs and find the back room, where the Empire has set up some kind of power generator. A collectible rests on the fourth pylon on the right. Extremely narrow ledges run around each one, so you can hop from one pylon to the next until you reach the item. You can also grab it with the jetpack, but you do take damage when you drop to the floor, so fly carefully.

Boba Fett can fly between the base second floor and the courtyard with ease, and his jetpack is required to reach a few of the collectibles. The open outdoor area is ideal for Han Solo's long-distance fighting, while Darth Vader's and Luke Skywalker's lightsaber prowess makes quick work of Infantry as they pour down the narrow hallways.

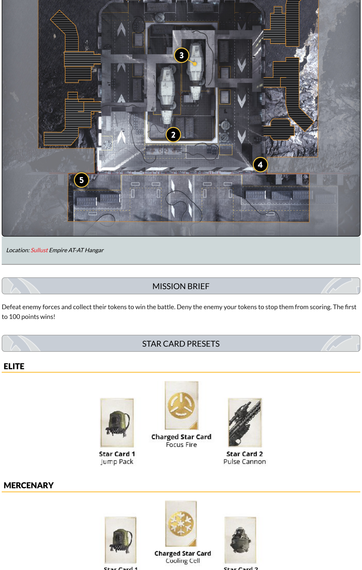

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Battle on Sullust

Location: Sullust Empire AT-AT Hangar

MISSION BRIEF

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

STAR CARD PRESETS

ELITE

Star Card 1
Jump Pack

Charged Star Card
Focus Fire

Star Card 2
Pulse Cannon

MERCENARY

Star Card 1
Jump Pack

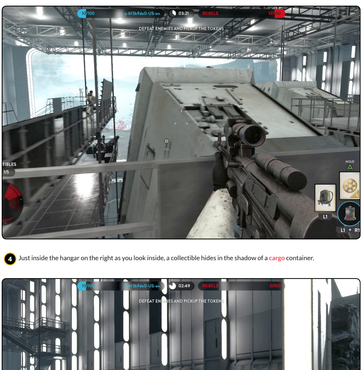

Charged Star Card
Cooling Cell

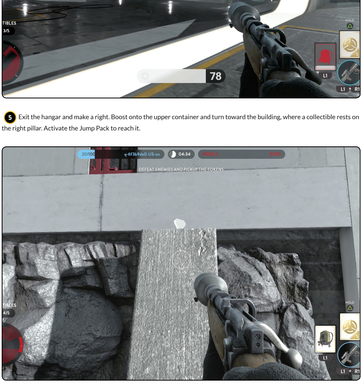

Star Card 2
Impact Grenade

COLLECTIBLES

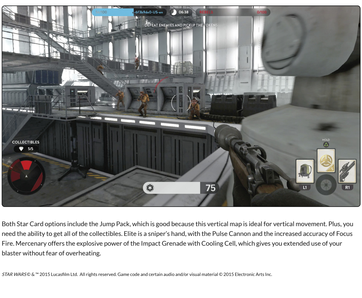

1 Enter the right doorway behind the AT-ATs, and grab the collectible that sits between the computers on the right.

2 Hop down into the AT-AT pit and search around the boxes in front of the left walker to find a collectible.

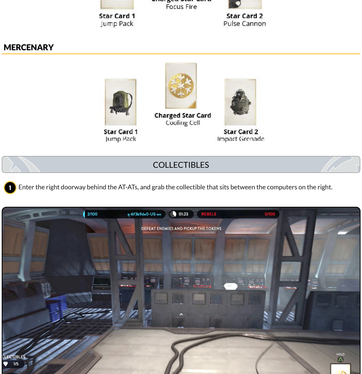

3 Climb to the top walkway and jump onto the back of the right AT-AT (from the perspective of someone looking into the hangar).

4 Just inside the hangar on the right as you look inside, a collectible hides in the shadow of a cargo container.

5 Exit the hangar and make a right. Boost onto the upper container and turn toward the building, where a collectible rests on the right pillar. Activate the Jump Pack to reach it.

A huge, four-story AT-AT hangar delivers some exciting vertical battles around the two walkers parked inside. Metal walkways surround the machines at every level, which means that attacks can come from anywhere; stay alert. Doors branch off the first three floors in nearly every direction, creating numerous locations to hide out in. Good marksmen have numerous sniper locations to choose from, with long sight lines.

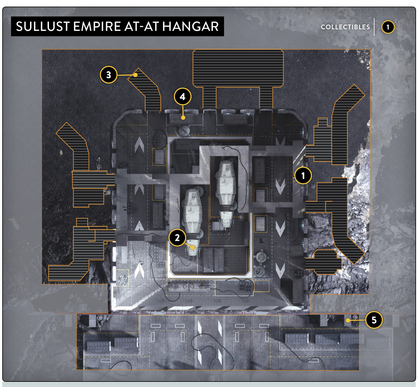

Both Star Card options include the Jump Pack, which is good because this vertical map is ideal for vertical movement. Plus, you need the ability to get all of the collectibles. Elite is a sniper's hand, with the Pulse Cannon and the increased accuracy of Focus Fire. Mercenary offers the explosive power of the Impact Grenade with Cooling Cell, which gives you extended use of your blaster without fear of overheating.

STAR WARS © ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battles

Hero Battle on Sullust

Location: Sullust Empire AT-AT Hangar

MISSION BRIEF

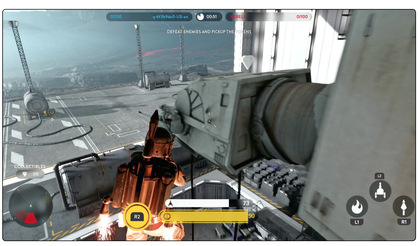

Defeat enemy forces and collect their tokens to win the battle. Deny the enemy your tokens to stop them from scoring. The first to 100 points wins!

COLLECTIBLES

1 The first collectible is visible in the mission intro. At the start, immediately turn around and grab the item.

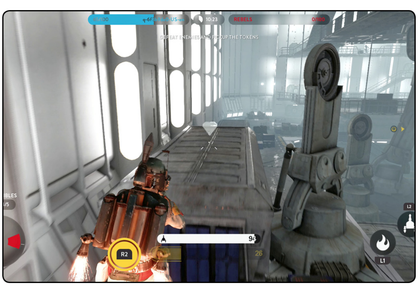

2 A collectible rests on the head of the left AT-AT (from the perspective of someone looking into the hangar). To get it, hop from the upper walkway or fly up there with Boba Fett's jetpack.

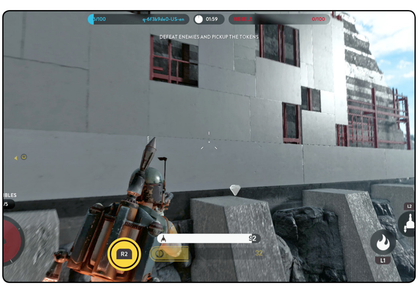

3 Enter the left door at the back of the hangar, and follow the corridor back to find a collectible.

4 Two containers are stacked against the back wall behind the left AT-AT. Boost to the top to grab a collectible.

5 Exit the hangar and make an immediate left. Fly up to the second pillar to grab the final collectible.

Boba Fett's ability to fly between the walkways makes him invaluable when fighting in the hangar. Furthermore, you need his jetpack to get all of the collectibles. The surrounding hallways are great for melee heroes, but most of the battles seem to take place inside the garage. Deadeyes can take position on an AT-AT as Princess Leia or Han Solo and pick off infantry as they climb their way up.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Star Wars Battlefront Game Advantage guide. Here you will find all the information you need to dominate the battlefield in Star Wars Battlefront.

GETTING STARTED

Difficulty	Customizable
Input	Controller or Keyboard/Mouse
Multiplayer	Controller Only (PS4) / Mouse and Keyboard Only (PC)
Accessibility	Customizable HUD Size and Opacity Options

TROOPERS

Class	Unlocked With Battle Points
Assault	Unlocked at Start
Officer	Unlocked at Level 5
Specialist	Unlocked at Level 10
Heavy	Unlocked at Level 15

DIFFICULTY

There are three difficulty levels to choose from in Star Wars Battlefront: Recruit, Trooper and Veteran. Recruit is the easiest difficulty level and is designed for players who are new to the Star Wars Battlefront series. Trooper is the medium difficulty level and is designed for players who have some experience with the Star Wars Battlefront series. Veteran is the hardest difficulty level and is designed for players who are experienced with the Star Wars Battlefront series.

WEAPON SELECTION

WEAPON STATS

DL-44
E-11
A-280
T-21
DH-17
E-5
DLT-19
A-180
Z-6
Thermal Detonator

STAR CARD HAND SELECTION

STAR CARDS

STAR CARD	TYPE	DESCRIPTION
Scrap		Throw these and gather the scrap that is left behind. Scrap can be used to call in Star Cards.
Blaster+		Increases the damage done by your blaster weapon. Can be upgraded to Blaster++ and Blaster+++.
Combat Drill		Reloading takes less time. Can be upgraded to Combat Drill+ and Combat Drill++.
Focus Fire		Hold down the ADS to steady for a focus shot.
Improved Sight		The sights are improved, allowing for more accurate shots. Can be upgraded to Improved Sight+ and Improved Sight++.
Iron Sights		Increases the damage done by your iron sights weapon. Can be upgraded to Iron Sights+ and Iron Sights++.
Jet Pack		Activate the Jet Pack to launch into the air. Can be upgraded to Jet Pack+ and Jet Pack++.
Jet Pack Regen		Jet Pack fuel regenerates faster. The more you upgrade, the faster it regenerates.
Leader		Your Star Card gives a bonus to your squad. The more you upgrade, the greater the bonus.
Leader Aura		Your Star Card gives a bonus to your squad. The more you upgrade, the greater the bonus.
Personal Shield		Activate your shield to protect yourself from damage.
Shield Regen		Your shield regenerates faster. The more you upgrade, the faster it regenerates.

HUD

LOCK

ADMIRAL ACKBAR

IMPERIAL FORCES

TROOPERS

TROOPER	SPECIAL ABILITY	DESCRIPTION
Assault Trooper	Thermal Detonator	Throw a thermal detonator that explodes after a short delay.
Shock Trooper	Electro Shock Grenade	Throw an electro shock grenade that disables enemy vehicles and droids.
Officer	Rally Point	Call in a rally point that gives a boost to your squad.
Officer	Ion Pulse Thermal Detonator	Throw an ion pulse thermal detonator that disables enemy vehicles and droids.
Specialist	Jet Pack	Activate your jet pack to launch into the air.
Heavy Trooper	Repeater Gun	Activate your repeater gun to fire a barrage of bullets.

HERO

BLUR

R-3X4

X-WING BLASTERS AND TURBOLASERS

DROP PODS

POWER UPS

POWER UP	DESCRIPTION
Ammo Station	Refill your ammo. Can be upgraded to Ammo Station+ and Ammo Station++.
Health Station	Heal your health. Can be upgraded to Health Station+ and Health Station++.
Health Pack	Heal your health. Can be upgraded to Health Pack+ and Health Pack++.
Ammo Pack	Refill your ammo. Can be upgraded to Ammo Pack+ and Ammo Pack++.
Supply Drop	Call in a supply drop that contains a random power up.

LIFE AND CHARGE PICK UPS

GENERAL TIPS AND STRATEGIES

COLLECTIBLES

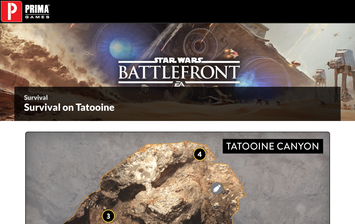

STARS

SURVIVOR

ON THE BALL

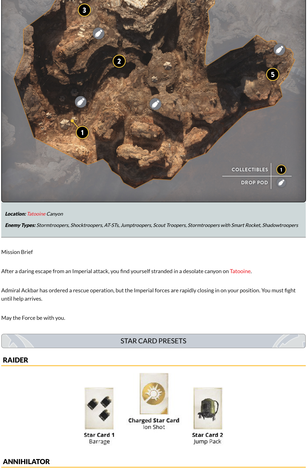

DOMINATE ELITE

Copyright © 2015 Game Advantage. All rights reserved.

Survival

Survival on Tatooine

Location: Tatooine Canyon

Enemy Types: Stormtroopers, Shocktroopers, AT-ST's, Jumptroopers, Scout Troopers, Stormtroopers with Smart Rocket, Shadowtroopers

Mission Brief

After a daring escape from an Imperial attack, you find yourself stranded in a desolate canyon on Tatooine.

Admiral Ackbar has ordered a rescue operation, but the Imperial forces are rapidly closing in on your position. You must fight until help arrives.

May the Force be with you.

STAR CARD PRESETS

RAIDER

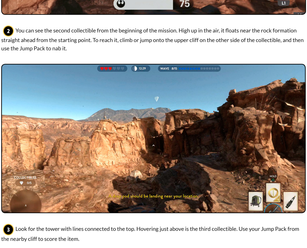

ANNIHILATOR

COLLECTIBLES

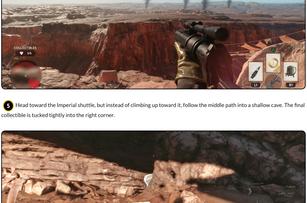

1 The first collectible hangs in the air, high above the huts where the mission begins. Get onto the second level of the cliffs on the left, and turn around. Boost off the rock, using the Jump Pack to reach it.

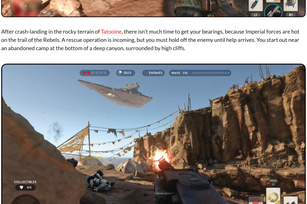

2 You can see the second collectible from the beginning of the mission. High up in the air, it floats near the rock formation straight ahead from the starting point. To reach it, climb or jump onto the upper cliff on the other side of the collectible, and then use the Jump Pack to nab it.

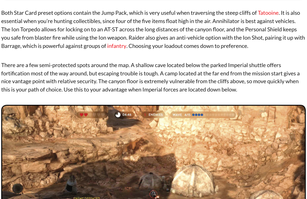

3 Look for the tower with lines connected to the top. Hovering just above is the third collectible. Use your Jump Pack from the nearby cliff to score the item.

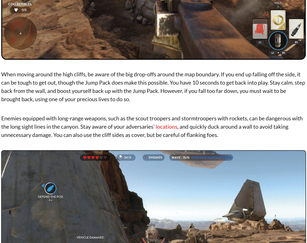

4 Find the high point on the far side of the map from the mission start, where tattered pieces of fabric hang from long lines of rope. Floating high above the low area between this point and the map boundary is another collectible. Fire the Jump Pack off the cliff toward the item to get it. Be careful that you do not fly off the map, or else you must wait for your Jump Pack to recharge so that you can get back up.

5 Head toward the Imperial shuttle, but instead of climbing up toward it, follow the middle path into a shallow cave. The final collectible is tucked tightly into the right corner.

After crash-landing in the rocky terrain of Tatooine, there isn't much time to get your bearings, because Imperial forces are hot on the trail of the Rebels. A rescue operation is incoming, but you must hold off the enemy until help arrives. You start out near an abandoned camp at the bottom of a deep canyon, surrounded by high cliffs.

Both Star Card preset options contain the Jump Pack, which is very useful when traversing the steep cliffs of Tatooine. It is also essential when you're hunting collectibles, since four of the five items float high in the air. Annihilator is best against vehicles. The Ion Torpedo allows for locking on to an AT-ST across the long distances of the canyon floor, and the Personal Shield keeps you safe from blaster fire while using the Ion weapon. Raider also gives an anti-vehicle option with the Ion Shot, pairing it up with Barrage, which is powerful against groups of infantry. Choosing your loadout comes down to preference.

There are a few semi-protected spots around the map. A shallow cave located below the parked Imperial shuttle offers fortification most of the way around, but escaping trouble is tough. A camp located at the far end from the mission start gives a nice vantage point with relative security. The canyon floor is extremely vulnerable from the cliffs above, so move quickly when this is your path of choice. Use this to your advantage when Imperial forces are located down below.

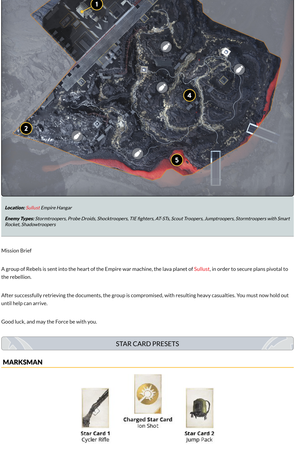

When moving around the high cliffs, be aware of the big drop-offs around the map boundary. If you end up falling off the side, it can be tough to get out, though the Jump Pack does make this possible. You have 10 seconds to get back into play. Stay calm, step back from the wall, and boost yourself back up with the Jump Pack. However, if you fall too far down, you must wait to be brought back, using one of your precious lives to do so.

Enemies equipped with long-range weapons, such as the scout troopers and stormtroopers with rockets, can be dangerous with the long sight lines in the canyon. Stay aware of your adversaries' locations, and quickly duck around a wall to avoid taking unnecessary damage. You can also use the cliff sides as cover, but be careful of flanking foes.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Survival

Survival on Sullust

Location: Sullust Empire Hangar

Enemy Types: Stormtroopers, Probe Droids, Shocktroopers, TIE fighters, AT-STs, Scout Troopers, Jumptroopers, Stormtroopers with Smart Rocket, Shadowtroopers

Mission Brief

A group of Rebels is sent into the heart of the Empire war machine, the lava planet of Sullust, in order to secure plans pivotal to the rebellion.

After successfully retrieving the documents, the group is compromised, with resulting heavy casualties. You must now hold out until help can arrive.

Good luck, and may the Force be with you.

STAR CARD PRESETS

MARKSMAN

Star Card 1
Cycler Rifle

Charged Star Card
Ion Shot

Star Card 2
Jump Pack

SOLDIER

Star Card 1
Ion Torpedo

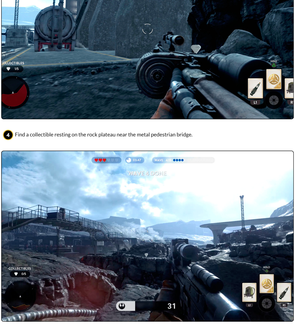

Charged Star Card
Focus Fire

Star Card 2
Jump Pack

COLLECTIBLES

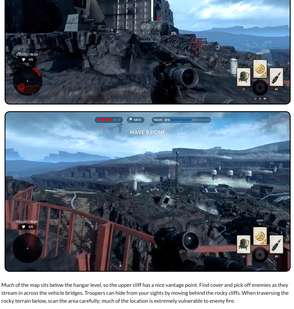

1 Inside the hangar, get on top of the Imperial shuttle, either by using a Jump Pack or the nearby steps. Just inside the right wing is a collectible.

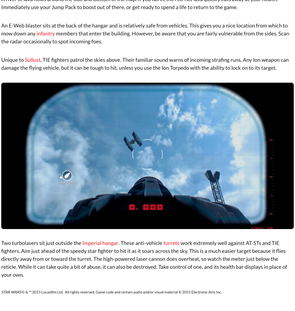

2 As you look at the hangar, move to the far left side. A collectible rests against the uppermost cliff, on the same level as the hangar.

3 As you look at the hangar doorway, go right past a big tank, and search on the far side of the last concrete pillar.

4 Find a collectible resting on the rock plateau near the metal pedestrian bridge.

5 You must use a Jump Pack to reach this one, floating high above a lava pit to the right of the vehicle bridges. Aim your jump well so that you do not end up in the lava.

The planet of Sullust is comprised of sheets of lava rock, separated by narrow valleys and streams of hot lava. The map is made up of various levels that lead up to a big hangar containing an Imperial shuttle. Bridges and steps connect many of the tiers.

The Sullust Star Card options both include the Jump Pack, which is required to reach one of the collectibles. This also allows for easier movement around the planet's multi-leveled, rocky surface. Picking a preset comes down to preference. The Cycler Rifle gives you an occasional one-hit kill, shield-penetrating shot, while Focus Fire gives you improved accuracy—great when fighting distant foes from the upper cliff. The Ion Torpedo is the best option for dealing with the TIE fighters and can also be devastating against the AT-STs.

Much of the map sits below the hangar level, so the upper cliff has a nice vantage point. Find cover and pick off enemies as they stream in across the vehicle bridges. Troopers can hide from your sights by moving behind the rocky cliffs. When traversing the rocky terrain below, scan the area carefully; much of the location is extremely vulnerable to enemy fire.

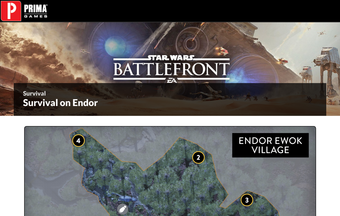

A river of lava flows around the side and bottom of the map. If you fall in, the red-hot lava quickly eats away at your health. Immediately use your Jump Pack to boost out of there, or get ready to spend a life to return to the game.

An E-Web blaster sits at the back of the hangar and is relatively safe from vehicles. This gives you a nice location from which to mow down any infantry members that enter the building. However, be aware that you are fairly vulnerable from the sides. Scan the radar occasionally to spot incoming foes.

Unique to Sullust, TIE fighters patrol the skies above. Their familiar sound warns of incoming strafing runs. Any Ion weapon can damage the flying vehicle, but it can be tough to hit, unless you use the Ion Torpedo with the ability to lock on to its target.

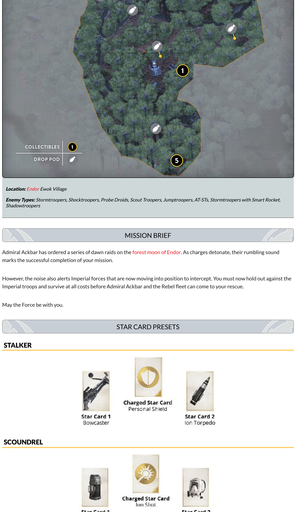

Two turbolasers sit just outside the Imperial hangar. These anti-vehicle turrets work extremely well against AT-STs and TIE fighters. Aim just ahead of the speedy star fighter to hit it as it soars across the sky. This is a much easier target because it flies directly away from or toward the turret. The high-powered laser cannon does overheat, so watch the meter just below the reticle. While it can take quite a bit of abuse, it can also be destroyed. Take control of one, and its health bar displays in place of your own.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Survival

Survival on Endor

Location: Endor Ewok Village

Enemy Types: Stormtroopers, Shocktroopers, Probe Droids, Scout Troopers, Jumptroopers, AT-STs, Stormtroopers with Smart Rocket, Shadowtrooper

MISSION BRIEF

Admiral Ackbar has ordered a series of dawn raids on the forest moon of Endor. As charges detonate, their rumbling sound marks the successful completion of your mission.

However, the noise also alerts Imperial forces that are now moving into position to intercept. You must now hold out against the Imperial troops and survive at all costs before Admiral Ackbar and the Rebel fleet can come to your rescue.

May the Force be with you.

STAR CARD PRESETS

STALKER

Star Card 1
Bowcaster

Charged Star Card
Personal Shield

Star Card 2
Ion Torpedo

SCOUNDREL

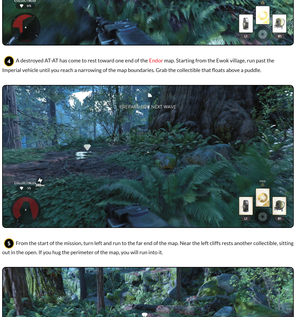

Star Card 1
Ion Grenade

Charged Star Card
Ion Shot

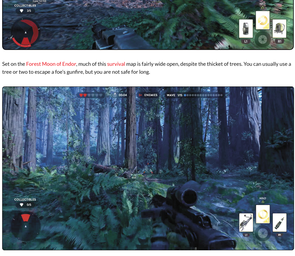

Star Card 2
Jump Pack

COLLECTIBLES

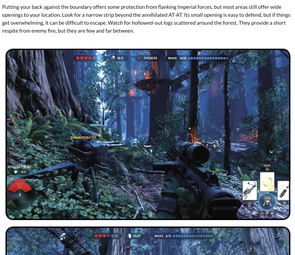

1 From the start, turn around and move up the hill past the sabotaged Imperial base and shuttle. Search behind the tree just beyond the tanks to find the first collectible.

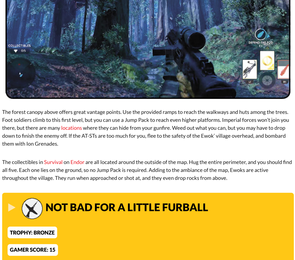

2 Turn right from the start of the mission, and move under the Ewok village. Continue to the cliffs ahead to find a collectible sitting in a small clearing.

3 Turn right from the start of the mission, and move underneath the Ewok village. Head right to the cliff boundary, where another collectible sits in a clearing next to the outside of the map.

4 A destroyed AT-AT has come to rest toward one end of the Endor map. Starting from the Ewok village, run past the Imperial vehicle until you reach a narrowing of the map boundaries. Grab the collectible that floats above a puddle.

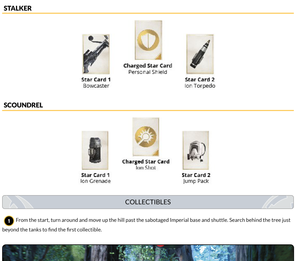

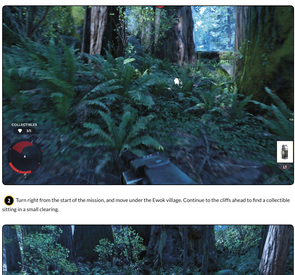

5 From the start of the mission, turn left and run to the far end of the map. Near the left cliffs rests another collectible, sitting out in the open. If you hug the perimeter of the map, you will run into it.

Set on the Forest Moon of Endor, much of this survival map is fairly wide open, despite the thicket of trees. You can usually use a tree or two to escape a foe's gunfire, but you are not safe for long.

The two Star Card Hands play quite differently, but they both offer up vehicle-ready firepower. Stalker's Ion Torpedo allows you to lock on to AT-STs at a distance. The Bowcaster works well in the wider openings of the forest against a line of approaching troopers, and the Personal Shield is great for protection as you charge the bolt launcher. Scoundrel provides two Ion weapons for use against the AT-STs and Probe Droids. You don't need the Jump Pack to get the collectibles, but it does allow access to the higher platforms in the Ewok village.

Putting your back against the boundary offers some protection from flanking Imperial forces, but most areas still offer wide openings to your location. Look for a narrow strip beyond the annihilated AT-AT. Its small opening is easy to defend, but if things get overwhelming, it can be difficult to escape. Watch for hollowed-out logs scattered around the forest. They provide a short respite from enemy fire, but they are few and far between.

The forest canopy above offers great vantage points. Use the provided ramps to reach the walkways and huts among the trees. Foot soldiers climb to this first level, but you can use a Jump Pack to reach even higher platforms. Imperial forces won't join you there, but there are many locations where they can hide from your gunfire. Weed out what you can, but you may have to drop down to finish the enemy off. If the AT-STs are too much for you, flee to the safety of the Ewok' village overhead, and bombard them with Ion Grenades.

The collectibles in Survival on Endor are all located around the outside of the map. Hug the entire perimeter, and you should find all five. Each one lies on the ground, so no Jump Pack is required. Adding to the ambiance of the map, Ewoks are active throughout the village. They run when approached or shot at, and they even drop rocks from above.

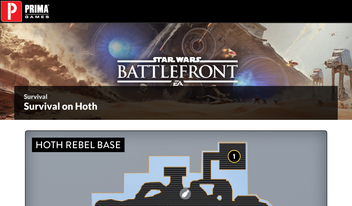

NOT BAD FOR A LITTLE FURBALL

TROPHY: BRONZE

GAMER SCORE: 15

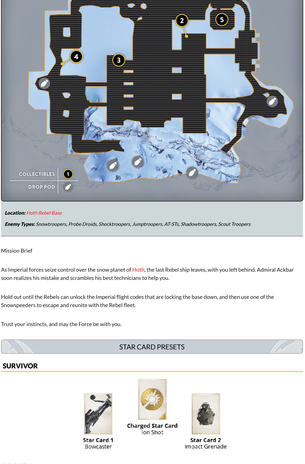

Get hit in the head by a rock from an Ewok on Endor. Spend enough time underneath the Ewok village, and an Ewok eventually hits you.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Survival

Survival on Hoth

Location: Hoth Rebel Base

Enemy Types: Snowtroopers, Probe Droids, Shocktroopers, Jumptroopers, AT-STs, Shadowtroopers, Scout Troopers

Mission Brief

As Imperial forces seize control over the snow planet of Hoth, the last Rebel ship leaves, with you left behind. Admiral Ackbar soon realizes his mistake and scrambles his best technicians to help you.

Hold out until the Rebels can unlock the Imperial flight codes that are locking the base down, and then use one of the Snowspeeders to escape and reunite with the Rebel fleet.

Trust your instincts, and may the Force be with you.

STAR CARD PRESETS

SURVIVOR

Star Card 1
Bowcaster

Charged Star Card
Ion Shot

Star Card 2
Impact Grenade

ROGUE

Star Card 1
Barrage

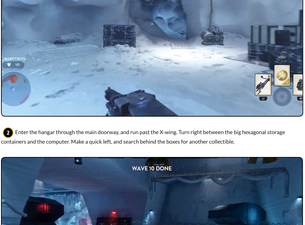

Charged Star Card
Cooling Cell

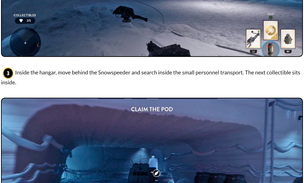

Star Card 2
Thermal Detonator

COLLECTIBLES

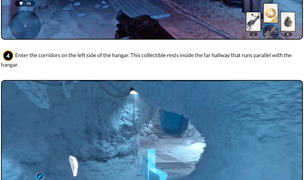

1 From the start of the mission, turn around and enter the doorway in the back corner of the hangar. Follow the corridor back to a dead end to find the first collectible.

2 Enter the hangar through the main doorway, and run past the X-wing. Turn right between the big hexagonal storage containers and the computer. Make a quick left, and search behind the boxes for another collectible.

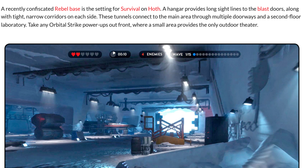

3 Inside the hangar, move behind the Snowspeeder and search inside the small personnel transport. The next collectible sits inside.

4 Enter the corridors on the left side of the hangar. This collectible rests inside the far hallway that runs parallel with the hangar.

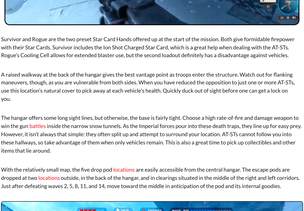

5 From inside the hangar, head upstairs and enter the right door. Continue into the laboratory on the right to find a collectible.

A recently confiscated Rebel base is the setting for Survival on Hoth. A hangar provides long sight lines to the blast doors, along with tight, narrow corridors on each side. These tunnels connect to the main area through multiple doorways and a second-floor laboratory. Take any Orbital Strike power-ups out front, where a small area provides the only outdoor theater.

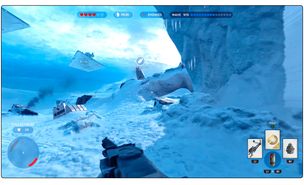

Survivor and Rogue are the two preset Star Card Hands offered up at the start of the mission. Both give formidable firepower with their Star Cards. Survivor includes the Ion Shot Charged Star Card, which is a great help when dealing with the AT-STs. Rogue's Cooling Cell allows for extended blaster use, but the second loadout definitely has a disadvantage against vehicles.

A raised walkway at the back of the hangar gives the best vantage point as troops enter the structure. Watch out for flanking maneuvers, though, as you are vulnerable from both sides. When you have reduced the opposition to just one or more AT-STs, use this location's natural cover to pick away at each vehicle's health. Quickly duck out of sight before one can get a lock on you.

The hangar offers some long sight lines, but otherwise, the base is fairly tight. Choose a high rate-of-fire and damage weapon to win the gun battles inside the narrow snow tunnels. As the Imperial forces pour into these death traps, they line up for easy prey. However, it isn't always that simple: they often split up and attempt to surround your location. AT-STs cannot follow you into these hallways, so take advantage of them when only vehicles remain. This is also a great time to pick up collectibles and other items that lie around.

With the relatively small map, the five drop pod locations are easily accessible from the central hangar. The escape pods are dropped at two locations outside, in the back of the hangar, and in clearings situated in the middle of the right and left corridors. Just after defeating waves 2, 5, 8, 11, and 14, move toward the middle in anticipation of the pod and its internal goodies.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Introduction

There are nine game modes in Star Wars Battlefront, and they all have different features and requirements for victory. You can occupy the many places in the Star Wars galaxy via Supremacy, Walker Assault, Blast, Drop Zone, Droid Run, Cargo, Hero Hunt, Heroes Vs. Villains, and Fighter Squadron. Use the strategies, tips, and specific methodology outlined below to overthrow the Empire or crush the Rebel scum.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Supremacy

Experience intense frontline combat over control points.

Rebels and stormtroopers fight to capture and hold strategic locations on the planet. The frontline moves back and forth as these control points shift hands. To win, one side must claim all enemy control points.

OBJECTIVES

Capture the enemy control point to push them back.

Defend your own control point from being captured.

Capture all control points to win the game.

OVERVIEW

In Supremacy, the name says it all: the goal of this game mode is to show which team can dominate the other by pushing opponents all the way back to their own ship. Each match begins with a single neutral control point in the centermost position of each map that is completely up for grabs. The first challenge for each team is to take this control point. Once the center control point is taken, the opposing team is pushed back, and the next control point becomes available for capture. At this point, the game is similar to tug-of-war because there can only be one available control point for each team. Once you capture a forward control point from your adversary, a friendly control point becomes locked. After a team captures a control point, there is a short "push forward" period that gives each team a chance to move to the next area of the map and capture the next point. During this time, all the pick-ups disappear, only to reappear in the new area. To claim your victory, push the enemy back to their own ship and control every point on the battlefield.

SUPREMACY TACTICS

Because Supremacy only takes place on the larger sections of each planet, use the blasters with mid- to long-range capabilities, such as the T-21. Being able to defend your team's control point from a distance gives you a better scope of the rest of the battlefield while you can remain out of sight.

Equipping the Jump Pack Star Card grants you incredible mobility and allows you to return to your active control point before your opponent has the chance to fully take it. The Jump Pack also gives you the ability to immediately get back in the fight, preventing the opposing team from moving in on your territory if you are killed across enemy lines.

Drop Infantry Turrets on your friendly control point to slow the enemy's advance on your territory, giving you and your squad a chance to get back and save the point. Don't rely on the Infantry Turret to protect the control point completely, as it is very limited. Instead, use it as an aid for buying you a little more time.

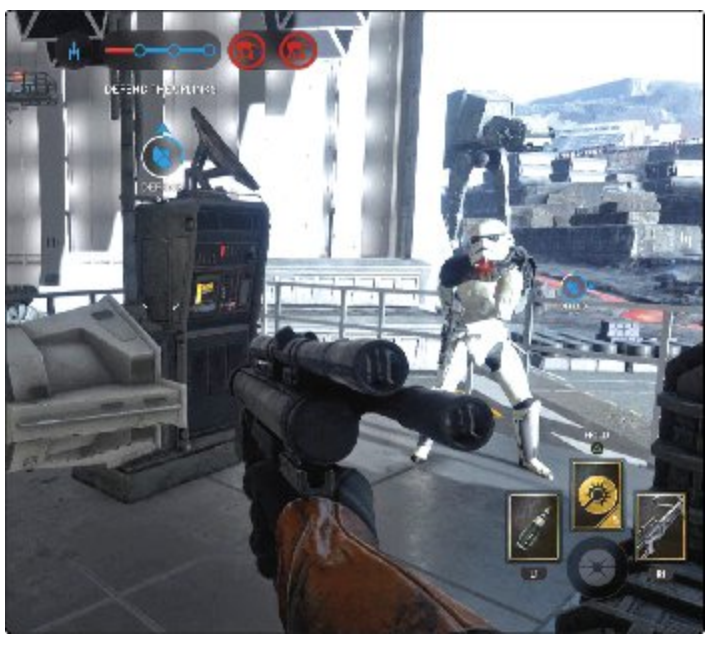

Communicate with your teammates to let them know when either point is being taken. This can mean the difference between the movement of the battle zone. If your team calls out any enemies near your control point, but you happen to be located near your foes' point, do everything you can to get inside. If adversaries are capturing your control point, it will not matter if you capture theirs first.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Walker Assault

Battle over the massive AT-ATs in this mobile attack and defend game.

The Empire has deployed formidable AT-ATs to wipe out the Rebel resistance once and for all. To combat this powerful threat, the Rebels have hidden away multiple uplinks that must be defended at all costs. These uplinks can call in Y-wings from the galaxy to bomb the AT-ATs. It is only during the bombing raid that the AT-ATs can be damaged.

If one or more AT-ATs reach their destination, the Empire wins. If all AT-ATs are destroyed, victory belongs to the Rebels.

OBJECTIVES

Empire: Keep uplinks offline to stop the Rebel bombing raids.

Rebels: Keep uplinks active to add more Y-wings to the bombing raid.

Empire: Defend the AT-ATs from Rebel attacks during bombing raids.

Rebels: Attack the AT-ATs during the raid to destroy them.

Empire: If the AT-ATs survive, you win.

Rebels: Destroy all AT-ATs to win.

OVERVIEW

The concept of Walker Assault is simple: the Empire must safely protect the AT-AT walkers traveling past the three uplink checkpoints, or the Rebel forces must destroy all walkers present on the planet. The way that each side accomplishes its goal is the complex piece that requires both teamwork and a little bit of situational luck. Walker Assault takes place in the largest sections of each planet, which means that there is plenty of room to roam and a lot of area to cover. Work side by side with your partner and in coordination with the rest of your team to cover as much land as possible. There are only two stages in Walker Assault, but these two stages cycle through three whole sections of each map. The first stage is the uplink stage. The Rebels must attempt to activate one or both of the uplinks for the longest possible time, while the Imperial stormtroopers work to prevent the uplinks from being activated. The longer the uplinks are activated, the more Y-wings are called in during the walker stage. During the walker stage, Y-wings enter the battlefield and fire disabling bombs on the AT-ATs, leaving them vulnerable as long as the Y-wings keep coming.

WALKER ASSAULT TACTICS

The more Y-wings that are called into the battlefield, the longer each AT-AT walker stays vulnerable. However, just because they are vulnerable does not necessarily mean that they will be damaged. The match is determined by both phases in Walker Assault, so even if five Y-wings are called in, the Empire still has a chance to fend off all attacking Rebels. When playing on the Empire side during the walker stage, take your focus off of the uplinks. Patrol the perimeter of each AT-AT to prevent Rebels from firing on your walker.

During the walker phase, use the Snowspeeders or Landspeeders to wrap up either AT-AT with the TOW-cable. Keep in mind that you only have as much time as the walkers are vulnerable to trip each walker, so start the process early. The timing for when the walkers go into their vulnerable stage does not change, so jump into a speeder before the stage starts to give yourself as much time as possible. When attacking the AT-ATs aim all of your fire at the belly of the walker, this is the weak spot and shooting this area will cause much more than normal amounts of damage to it.

Time is of the utmost importance to the Rebel troops. There is a finite time in the match, let alone between the stages of the mode. Due to the interest of time, Rebel troopers become expendable. It is smart to coordinate with your team to charge uplinks and attack them in groups or from multiple sides simultaneously. However, do not waste time waiting for your team to come from the deployment area. It may be beneficial just to try your luck and see if you can take an uplink by yourself for at least a few seconds. If your team is coming from the deployment area, by the time you are found and killed after activating the uplink, they might be able to defend any stormtroopers attempting to undo your hard work.

AT-ST walkers have much less armor on the back side of the vehicle, so shooting it from behind will take it down much faster than taking it head on.

▼ BLIND TIME

Using Smoke Grenades can buy you those precious few seconds while either activating or deactivating an uplink; toss them liberally.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Fighter Squadron

Thrilling air battles await you in this starfighters-only game mode.

Keep an eye out for enemy transport ships that periodically attempt to take off from the planet's surface and escape the battle. To earn bonus points for your team, destroy your opponent's transport ship before it escapes.

OBJECTIVES

Attack the enemy troop transports.

Defend your troop transports.

The side that takes out the most enemy ships wins.

OVERVIEW

Take the fight to the sky with Fighter Squadron. The objective of this game mode is to take out as many ships as you can and destroy the enemy transport ship when given the opportunity. Don't ignore your friendly ship when your team's troops are being transported, as they are worth the most amount of points. You can defeat ships with the X-wing, A-wing, TIE fighter, TIE interceptor, and (naturally) the Millennium Falcon and Slave I. Use these ships to dogfight your adversaries as well as the bots that occupy the sky. Focus strongly on taking out enemy players, as they are worth more points for your team than bots, though the true value is in the transport ships.

FIGHTER SQUADRON TACTICS

Shooting down bots is good for racking up quick points because they are easy to kill, but it takes three bots to equal the amount of points you receive for killing an enemy player. Take down your targets as quickly as possible to rack up points in between transport phases. This gives your team a boost going into the phases, making victory much easier to achieve.

Transport ships are by far the most important part of Fighter Squadron. A single transport takedown rewards your team with 10 times the score that a single enemy player defeat would grant you. With enough fighters, the transports should go down rather quickly, but it's important to get to them as rapidly as possible. You can bet there will be defenses inbound fast. TIE fighters are much faster than the Rebel starfighters, but the Rebels can take a little more of a beating with their shield bonus. Use this tactic when attacking or defending the transports.

There are many tokens in the center of the map, normally at low altitudes to create a bit of a challenge when you attempt to collect them. There are Repair tokens, Refresh tokens that refresh your ship's power-ups, and (most importantly) one Hero token that spawns the collector in that team's hero ship when collected. Whether it be Han Solo and Chewbacca in the Millennium Falcon or Boba Fett in the Slave I, having a hero on the battlefield more than benefits your team. Use these hero ships to take down the transport ships exponentially faster, pushing your team even closer to victory.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Blast

Blast is a classic battle to the death without objectives. The first team to score 100 points or score the most kills at the end of the time limit wins.

OBJECTIVES

Defeat the enemy.

The side that takes out the most enemies wins.

OVERVIEW

In Blast, you are faced with no outside problems besides navigating the terrain and battling your enemies head to head. The biggest challenge in playing Blast is choosing your loadout and which Star Cards you should bring with you. Each map is very different, making the decision between changing Star Cards a strategic one. Take your time, and choose wisely. The first team to reach 100 points or the side with the highest score by the end of the time limit is the winner. Keep this in mind before rushing into places you where are most definitely not going to succeed.

BLAST TACTICS

Use the partner system to its fullest and stick with your partner as often as possible. There is no greater strength then having a wingman by your side when charging into any situation. Because you can deploy on your partner, stay aware of his or her health. If your partner goes down, you might want to take cover. If you take cover long enough and your partner deploys back where you're located, you have another chance to take the position you had just attempted.

Picking your blaster is one of the more important choices you must make before the match starts. Every map is a little different, which makes this decision incredibly tactical. Locations like the Imperial Station on Endor or the Rebel Base on Hoth may require short-range weapons like the CA-87 and SE-14C to take down your opponents. In the bigger locations like Jawa Refuge or the Sulphur Fields, you should use blasters like the T-21 to fire at long range without losing too much accuracy and deal a high amount of damage per bolt.

Your blaster is incredibly important, but it must be accompanied by Star Cards, including Asset, Charge, and Trait Cards. The Explosive Shot Charged Star Card is normally a great default choice when you can't think of any other card that might benefit you more. This card carries a set amount of charges until you purchase more or collect some on the battlefield. It also charges your blaster bolts with explosive AOE damage that is great for outnumbered situations where you can't shoot two enemies at once. Don't forget about using the Jump Pack or Personal Shield to even out an unfair battle.

Use cover whenever possible, as there is some on every map. Cover can not only be an incredible asset but might also make a difference by helping you win a match based on a single death or kill.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Drop Zone

This fast-paced, action-packed mode assigns a single objective: gain control of the drop pods that fall from the sky. Claim a drop pod and earn valuable resources for your team.

OBJECTIVES

Activate the drop pod to start claiming it.

Defend the drop pod while it is being claimed.

The side that claims the most drop pods wins.

OVERVIEW

Drop Zone is the ultimate test of strength and domination of any one point on any map. The objective for Drop Zone is to take control of a drop pod in a given location. The twist is that the location where these drop pods will actually fall can be virtually anywhere on the maps this mode is playable on, and that area is always random. The best way to play this mode is to always keep moving and never stand still for too long. This technique both keeps you safe from attackers who remember where you were when you killed them and leaves you ready to move when the next pod drops. Once the pod has dropped from the sky, your next move is to actually claim the pod by pressing the Action button directly on it. When you're capturing, you must wait for a timer, which leaves you vulnerable for a short amount of time. Once that timer is finished, a much longer timer starts (the capture timer). You must protect that drop pod until the timer is fully expired before you can claim the loot that dispenses from it. The goal is to capture five different pods for your team in order to win the match.

DROP ZONE TACTICS

The drop pod's randomized location means that you must always stay frosty and keep on your toes; at any moment, the drop pod could be found in any direction. The pods don't always drop one after the other, either. It's possible that if a single drop pod is not claimed after a certain amount of time, another will drop, leaving two unclaimed drop pods available at once.

Sometimes the easiest way to capture a pod is to lock down the location it has dropped in before you even attempt to activate it. Communicate with your team, and set up a perimeter around the drop pod before activating it to ensure that you can protect it with full force. However, you should read the situation because sometimes the pressure is so constant that you may not be able to lock down the area first. You might need to constantly filter in friendly reinforcements. Assess what's happening, as every team is different.

Once a drop pod has been captured, beware that anyone (truly anyone) can claim the loot that has dropped from it. If you are the only one around the captured pod, try picking them up and use every power-up, if only to prevent the enemy from having access to them.

Using Star Cards like the Squad Shield or Personal Shield can give you those extra few seconds of survivability it takes to activate the drop pod for your team. This helps in hot situations and can even turn the tide for your team. If the other team is very close to capturing a pod, your activation will reset the timer.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Droid Run

The fast-paced action here involves three moving objectives: droids. Interact with a droid to begin the capture process, and then defend your droid to prevent the enemy from stealing it back.

OBJECTIVES

Activate the droids to start claiming them.

Defend the droids as they are being claimed.

The side that claims all three droids wins.

OVERVIEW

Droid Run is a balance between greed and tactics. To win a Droid Run match, you must claim all three droids. Greed can be a virtue, encouraging you to take risks in order to win, but it can also cost you the match if you are not careful. The three droids are located fairly symmetrically around the map, and it takes a good amount of communication and an aggressive attitude to finish the match with a victory. All three droids roam around a very specific location, but you must remember that they still roam. This can place them in very different strategic areas depending on where they have wandered.

DROID RUN TACTICS

The droids roam around the area where they are located, which can be both good and bad for you as you try to defend or capture them. There are times when they will be in more cover than normal, which are usually the best times to take them. However, this isn't the best way to take them if you have to wait for it.

Be greedy, but be smart about it. Sometimes going after that last droid could mean the win for your team. If you have a strong suspicion that the enemy is not anywhere near capturing either of your other droids, you might as well go for it. The worst that could happen is that you get killed and redeploy closer to your friendly droids.

Using the Star Card Jump Pack allows you ultimate mobility. As long as you have Jump Pack available, you can attack your opponent or unclaimed droids without fear of returning to your droids in time. The Jump Pack will not get you all the way back to your friendly droid if you are directly next to another one, but you can still close a great distance with the Jump Pack. Another Jump Pack tactic on Droid Run is using it to get a vantage point on the battlefield. This makes it easier for you to call out enemy movements to your teammates and help to protect your already claimed droids.

After a droid has been captured, it can be captured right back just as easily. This can hinder your progress if you are being greedy and pursuing the other droids. Beware of this situation, and make sure that if you are going to get greedy, your team is there to back you up.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Cargo

Run and gun while stealing cargo from the enemy and preventing your own cargo from being captured.

OBJECTIVES

Bring the enemy cargo to your base.

Defend your cargo from the enemy.

The side with the most cargo in the end wins.

OVERVIEW

Cargo is similar to an average capture the flag game, but it is slightly more complex. Yes, the point of this game mode is to capture the enemy's cargo and bring it back to your base, but every time your team or the other steals a piece of cargo, they are literally doing just that. When a piece of cargo is stolen from your base, you lose that cargo piece until it is returned. Although the first team to collect 10 pieces of cargo is the winner, each team starts with five. There is a finite amount of cargo on the battlefield, so this game is similar to capture the flag, but it is also a game of tug-of-war.

CARGO TACTICS

There are two general tactics to playing Cargo on any map, and the first one is the run and gun tactic. Run and gun is literally just that: it is your job to attack the enemy base, do everything possible to take the cargo, and bring the cargo back to your team's base. You can do this in many ways, but one of the more favorable strategies is running around the outside perimeter of the map, avoiding any of the major action that may create a challenge for you.

The other general strategy is a strong defense, or camping method, as your victims may claim. One of the best defenses in Star Wars Battlefront is not finding one great spot from which to sit and take out enemies, but finding several that you can rotate through to watch multiple angles and avoid getting flanked by incoming foes. Of course, it is much easier to defend a location if you have friends helping you. This is a great opportunity to use the partner system and decide that you want your duo to stick strictly to defense. With the right communication, your defense can become impenetrable.

When running with the cargo, remember that you cannot use a Jump Pack to launch yourself forward, as you are too heavy. The Jump Pack is a great asset to use in Cargo for making it to the other team's base or protecting your friendly cargo carrier, but as soon as you have the cargo, you are forced to run all the way back.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Hero Hunt

A single hero is up against a squad of enemies. The hero player is chosen randomly, but all players get a chance to be the hero during a match. Whoever has the most kills at the end of the time limit wins the game.

OBJECTIVES

Defeat the hero to become the hero.

Whoever defeats the most enemies wins.

OVERVIEW

Hero Hunt is one of the most unique modes in Star Wars Battlefront because it pits a team of hunters (whether they be stormtroopers or Rebel troopers) against a single hero character that includes both heroes and villains, depending on the planet. The hero character will play Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, or Leia Organa when playing on Tatooine and Hoth, or Darth Vader, Emperor Palpatine, or Boba Fett on Endor and Sullust. Each player can play a hero character while the troopers attempt to hunt them down. Hero Hunt becomes a test to see how vulnerable the heroes and villains of the Star Wars universe actually are.

HERO HUNT TACTICS

Playing as the hero means playing to that character's strengths. You don't know which hero you will be controlling when you become the hero character, but once you find out, it becomes your job to adjust. Melee characters should stick to close-quarters situations, while blaster-type characters might play the outdoors a little more.

Troopers are the hunters, and even though you want to get the kill so you can become the hero, you still must work with your team. Most hero characters need to be ambushed either from a distance or right around the corner and played to their weakness. Generally, explosives are most likely to damage hero characters. Most can either escape blaster fire or deflect it right back at you, which could mean your death.

Use items like Seeker Shot to take the hero character on from a distance, while keeping you as safe as possible. If you want to survive the battle, fire and expend with Seeker Shot and all weapons in general. Without a doubt, you are at a disadvantage, even when outnumbering the hero character. Staying on the move helps keep your survival rate up, giving you more chances to down the hero character.

As the hero character, a good team of hunters will attempt to ambush you. Luckily, almost every hero character has an ability that can be used to escape dire situations. Don't be afraid to attack head-on, but read the situation and escape if necessary.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Multiplayer Game Modes

Heroes Vs. Villains

In this round-based combat mode, all heroes battle each other, with their teammates as backup. Three players from each side are randomly chosen as heroes; dying causes them to respawn as normal soldiers. Eliminate all enemy heroes to win the round.

OBJECTIVES

Defeat the villains.

Protect your heroes.

The side that takes the most rounds wins.

OVERVIEW

In Heroes Vs. Villains, the most powerful beings in the galaxy face off on the battlefield with the aid of their trooper teammates. Each team has three hero characters and three troopers until the hero characters are killed. After they die, they redeploy as troopers. The objective is to keep at least one of the heroes or villains on your team alive while you take out the three opposing heroes. Do everything in your power to keep your team's heroes alive, and take your opposition on in match-ups that should statistically work in your favor.

HEROES VS. VILLAINS TACTICS

Because of the power behind each individual hero and villain, this game mode is mostly about match-ups. Some heroes can easily take on a specific villain but get destroyed by the others. There are ways around this, but that depends on how comfortable you are with the character you are controlling.

In most situations, Han Solo and Boba Fett are evenly matched. However, head to head with Emperor Palpatine may skew in favor of Han. Emperor Palpatine fares rather well against Luke Skywalker because his Force Lightning deals a constant amount of damage that Luke cannot block. Take each match-up very seriously—every movement and every head-to-head combat sequence matters.

Do whatever it takes to avoid engaging in a two-on-one situation, especially if Princess Leia or Emperor Palpatine is part of that two-person squad. Both Leia and Palpatine are primarily support characters and can directly aid any characters nearby. Not only does grouping with another hero or villain help Leia's and Palpatine's effectiveness, but gathering their troopers can create a formidable squad. Each character can drop supplies for their teammates and protect them with the Enhanced Squad Shield or a Chain Lightning blast to throw the enemy off balance.

Troopers are expendable in this game mode, so don't be afraid to sacrifice yourself if it helps protect your friendly hero. In the same vein, don't get sucked into a trap where you are drawn to a trooper when a hero character is waiting to attack you.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Tatooine
Overview

The desert world of Tatooine, the home planet of Luke Skywalker, is a vast place full of sand and crawling with some of the lowest of low criminals and smugglers. Covered in both sand and large rock formations, Tatooine is a planet that can betray even the most careful of explorers if they are not fully prepared. The planet orbits two suns, Tatoo I and Tatoo II, making for an extremely bright and hot surface. While it is livable, Tatooine is not a place of comfort. Additionally, the indigenous beings known as Jawas and the Tusken Raiders, are not exactly the most friendly. Watch your back at all times, and keep your head on a swivel—you can consider relatively everything deadly, leaving a small chance of survival.

Known for having caves and a small amount of huts for you to hide inside, Tatooine is primarily a planet played outdoors. This forces you to act quickly and find cover in a moment's notice before you get shot. This desert planet contains four multiplayer locations, all of which are extremely bright and hot even after the suns have set. Each location has its own tactical advantage, whether it's using vertical movement to get over and around your opponent in the Jawa Refuge or employing the Rebel transport's underbelly to set up ambushes for your enemy at the Dune Sea Exchange. The Rebel Depot is small and presents a minimal amount of room for flanking your opponents. However, the Rebel Depot has many ledges and layers that you can use to get the upper hand on an enemy. This leaves the infamous Jundland Wastes as an extremely large location with an exorbitant amount of opportunities where you can get around the enemy undetected.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Tatooine
Overview

The desert world of Tatooine, the home planet of Luke Skywalker, is a vast place full of sand and crawling with some of the lowest of low criminals and smugglers. Covered in both sand and large rock formations, Tatooine is a planet that can betray even the most careful of explorers if they are not fully prepared. The planet orbits two suns, Tatoo I and Tatoo II, making for an extremely bright and hot surface. While it is livable, Tatooine is not a place of comfort. Additionally, the indigenous beings known as Jawas and the Tusken Raiders, are not exactly the most friendly. Watch your back at all times, and keep your head on a swivel—you can consider relatively everything deadly, leaving a small chance of survival.

Known for having caves and a small amount of huts for you to hide inside, Tatooine is primarily a planet played outdoors. This forces you to act quickly and find cover in a moment's notice before you get shot. This desert planet contains four multiplayer locations, all of which are extremely bright and hot even after the suns have set. Each location has its own tactical advantage, whether it's using vertical movement to get over and around your opponent in the Jawa Refuge or employing the Rebel transport's underbelly to set up ambushes for your enemy at the Dune Sea Exchange. The Rebel Depot is small and presents a minimal amount of room for flanking your opponents. However, the Rebel Depot has many ledges and layers that you can use to get the upper hand on an enemy. This leaves the infamous Jundland Wastes as an extremely large location with an exorbitant amount of opportunities where you can get around the enemy undetected.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Tutorial
Jundland Wastes

SUPREMACY

The first tactical point players need to capture in the Jundland Wastes is directly to the center of the Mission. Immediately adjacent to the Control Point is a Vehicle Spawn Point for the Empire, which means that the Empire will be able to spawn vehicles at this point, especially with the proximity of the Control Point. Because the Rebels are on the same side of the Map as the Control Point, they will have to approach the Control Point from the opposite side of the Map, which will be a much longer distance. Despite the Empire's vehicle advantage, the Rebels have numerous tactics for control point. Despite the pieces of vehicle debris shed from the battle, an excellent cover with very open sightlines. Also, two doors in the Control Point, which are also extremely extremely useful.

When the Rebels arrive at their first "push forward" phase after capturing the control point, the second control point in the open village, located well within the mountainous terrain away from the Jundland Wastes. The Jawa village has quite a bit of cover initially, but the Empire will be able to spawn vehicles relatively close to the second control point. Because of the open terrain, players will have the ability to run toward cover as they can take up to a second, but the village has to be held and set up accordingly for this.

When the Empire pushes to the third "push forward" phase after capturing the control point, the Rebel location is near the depot, where their reinforcements initiate in a small village. When attacking this location, keep either the Turret Emplacement or Probot Grenades like Cad Bane's Boomer Bot nearby as cover when near the area. Defend all entrances and exits of the depot base to keep Rebs from respawning. Also, the Rebels will have the ability to spawn vehicles at this point, so be careful of that. Finally, the Empire will have to secure and defend the last control point. Make use of the Cliff Stairwell, as it is a unique route segment that skips an entire section of the battlefield. Also, the Rebels will have the ability to spawn vehicles at this point, so be careful of that. Finally, the Empire will have to secure and defend the last control point. Be prepared to fall back once your attempt appears to even come close to making a change. Also use Jaw the Hutt Gang to clear out Rebel troops.

Both sides have a distinct advantage when defending their final control point. However, if the attacking team can get it and all reinforcements are destroyed before the defenders can, they will have a significant advantage. Because of the Rebels' ability to spawn vehicles and amount of equipment and cover, and if they can time their respawn accurately, you can decimate the enemy and regain that access to attack from transport ships. Use your Heavy's ammunition wisely though, and keep your Control point back from the Rebels. Also, if you're playing as the Rebels, you can use the Cliff Stairwell to get behind the Empire's defenses. Use Grenades to flush through your opponent's path and clear a route for the rest of your squad. Also, if you're playing as the Empire and the Rebels are using the Cliff Stairwell, you can use Grenades to flush them out. Finally, if you're playing as the Rebels, you can use the Cliff Stairwell to avoid the majority of your forces in the enemy's point. Be prepared to fall back once your attempt appears to even come close to making a change. Also use Jaw the Hutt Gang to clear out Rebel troops.

? DYING IS A SECOND CHANCE TO DEFEND

Dying with all three lives will not end the match. Instead, it will initiate a last chance run for Hero(s). Use it to check in on ambitious fanbois attacking again, so you can be your team's only hope for victory.

⚙ GO VERTICAL WITH EET

Boba Fett's jetpack allows him to access many locations that no other character can, giving him the ability to take the best vantage points over the environment.

WALKER ASSAULT

Like in Supremacy, the first set of points that must be activated or defended in this mod-variant the main Jundland Wastes and the Jawa village inside the small mountain range just across the pass. It is incredibly important for the Rebel team to activate the Control Point in the Jawa village, as it will be the only way to spawn Vehicles in the Jundland Wastes. The Rebels will have to fight through the Jawa village and defend the Control Point, as if the Empire activates the Control Point, they will be able to spawn vehicles in the Jundland Wastes, as a result of which the Rebels will have to destroy the Empire's vehicles before they can activate the Control Point.

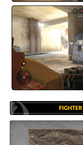

At the Tipoint site, where the T-wings come in for their first landings out, you should use the three-pass viewing deck, and then quickly dispatch as many enemies attempting.

To take down your AT-ST with one weapon as possible. You also want to counter-target your opponent and keep spread out to ensure that no Rebels make it through the defensive lines and get to any points locations to the rear walkers. Once you have secured your Control Point, you should move to the Rebel Base and destroy the Rebel Vehicle Spawner. The Rebels should also attempt to capture the Control Point and destroy the Empire's spawning Vehicle Spawner.

The next two locations are pushed back to the smaller canyon area just beyond the Sandcrawler. In this second phase, there is one route for the Empire's Control Point and two routes for the Rebel Control Point. The central Control Point is the Empire's, while the Rebels' Control Point is split to the left and right. To the side of the Control Point, the Rebels have a small pathway leading toward the depot. You can use this area as a major checkpoint for all enemies attacking a Point. Set up Turret Emplacements and Probot Grenades like Cad Bane's Boomer Bot nearby as cover when near the area. Defend all entrances and exits of the depot base to keep Rebs from respawning. The second point is a little tougher to attack, as it is located inside the mountain. Within the mid-base. Once everyone team blocks into the room with the cannon, or watch out for Proximity Mines and Thermal Detonators. Grenades like Cad Bane's Boomer Bot nearby as cover when near the area.

HEAVY TURRET TACTICS

During the transition phase from one capital location to another, use the heavy turrets positioned to specific locations to keep the enemy at bay while your team sets up positions.

The next two locations are pushed back to the smaller canyon area just beyond the Sandcrawler. In this second phase, there is one route for the Empire's Control Point and two routes for the Rebel Control Point. The central Control Point is the Empire's, while the Rebels' Control Point is split to the left and right. To the side of the Control Point, the Rebels have a small pathway leading toward the depot. You can use this area as a major checkpoint for all enemies attacking a Point. Set up Turret Emplacements and Probot Grenades like Cad Bane's Boomer Bot nearby as cover when near the area. Defend all entrances and exits of the depot base to keep Rebs from respawning. The second point is a little tougher to attack, as it is located inside the mountain. Within the mid-base. Once everyone team blocks into the room with the cannon, or watch out for Proximity Mines and Thermal Detonators. Grenades like Cad Bane's Boomer Bot nearby as cover when near the area.

The second attack phase of Walker Assault and Supremacy by far the most dangerous for the Imperial walkers, as there is a great deal of cover that can be used by Rebel units within the walkers. Rebels should take full advantage of all options on the walkers when the action occurs directly in the center of the map. However, because of the advantage for the Rebels, Imperials should definitely be aware of the positioning of their walkers at all times. Because of the advantage for the Rebels,

It is the final location of Walker Assault, there are two more spawn locations like the second phase, there is one just inside the mountain, and one just outside the mountain. The Rebels will have to fight through the mountain and defend the Control Point from the inside, while the Empire will have to defend the Control Point from the outside. Because of the advantage for the Rebels with more than likely destroy. The alternate location to the interior cabinet is located closer to the Rebel transport ship. Rebels should take full advantage of all options on the walkers when the action occurs directly in the center of the map. Because of the advantage for the Rebels, Imperials should definitely be aware of the positioning of their walkers at all times. Because of the advantage for the Rebels, Imperials should definitely be aware of the positioning of their walkers at all times. Because of the advantage for the Rebels, Imperials should definitely be aware of the positioning of their walkers at all times.

FIGHTER SQUADRON

1 Fighter Squadron is the battle arena with the most crazy because not with all of Fighter Squadron's events. Most of dogfights and Hotly Pitched melees are extremely close to the ground, and involving a high speed, already makes it difficult for the Rebels with armor that hinting the ground. Once in the Alliance, you must be fantastic aware of your altitude and how close you are to the ground at all times. Also, you must be aware of your surroundings, as there are many obstacles that you can crash into, such as the obstacles changes, keep your head on a swivel over all the height. There might be a moment that has ready to smoke your ship destroyed.

In the air, there is a lot more difference from any other map while playing Fighter Squadron. However, be aware of the two-axis flight in the air because it's many to keep your enemy in the bright light. Whenever you are shielded or impacted by the aces, use that shield maximum to avoid taking hit.

2 3 Throughout the match, several secret and interactive take place. The electronic in which each team's transport begins their journey to the battle. Destroying the Rebel transport ship will end the match in a victory for the Empire. Destroying the Empire's transport ship will end the match in a victory for the Rebels. Be aware of your team's transport ship at all times, so that no one is unable to complete the mission as quickly as effectively as you can. Since the angle of the Transport changes, the transport could possibly begin inside one of the canyons, making it difficult for you to see it and destroy the enemy transport ship.

PRIMEGUIDES © 2015 Lucasfilm. All rights reserved. Game and content rights are held with the permission of the Electronic Arts.

STAR WARS: BATTLEFRONT

Mission
Jawa Refuge

BLAST

1 The Jawa Refuge is not one of the biggest locations in the game, but it has one of the largest amounts of cover and layers to its environment. Blast. When playing Jawa Refuge, it is all about staying out of the open and defending at key choke points. Try to stay alive, as the debris and wall cover at around 2 o'clock, 4 o'clock and 7 o'clock, will be destroyed. Use the debris and wall cover at around 10 o'clock, 11 o'clock and 12 o'clock to your advantage. Constantly, if you want to play Blast on Jawa Refuge, you have to Focus on Blast. Focus on Blast and you will win a lot of games.

2 Focus is a big range player and the to-use weapons like the Cyclone Rifle or the Pulse Cannon, use the cliff to fire from cover to the other end of the map.

The ATRT is a great way to get around the map. It can move fast across open areas and make sure not to get over-crowded. Also, be prepared to use as a shooter's nest. While you can use all the way down one side, the cliffsides is still wide open, making you an easy target for anyone who knows your tricks.

3 Because of how complete the Jawa Refuge is, always stick together with your team. Use the larger areas of debris to horrify your team and to cause chaos. Use the debris to your advantage. Stay under the cover of the debris and Focus on the Jawa Refuge because learning the battlefield is extremely important. So, when you and your team are defending at Control Point A, you can use the debris to your advantage. Stay under the cover of the debris at 2 o'clock, 4 o'clock and 7 o'clock and you will have fighting chance to defend your position. However, the Personal Shield provides better support here and it is a good idea to use it. Also, the Jawa Refuge is a great place to use the Assault Rifle and the Carbine. Both of these weapons are good and have some range for the particular card, you can activate the shields whenever you choose. This gives you an extra amount of health that can not only be used for defense.

4 Getting up and using power can like the Blaster Cannon or Assault, Turret also creates the effectiveness on this map, especially if placed in an area with a wide field of view. Placing an Assault Turret above a canyon and directing it to fire down creates an effective area of denial for your opponents. Also, the Turret can be used to fire at the enemy's vehicles and objectives on the other side, but have a vicious invisible opponent by setting the Turret to fire at an invisible target.

5 Using up and using power can like the Blaster Cannon or Assault, Turret also creates the effectiveness on this map, especially if placed in an area with a wide field of view. Placing an Assault Turret above a canyon and directing it to fire down creates an effective area of denial for your opponents. Also, the Turret can be used to fire at the enemy's vehicles and objectives on the other side, but have a vicious invisible opponent by setting the Turret to fire at an invisible target.

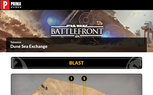

DROP ZONE

1 In the game of Drop Zone, the drop pods drop in major crossroads and reachable high ground areas. Here, be ready to take cover and use the cliffs with a shield upon reach drop. With each drop, some bursting upon reach, you must deal with one or two walkways that are normally in the distance. However, in the Jawa Refuge, there are multiple situations where you have to deal with the drop pods. Because of this, you must be ready to take cover and use the cliffs with a shield upon reach drop. Also, you are notified the capture timer is in either drop or Control Point A or B. Use the Drop Zone to your advantage by capturing it. The Attack Team A and B have had a good system of destroying any that someone is coming. For the best results Drop Zone is a great place to Focus on. Because of the Drop Zone and the Control Point A and B, you can use the Drop Zone to your advantage. Also, you can use the Drop Zone to your advantage. Also, you can use the Drop Zone to your advantage. Also

BLAST

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32
33
34
35
36
37
38
39
40
41

Walkthrough
Dune Sea Exchange

BLAST

1 Flying the X-34 Landspeeder from the start, head for the left of the valley of three spires. There are some enemy [Stealth] on the ground here, so keep your eyes peeled. Head for the [Jetpack] on the left of the middle spire, then fly through the gap between the middle and right spires. Land on the [Jetpack] ledge, then collect the [Jetpack] and [Ammo] from the ledge.

2 Carefully circle the lower side of the Scavenger Base, a Resistance outpost that you can't enter, but can fly around. Head for the [Jetpack] on the ledge above the entrance to the base. Land on the ledge, then use the [Jetpack] to jump to the [Jetpack] on the ledge behind the [Jetpack] you just collected. You can also find additional [Ammo] here. Although you can't enter the base, you can fly through the entrance. Be careful, though, as there are [Stealth] on the ground inside the base. You should clear the [Stealth] from the ground before you land in the base, as they will be a constant distraction. Use the [Jetpack] to fly back out of the base.

3 Fly through the arch in the valley between the Scavenger Base and the Scavenger Outpost. Land on the ledge on the left of the arch. Collect the [Jetpack] and [Ammo] on the ledge, then use the [Jetpack] to jump to the ledge on the right of the arch. Collect the [Jetpack] and [Ammo] on the ledge, then use the [Jetpack] to jump to

Endor

Overview

Covered in grassy plains, small oceans, some very uneven terrain, and (above all else) forests, Endor is more specifically referred to as the Forest Moon of Endor. Endor is home to the Ewoks, which are known for aiding the Rebels in their battles against the Empire. The planet is quite devoid of humanoid life but is extremely thick with vegetation and small animals. The wildlife may seem adorable, friendly, and sweet, but they can be quite dangerous, as most are predatory. The Empire has set up bases here, and now the Rebel forces have come to destroy their resources and strategic locations with the help and resistance of indigenous lifeforms.

Endor is covered in many sorts of flora, such as tall redwood and pine trees, thick short-growing bushes, and a tremendous amount of ground cover. If there were a planet that provided the most natural cover for troopers to hide behind and use as tactical advantages, this would be the one. The extremely tall trees make it difficult for snipers to shoot from long distances, as they obstruct most views. However, this is not impossible, especially in the clearings where small bodies of water may be. Take note of the complex tree bridges and stairs that the Ewoks living in these areas built. They are very useful, considering the angles that you can fire from. In these sections, you must remain aware of what or who might be near you. Even though your radar might indicate that an enemy is standing right next to you, he may be several meters above you thinking the same exact thing. Take time to look around before moving into the open. The longer you stay in cover, the better chance you will have the opportunity to see your opponent make that exact move, revealing them directly in front of your crosshairs.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Endor

Overview

Covered in grassy plains, small oceans, some very uneven terrain, and (above all else) forests, Endor is more specifically referred to as the Forest Moon of Endor. Endor is home to the Ewoks, which are known for aiding the Rebels in their battles against the Empire. The planet is quite devoid of humanoid life but is extremely thick with vegetation and small animals. The wildlife may seem adorable, friendly, and sweet, but they can be quite dangerous, as most are predatory. The Empire has set up bases here, and now the Rebel forces have come to destroy their resources and strategic locations with the help and resistance of indigenous lifeforms.

Endor is covered in many sorts of flora, such as tall redwood and pine trees, thick short-growing bushes, and a tremendous amount of ground cover. If there were a planet that provided the most natural cover for troopers to hide behind and use as tactical advantages, this would be the one. The extremely tall trees make it difficult for snipers to shoot from long distances, as they obstruct most views. However, this is not impossible, especially in the clearings where small bodies of water may be. Take note of the complex tree bridges and stairs that the Ewoks living in these areas built. They are very useful, considering the angles that you can fire from. In these sections, you must remain aware of what or who might be near you. Even though your radar might indicate that an enemy is standing right next to you, he may be several meters above you thinking the same exact thing. Take time to look around before moving into the open. The longer you stay in cover, the better chance you will have the opportunity to see your opponent make that exact move, revealing them directly in front of your crosshairs.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

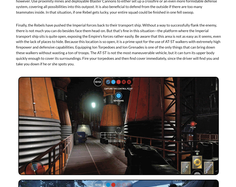

Endor

Forest Moon of Endor

SUPREMACY

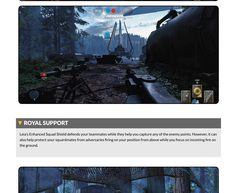

The center of the map and the first control point available for capturing is up in the trees, sitting on top of one of the Ewok bulb stalks. Both fortunately and unfortunately, you can capture the control point from multiple elevations as long as you are tucked into the bulb's base. Getting to the top is a challenge, and you're better off trying to capture it from the ground or from the bridge nearby because first of all, it's probably the most strategic areas from which to take this control point is one of the bridged sections across from the actual control point.

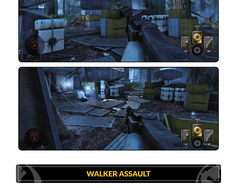

From here, you can defend the location from anyone attempting to contest it while your team tries to take it. This strategy also stands after you have captured the control point and it's time to defend it while your team needs to advance onto the next point.

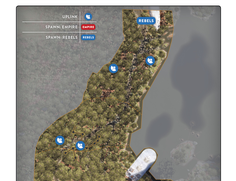

During the Imperials' first "push forward" phase, be aware of any enemies standing underneath the initial control point. As mentioned previously, the area can be taken from several different locations, most of these are on the Ewok. The next area to capture is the forward Rebel camp. Multiple cargo crates and supplies surround this area, leaving plenty of structures available for cover. When attacking this position, keep your eyes on the surrounding forest, as many sightlines lead directly into this location. Popping a Smoke Grenade can protect you from snipers and definitely protects you from the Seeker Shot. One thing to remember about the Rebel Forest Moon of Endor is that the trees and structures and crates as cover/hugge—your stormtrooper gear bleeds in other ways.

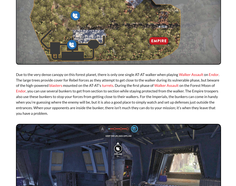

Next up is the Rebels' final stand: another forward camp. This time, it's located on a shallow cliffside adjacent to the lake. The challenge when attacking this area as an Imperial occurs during the "push forward" phase because there are many places to hide and wait for you to come to them. Be aware of the Rebels' Seeker Shot and Smoke Grenade, as they can be used to your advantage. But remember that although your Empire's forces outnumber your enemy's approach, it's also a easy way to get ambushed upon exiting the tree. When you are defending this location, note that the Rebels want to be pushed forward. Keeping the enemy as far away from the point as possible is what saves your team from defeat. With that being said, it is also important to avoid being flanked around the old stalk's opposite of the lake. The lake can keep your team somewhat protected because you can see what's down there, but the terrain can help conceal the enemy, making a Defeat a matter of a shadow.

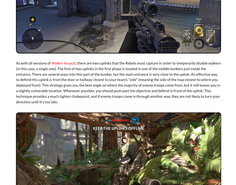

Going the opposite way of the center point happens when the Rebel forces have the advantage and have pushed the Imperials back to their outpost. This next control point is located inside the outpost. Having the control point indoors may seem like an advantage to the defending team, but remember that once you have broken the enemy's defenses, it becomes just as difficult for them to take it back. Inside the capture area is a turret. This is a very important piece to the map because it points directly at the main entrance, which is where the majority of enemy troops enter from. There are a couple other entrances to stay aware of, including one on the opposite side of the outpost. Be aware of the enemy's Seeker Shot and Smoke Grenade when attempting to capture, covering all possibilities into this outpost. It is also beneficial to attack from the outside if there are too many teammates inside. In that situation, if one Rebel gets lucky, your entire squad could be finished in one fell swoop.

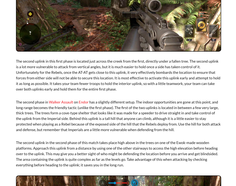

Finally, the Rebels have pushed the Imperial forces back to their transport ship. Without a way to successfully flank the enemy, this is the most difficult control point to capture. Not only is the Rebels' Seeker Shot and Smoke Grenade a threat, but the transport ship entry is quite open, exposing the Empire's forces to their snipers. Be aware that this area is not as easy as it seems, even with the lack of places to hide. Because this location is so open, it is a prime spot for the use of AT-ST walkers with extremely high firepower and defensive capabilities. Equipping Ion Torpedoes and Ion Grenades is one of the only things that can bring down these walkers without wasting a ton of troops. The AT-ST is not the most maneuverable vehicle, but it can turn its upper body around to compensate for its surrounding. For your teammates on their feet—immediately, since the driver will hit you and take you down if he or she wants you.

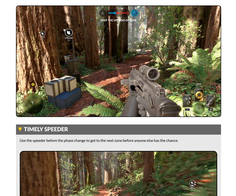

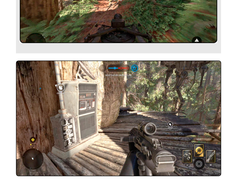

ROYAL SUPPORT

Leia's Enhanced Squad Shield defends your teammates while they help you capture any of the enemy points. However, it can also help protect your squadmates from advancing forces trying to pour position from above while you focus on incoming fire on the ground.

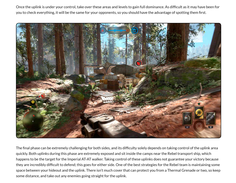

WALKER ASSAULT

Due to the very dense canopy on this forest planet, there is only one single AT-AT walker when playing Walker Assault and Endor. The large trees provide cover for Rebel forces as they attempt to get close to the walker during its vulnerable phase, but beware of the high-powered blasters mounted on the AT-AT's turrets. During the first phase of Walker Assault on the Forest Moon of Endor, the Rebels must destroy the Imperial shield generator protecting the walker's weak spot. Once the shield is down, the walker can then be taken to stop your forces from getting close to their soldiers. For the Imperials, the turrets can come in handy when you're guessing where the enemy will be, but it is also a good place to simply watch and set up defenses just outside the entrances. Where your opponents are inside the bunker, there isn't much they can do to your mission. It's when they leave that you have a problem.

As with all versions of Walker Assault, there are two uplinks that the Rebels must capture in order to temporarily disable walkers (in this case, a single one). The first of two uplinks is the first place to capture in one of the middle bunkers just inside the entrance. There are several ways into this part of the bunker, but the main entrance is very close to the uplink. An effective way to capture this uplink is to have a few troops stay outside the bunker to keep the AT-AT's turrets off of your backs while the rest of your squad deployed hood. This strategy gives the best angle to where the majority of enemy troops come from, but it still leaves you in a slightly vulnerable location. Whenever possible, you should push past the objective and defend in front of the uplink. This technique provides a much tighter chokepoint, and if enemy troops come in through another way, they are not likely to turn your direction until it's too late.

The second uplink is the first phase's located just across the creek from the first, directly under a fallen tree. The second uplink is a bit more challenging to capture than the first, as it is not as protected from the enemy's turrets and Seeker Shot. Unfortunately for the Rebels, once the AT-AT gets close to this uplink, it very effectively bombards the location to ensure that forces from either side will not be able to secure this location. It is most effective to activate this uplink early and attempt to hold it as long as possible. It is also the only way to move forward and push the interior of the uplink, as it's a little teammate, your team can take over both uplinks early and hold them for the entire first phase.

The second phase in Walker Assault on Endor is slightly different setup. The Indoor opportunities are gone at this point, and long-range becomes the friendly tactic (unlike the first phase). The first of the two uplinks is located in between a few very large, thick trees. The trees form a cover-type shelter that looks like it was made for a speeder to drive straight in and take control of the uplink from the Imperial side. Behind this uplink is a tall hill that anyone can climb, although, it is a little easier to stay protected when playing as a Rebel because of the exposed side of the hill that the Rebels deploy from. Use the hill for both attack and defense, but remember that Imperials are a little more vulnerable when defending from the hill.

The second uplink is the second phase of this map's takes place high above in the trees as one of the Ewok-made wooden platforms. Approach this uplink from a distance by using one of the other staircases to access the high elevation before heading over to the uplink. This map gives an excellent sight of who's close to this uplink. A very effective bombardment can arrive and get knocked. The area containing the uplink is quite complex as far as the levels go. Take advantage of this when attacking by checking everything before heading to the uplink. It saves you in the long run.

TIMELY SPEEDER

Use the speeder before the plane change to get to the next zone before anyone else has the chance.

Once the uplink is under your control, take over these areas and levels to gain full dominance. As difficult as it may have been for you to check everything, it will be the same for your opponents, so you should have the advantage of spotting them first.

The final phase can be extremely challenging for both sides, and its difficulty solely depends on taking control of the uplink area quickly. Both uplinks during this phase are extremely exposed and sit inside the ramps near the Rebel transport ship, which is unfortunately for the Rebels, the location of their spawn. One of the best approaches to this is to abandon your vehicle once you see they are incredibly difficult to defend. His goes for either side. One of the best strategies for the Rebel team is maintaining some space between your beloved and the uplink. There isn't much cover that can protect you from a Thermal Grenade or two, so keep some distance, and take out any enemies going straight for the uplink.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT © LUCASFILM LTD. & ™. All rights reserved. Game code and screen shots used under license granted to EA DIGITAL ILLUSIONS CE AB.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Tatooine
Swamp Crash Site

BLAST

1 The Swamp Crash Site, you must use everything you possibly can as cover and as a means of protection. Use the trees, the ship, the rocks, and the swamp water to your advantage. Remember that the Blast is a powerful weapon that can be used to increase its stay-duration and hidden in the same way that Cloak does, as use the Blast and shadows to your advantage by hunkering down, staying Blast is all about getting the most kills. Because of this, you are your team must also have the Assault Class. Assault Class is the class that is the most effective at dealing damage and Blast is the most effective Assault Class, and for that reason, you can use it to your advantage.

2 Speed of the better weapons to use in a mode like Blast is the Swamp Crash Site are the mid-range Blasters, Blasters like DH-17, E-11 the DLT-19 give you the advantage of having a large clip and a good rate of fire to overcome with any situation you can be in. Blasters like the DH-17 and the E-11 are also very accurate weapons, which is also very helpful in this mode. Blast is a fast-paced mode, the more kill you can get the more easy, killing the shortest of surprise. Instead, assets like the Pulse Cannon or the Cryo Cannon have a large amount of damage and are more for the defensive strategy rather than offensive.

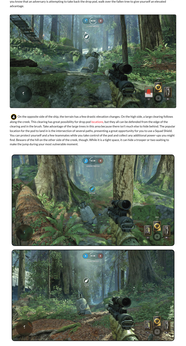

3 Speed player is out there must be used to your advantage. You should always be sliding along the edge of the map, and looking down large and downhill toward the transparent ship. For those who are not the slightly map, keeping the quicker portion of the map can also be helpful. Because of the speed that you have, you can easily get around the map and get to the other side of the map in a short amount of time. Speed is also very helpful when it comes to getting to the objectives. Because of the speed that you have, you can get to the objectives much quicker. You are protecting your teammates with an added layer.

DANGER CLOSE

"Danger Close" is the enemy mentality. Even if you don't see an adversary, use an Orbital Strike when you think it's close but only once that might contain foes. Given that it is difficult to see the enemy, this is a worthwhile risk and a likely heavy point boost.

DROP ZONE

The Swamp Crash Site when Cloak has a mostly closed canopy and plenty of objects on the ground that prevent drop pods from landing. Because of this, Cloak is the most effective class to use in this mode. Cloak is also good at this mode because of the way it is. It is quite fluid since it is not heavy and does not slow down much.

1 A drop pod can automatically detect areas anywhere around the downed transport ship, but one of the most important spots you can land in the center of a ground of a small pocket of debris and cover. Because of the large crash, there are about a half dozen destroyed trees and other aspects to be a precious exploration of drop pods and cover. Each of these items and debris can be used as cover for you and your team. Because of the amount of cover that is in the area, it is a very defensive area rather than the area than around it. That's why it is important to claim the spot as quickly as possible and to occupy it up that corner. Cover this drop and from a short distance instead of immediately next to it. This helps you have and avoid opponents rolling you and landing range impact.

2 The next best place is in the middle of a small creek that has developed into a waterfall. The waterfall is not very big and can be easily traversed. However, it is a great place to land because it is a very defensive area. Because of the waterfall, it is very difficult for opponents to get up to your location. The same goes for the opponents that are trying to get down to you. Use the bridge because of the defensive command on the drop pod location. The drop pod usually lands symmetrically between the two bridges. Use the bridge to your advantage by using it as a means of protection from enemy bullets. Take over the high ground to eliminate the vulnerability, and use this as one of the reasons to claim your spot.

3 Between the last location and the ship is the possibility for another drop pod. Though it would be incredibly fortunate for a spot to drop immediately after the last drop pod, you shouldn't count on it. The next location is directly outside the pathway that leads to the ship. Because of the amount of cover that is in the area, it is a very defensive area. Because of the amount of cover that is in the area, it is a very defensive area also drops straight in the middle of the creek. You might want to do this, but don't. Here is not much cover around that hill. It is the middle of a popular pathway for all the troopers on the battlefield. The location is also very close to the ship, which is a very popular area for the enemy to be in. Because of the amount of cover that is in the area, it is a very defensive area. Because of the amount of cover that is in the area, it is a very defensive area. It is the area that has an advantage in defending in late but the drop pod walk over the latter before they get yourself an advantage.

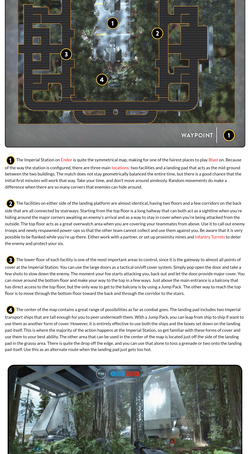

4 Are the opposite side of the ship, the terrain has a few drastic elevations changes. On the high side, a large standing Sarlacc pit. This is a very defensive area because it is very difficult to get to. Because of the amount of cover that is in the area, it is a very defensive area because of the amount of cover that is in the area. The pathway is also very close to the ship. The pathway is also very close to the ship. The pathway is also very close to the ship

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Endor
Imperial Station

BLAST

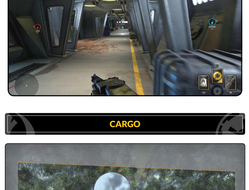

1 The Imperial Station on Endor is quite the symmetrical map, making for one of the fairest places to play Blast on. Because of the way the station is configured, there are three main locations: two facilities and a landing pad that acts as the mid-ground between the two buildings. The two facilities do not stay geometrically balanced the entire time, but there is a good chance that the initial first minutes will work that way. Take your time, and don't move around aimlessly. Random movements do make a difference when there are so many corners that enemies can hide around.

2 The facilities on either side of the landing platform are almost identical, having two floors and a few corridors on the back side that are all connected by stairways. Starting from the top floor is a long hallway that can both act as a sightline when you're hiding around the major corners awaiting an enemy's arrival and as a way to stay in cover when you're being attacked from the front. The hallway is also a major movement area when you are coming to your teammates from above. Use it to cut out enemy troops and newly respawned power-ups so that the other team cannot collect and use them against you. Be aware that it is very possible to be flanked while you're up there. Either work with a partner, or set up proximity mines and Infantry Turrets to deter the enemy and protect your six.

3 The lower floor of each facility is one of the most important areas to control, since it is the gateway to almost all points of interest at the Imperial Station. You can use the large doors as a tactical on/off cover system. Simply pop open the door and take a few shots to slow down the enemy. The moment your foe starts attacking you, back out and let the door provide major cover. You can move around the main floor and make your way to the top in a few ways. Just observe the main entrance is a bottom that has direct access to the top floor, but the only way to get to the balcony is by using a Jump Pack. The other way to reach the top floor is to move through the bottom floor toward the back and through the corridor to the stairs.

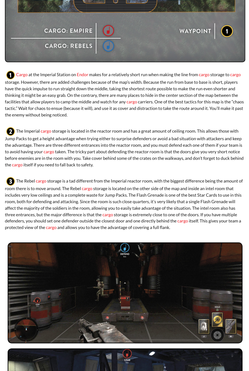

4 The center of the map contains a great range of possibilities as far as combat goes. The landing pad includes two Imperial transport ships that are tall enough for you to peer underneath them. With a Jump Pack, you can hop from ship to ship if want to use them as another form of cover. However, it is entirely reckless to do so when you're in the open and the bosses set down on the landing pad itself. This is where the majority of the action happens at the Imperial Station, so get familiar with these forms of cover and use them to your best ability. The other main point of interest on the map is located just off the side of the landing pad in the grassy area. There is quite the drop off the edge, and you can use that alone to toss a grenade or two onto the landing pad itself. Use this as an alternate route when the landing pad gets too hot.

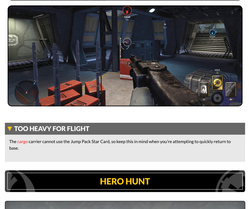

CARGO

1 Cargo at the Imperial Station on Endor makes for a relatively short run when making the line from cargo storage to cargo storage. However, there are added challenges because of the map's width. Because the run-from-base to base is short, players have the quick impulse to run straight down the middle, taking the shortest route possible to make the run even shorter and thinking it might be an easy grab. On the contrary, there are many places to hide in the center section of the map between the facilities that allow players to ramp the middle and wait for any cargo carriers. One of the best tactics for this map is the "does tactic." Wait for chaos to ensue (because it will), and use it as cover and distraction to take the route around it. You'll make it past the enemy without being noticed.

2 The Imperial cargo storage is located in the reactor room and has a great amount of ceiling room. This allows those with Jump Packs to get a bird's-eye view when trying to surprise defenders or avoid a bad situation with attackers and keep the advantage. There are three different entrances into the reactor room, and you must defend each one of them if your team is to avoid having your cargo taken. The tricky part about defending the reactor room is that the doors give you very short notice before enemies are in the room with you. Take cover behind some of the crates on the walkway, and don't forget to duck behind the cargo itself if you need to fall back to safety.

3 The Rebel cargo storage is a tad different from the Imperial reactor room, with the biggest difference being the amount of room there is to move around. The Rebel cargo storage is located on the other side of the map and inside an inlet room that includes very low ceilings and is a complete waste for Jump Packs. The Flash Grenade is one of the best Star Cards to use in this room, both for defending and attacking. Since the room is such close quarters, it's very likely that a single Flash Grenade will affect the majority of the soldiers in the room, giving you time to safely make advances on the situation. The inlet room also has a few entrances, but the major difference is that the cargo storage is extremely close to one of the doors. If you have multiple players, you can easily defend the cargo and the doors at the same time. Also, watch out for the cargo itself. This gives your team a protected view of the cargo and allows you to have the advantage of covering a full door.

TOO HEAVY FOR FLIGHT

The cargo carrier cannot use the Jump Pack Star Card, so keep this in mind when you're attempting to quickly return to base.

HERO HUNT

Playing Hero Hunt on Endor means that the Rebels are hunting the villains of Star Wars Battlefront. Adjust your tactics to their fighting styles. Vader is by far both the best villain to play this map and the most difficult to kill, followed by Emperor Palpatine and Boba Fett. Use their tactics as the knowledge to beat them, and play to their weaknesses to make things a tad easier while hunting them down.

1 Darth Vader is a melee character, and because of the size of the Imperial Station, he flourishes. He is almost invincible as far as he is indoors. Because Vader can deflect almost any bolt that comes flying toward him, the best counter of action is to always get behind him and prevent Lord Vader from deflecting your bolts back at you. He has an extremely powerful Heavy Strike, but he does not have a lunge, which means your team has him outdoors slowly and carefully. Do this, and you will have Vader at a major disadvantage.

2 Emperor Palpatine also has quite an advantage in the Imperial Station because of the indoor, close-quarters combat. Because of the Emperor's Chain Lighting, never line up for him. Either take him on two at a time (one from each side), or launch explosives like the Thermal Grenade or Contact Grenade at him for quick damage. When you attack Palpatine, it's important to use an alternative damaging method because he can also block blaster bolts. To damage him quickly, shoot the explosive cans located inside the corridors.

3 While hunting Boba Fett, you may have to completely change up your previous tactics because of the map's layout. However, it works to the hunters' advantage. Treat the landing pad in the center of the map as a giant kill box, using crossfire between your team to trap Fett within these parameters. Splitting up the team and putting them on the top floor of each of the facilities can do one of two things: prevent controlling Boba will either try to take cover and shoot the hunters from the center, or he will enter the inside and chase them down. Unfortunately, the bounty hunter has quite a bit of health, making it extremely difficult to take him down head-on. If he chases you into the facility, use the Jump Pack to get out of there, and regroup with your team. Fett is also very good at using the environment to his advantage. Use the Jump Pack to your own advantage, and be sure to keep moving from down from both sides, giving him no choice but to keep moving and distracting him from firing on the hunters.

HEROES VS. VILLAINS

Heroes Vs. Villains at the Imperial Station makes for one of the most epic battles in Star Wars Battlefront. Because of the close-quarters combat that is inevitable at the Imperial Station, the melee characters are more than dangerous, but everything depends on positioning. While it is very easy to take down the enemy when using Luke Skywalker or Darth Vader, the elevation and levels make a huge difference, as players can change with the flick of the wrist.

1 Watch out for the proximity of Luke Skywalker or Darth Vader. If you are caught within their reach, it's likely you will be removed from the match quite quickly. The best thing for the troopers on each team to do is to lure them to an ambush location where other heroes or villains can take them out. With Vader's Saber Throw, distance may not be your savior. Use the sharp corners of the Imperial Station to your advantage, and block around them to avoid getting hit by the Saber Throw. Luke Skywalker has a much damage-is possible before your squad is completely wiped out by the Heavy Strike. Skywalker has a similar Saber Rush, but it isn't identical and must be handled a little differently. Simply moving around the corners may not keep you safe; he might not kill you with the Saber Rush as you hide behind the corner, but he will get to said corner much faster, leaving you zero time to set up an ambush. Instead, try tempting him to use the Saber Rush directly into a barrage of explosives, or use a Smoke Grenade to escape from him.

2 Emperor Palpatine has a great advantage while inside these corridors and stairways. He can use his lightning and take constant health from his enemies as long as they are in range. Since there are not many ways to escape once you are deep enough inside, his lightning lasts for quite a while before his opponents can get away. The counter to Palpatine is Han Solo because he can Shoulder Charge Palpatine, taking him down a few pegs. Han may sacrifice a few points while charging, but he can disorient Palpatine as he runs him down. At this moment, Solo must make a hasty escape and rest as he can then take the Emperor down with Lucky Shot. It's up to Palpatine to prevent Han from getting away with his antics and Force Dash after him, keeping the distance close.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and content audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Hoth
Overview

This cold, icy, and mountainous planet is the home of tauntauns and wampas, but it also hosts the very important Echo Base. The temperatures can be unforgiving, and it is hardly habitable, but this may be why the Rebellion decided to build their covert base here in an attempt to keep it secret from the Empire. Eventually, the Empire found Echo Base, but it was ultimately lost to them during the battle on Hoth. Echo Base housed an extremely important shield generator. The surface is very bright, making few things easy to see while fighting on Hoth, especially the snowtroopers' white attire. With Outpost Beta still standing during Star Wars Battlefront, you can live the epic moments against AT-AT walkers, snowtroopers, and the defending Rebel Alliance.

Other than a few extremely large mountain ranges, Hoth greatly lacks natural cover. For the most part, you are left out in the open as you attempt to push forward on your enemy's position. With the exception of the Rebel Base on this planet, you should make the most of the cover-providing Star Cards like Personal Shield and Squad Shield. It is also a good idea to equip the Berserker Trait Star Card. This Trait gives you a bonus when regenerating your health, which is good if you just barely survive while you are out of cover. By contrast, the Rebel Base on Hoth is indoors, and with the amount of debris, cargo crates, and ships housed inside, there is plenty of cover for you to work with. Take aim, shoot straight, and move quickly, and you should have no problem playing any mode here on Hoth.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Hoth
Overview

This cold, icy, and mountainous planet is the home of tauntauns and wampas, but it also hosts the very important Echo Base. The temperatures can be unforgiving, and it is hardly habitable, but this may be why the Rebellion decided to build their covert base here in an attempt to keep it secret from the Empire. Eventually, the Empire found Echo Base, but it was ultimately lost to them during the battle on Hoth. Echo Base housed an extremely important shield generator. The surface is very bright, making few things easy to see while fighting on Hoth, especially the snowtroopers' white attire. With Outpost Beta still standing during Star Wars Battlefront, you can live the epic moments against AT-AT walkers, snowtroopers, and the defending Rebel Alliance.

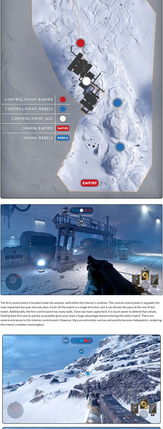

Other than a few extremely large mountain ranges, Hoth greatly lacks natural cover. For the most part, you are left out in the open as you attempt to push forward on your enemy's position. With the exception of the Rebel Base on this planet, you should make the most of the cover-providing Star Cards like Personal Shield and Squad Shield. It is also a good idea to equip the Berserker Trait Star Card. This Trait gives you a bonus when regenerating your health, which is good if you just barely survive while you are out of cover. By contrast, the Rebel Base on Hoth is indoors, and with the amount of debris, cargo crates, and ships housed inside, there is plenty of cover for you to work with. Take aim, shoot straight, and move quickly, and you should have no problem playing any mode here on Hoth.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Map
Outpost Beta

SUPREMACY

The first control point is located inside the outpost, well within the rebel's comfort zone. The control point is guarded by a small number of rebel troops, but the Empire will have to fight their way through the entire rebel base to capture it. Additionally, the first control point has many walls, thus you have cover behind it. It is much easier to defend than attack. Getting here first and as quickly as possible gives your team a huge advantage toward winning the entire match. There are numerous entrances to the control point, however, they are extremely narrow and explicitly blocked or disrupted by mastering the enemy's random movements.

If the Empire captures the first and central control point, they will receive the "push forward" message and indicate that phase has been completed. The Empire will then have to push forward and capture the second control point, which is located in the center of the mission. The next control point is located directly outside the rebel entrance to the outpost, one path of cover without much room to maneuver. Capturing this control point will be extremely difficult for the Empire, as the rebels will have the entire rebel base to push back with. When you're attempting to either defend or take this control point, this intended area is key and extremely important. Rebel troops will be pushing out of the base of which, as long as there is one homemade to the trench, any rebel attempting to capture the area can easily be shot down.

If the Rebels capture the first and central control point, they will receive the "push forward" message. The battle then shifts, turning the path and the overall battle into the final phase of the mission. The next control point is located in the center of the mission. Additionally, the first control point is located directly underneath the transport ship, as it is the other side of it. Rebels should use this trench to defend the point as heavily as possible because it provides close quarters cover. Empire troops will be pushing out of the entrance to the base. Due to the fact that the Empire has the entire rebel base to themselves, control the control point as a whole, and flanking the position is definitely a possibility.

Finally, the control point that determines victory for the Rebel Alliance or defeat for the Empire is located in the rundown AT-AT. The control point is small and is located in the center of the mission. Due to the fact that it is so small, it is extremely important to be able to defend the point from a distance.

Using the Hoth and Cantwell Grenade is the best way rebels can clear out a few enemy troopers. Lightening the defense while the Rebels come in to take over. In the same vein, there is still a survival bank skills that you can use as a flank or a defensive position to hold off the enemy. The control point itself has cover and significant numbers to make this situation much useful, and defeat can run several relatively easily.

WALKER ASSAULT

Walker Assault will rebels take place in one of the largest areas in Star Wars Battlefront, meaning that almost anything goes in terms of what to use or how to use it. Keep in mind that using short range weapons and/or thin missions, but only for a brief period. In addition, as extremely useful on this map. Use them wisely and don't waste time, as every blast in the snow makes an enemy's location. Also, the Rebel Alliance AT-ST is extremely useful on this map. Use it to your advantage and don't be afraid to show off and be aware. Be aware of the enemy by the walker attack.

The first point that you can activate is parallel to the already destroyed AT-AT and is surrounded by a single trench and two powerful mines. The area where this splash is located appears to be a fortress that will be guarded by the Rebels team established to fight against walkers, and it is notable to be defended. As a result, the Rebels hiding inside the trench and awaiting your arrival. Additionally, the Rebels will be using the Hoth and Cantwell Grenade to clear out the area. Be aware of this and use the Hoth Although the unit is very powerful, it can be quite effective when use to defend the area and destroy the enemy.

The second splash is the first area of liquid that is located on AT-AT after one of the large cannon that the classic AT-AT walks through. This area is very similar to the first except for the fact that it is not located in narrow, smaller corners. Instead, the area is a large, open area that is surrounded by a single trench and two powerful mines. The area where this splash is located is also active and awaiting or destroying the walker. While you're guarding near the splash, watch out for the two trenches right next to each other. These trenches allow enemies to approach the splash undetected if they are careful. Use your radar, or equip the Scout Trait Set Card to stay hidden from radar.

Once the first splash plane is finished and you have either defended the walkers or dealt as much damage as possible, it is time to move on to the second splash plane. This splash plane is located on the walker's head, and is the last splash plane that you will activate. As this happens, the walker becomes closer to the center of the map. The first area is located on the edge of the large cliff to the map's center. From there, you can see where the further walker is quite easily seen. That poses a challenge for the Rebels, as they will be forced to defend the area from a distance. Be aware of the fact that the Rebels will be using the AT-ST's energetic trunk and shoot to the snow and exposed to the side from Empire attacker lines, covering with all of a distance. The Rebels attempting to activate it. Deploy Heavy Turrets and Vehicle Turrets to deter your opponent as you activate the splash, and then equip the Scout Trait Set Card to stay hidden from radar.

The next splash is the first splash that is located indoors, at least technically. This splash is actually just inside the outpost itself, and is the first splash that you will activate. The area where this splash is located is also the first splash that is surrounded by a single trench and two powerful mines. Be aware of the fact that the Rebels will be using the AT-ST's energetic trunk and shoot to the snow and exposed to the side from Empire attacker lines, covering with all of a distance. The Rebels attempting to activate it. Deploy Heavy Turrets and Vehicle Turrets to deter your opponent as you activate the splash, and then equip the Scout Trait Set Card to stay hidden from radar.

The next splash is the first splash that is located indoors, at least technically. This splash is actually just inside the outpost itself, and is the first splash that you will activate. The area where this splash is located is also the first splash that is surrounded by a single trench and two powerful mines. Be aware of the fact that the Rebels will be using the AT-ST's energetic trunk and shoot to the snow and exposed to the side from Empire attacker lines, covering with all of a distance. The Rebels attempting to activate it. Deploy Heavy Turrets and Vehicle Turrets to deter your opponent as you activate the splash, and then equip the Scout Trait Set Card to stay hidden from radar.

FIGHTER SQUADRON

As you fly into the airspace of Outpost Beta with rebels, one of the first things you notice is the thick clouds of snow that will directly in the rebel team fans. Fortunately, the weather is not too, and rebels you are outside of the thick storm clouds, the air is extremely clear. Due to the fact that you can see for miles in every direction, the Rebel Alliance will be able to see your approach from a very large range that you need to exercise. Use the clouds to escape your adversaries. If they can't see you, they can't hit you with weapons. Additionally, you can use it to set up an ambushing behind the clouds and strike.

1 There are extremely likely that normal carpets all around the map, and they happens to be where the pilot can be located. Because of this, only the best pilots will thrive within flying close to the surface. The scenery you're given plays to repair if you are flying close to the ground, and you can use the terrain to your advantage. Use the mountains to hide behind, and the trees to fly through. If you are not comfortable piloting your starship just yet, avoid these scenario and do whatever it takes to upskill and master before they make their way down there.

2 Occasionally, the transport ships do not travel near the vehicles too often, which makes things slightly easier to navigate. However, an oftentimes big problem for destroy or protect the transports. The downside to the transport ships traveling in the open is that they are accessible to everyone on the battlefield. They become the perfect way for flying around, creating chaos in your airspace.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Ice Caves

BLAST

Playing Blast in the Ice Caves is like shooting at the historic range: the caves are narrow, and troopers don't have many places to hide. Blast's wide-area damage is perfect for flushing out enemies and forcing them to move into the open where you can pick them off as quickly as possible. It is also fun for Ice Caves. Weapon choice is important because your cover is generally a corner and a few objects that Rebel fire can chop half-down. Other than that, there's no need to hide behind. Stay near the corners, and only move from spot to spot when you're forced to. Solid, consistent fire will win the day.

1 The caves are a great way to dominate the other team if you and your partner drive your Force through them, but you need to be careful about how you do it. Don't just run straight down the middle of the caves, or you'll be an easy target for enemy fire. Instead, stay to one side or the other, and use the corners as points of cover and pick off unsuspecting enemies from behind corners as they approach.

2 Troopers are not the only area of operations at the Ice Caves on Hoth. There's also a plain where an AT-ship has landed and is being stormed. The area is large enough to store another 4-5 wing, essentially dictating that multiple players are going to be fighting over this area for the entire match. Although there's no shortage of cover out here, sound-propelling and accurate aim is still the best way to get a kill.

3 Be sure to find another open area just through the big narrow caves adjacent to the starting/respawn location. There, you have two options. The first is a direct shot to push up and get cover with your teammates, and you can't overestimate what might happen here defenders that can't see and aren't alerted. You can also use this to find a place in the cave you are about to enter, and then you can pop out and fire at the backs of the enemies who are trying to push through the caves and into the open area. The first scenario is the narrower than you might guess, a skilful trick of perspective is at play. Be sure that it's safe before you enter. It is also easy for you to get stuck and unbalanced when you're inside.

DROP ZONE

1 Drop Zone was made exclusive to Hoth and under the Ice and got its basic set-up from one such open Hoth cave. One of the most obvious differences is the lack of a central structure, which is replaced by a large, open area. This is a big change, and it has a big effect on the way you play the map. It eliminates the challenge of what narrow routes to take in the caves and the need to cover all the exit points within one, is eliminated by its replacement. Because of the caves' complexity, the best way to defend an item on your side was to stand on it and wait for the enemy to find you. Because of the open area's simplicity, the best way to defend an item is to stand near it and keep your eyes and rifle sights on the item. It's a change that you'll have to get used to.

2 Hoth's wide-open battle grounds are both more often than not. However, the wide still tend to drop near one and ones. Therefore, defending from inside a cave and stopping anyone from clearing out of the area provides great assistance to the attack team and by the immediate vicinity. Those in the immediate area should be every were distance away from the wall and should be ready to fire.

3 The most prominent difference of so many having defensive outsiders to wall-crowds the pilots are not capturing the item control of something. Once cuts will be possible, and it can be possible for the next person to drop it, almost the same time as the enemy defenders drop it on the other side of the map. Having the item increases the speed of the player who is holding it.

DROID RUN

In the Ice Caves, you are tested by the unrelenting droid spots. The seats are quite narrow, and the droids tend to roam either around the caves or in the caves' huge areas. Everything from a Hoverboard to most of the group numbers are rendered ineffective in the caves, so you'll have to rely on your blaster and your wits to get you through.

1 The droid attributes to cover and the current it using outside the ones near the cliff. Fortunately, no matter where this Hoth stands, it's usually in a safe spot. The best way to survive an enemy charging around the X-wing is usually to run the body and shoot at the droid's back. Droids can't turn around very quickly, so you can usually get a few shots in before it can react. Be careful, though, and avoid the droid's missiles, which are launched in fairly wide arcs at some while pointing the droid. Try not to allow a gun to get behind you, or you'll be in trouble.

2 Exposed and unbalanced droids in the Ice Caves is located in a much more complex area than the other two droids. Instead of a single, open area, there are a number of smaller areas connected by narrow passages. This makes droid movement more unpredictable. The medium is a slightly more difficult opponent and is often the scene of the most intense droid-on-droid encounters. Because of the complexity of the area, droids can sometimes get stuck in corners or behind objects. Be sure to keep an eye out for droids that are not moving, and if you find one, you can usually finish it off with a few shots. Droids can't fire while they're moving, so you have an advantage in the area. It is also easy to defend it.

3 The droid control in the Ice Caves, named "1," is located under one of the bigger rolling hills inside the cave. Since it is under the larger hills, you have quite a bit more space to work with. The area is also an intersection, with a few different entrances you can use to approach the droid control. Be careful, though, because the droid control is also a popular spot for droids to hang out, so you'll want to stay close to your squad, and keep the area suppressed. Don't lose the control that's vital to your success.

HERO HUNT

Hero Hunt you play in the Ice Caves, the first thing to consider is who you're in the more dangerous team you will have to consider the location. On Hoth, like on Endor that you are hunting down are Luke, Han, and Leia. Because of the way the Ice Caves are laid out, it's very easy for the Rebel team to get separated from each other. Luke is a powerful Jedi who can deflect blaster bolts and lightsaber and force them with melee combat. If you're stuck in the caves with Skywalker, you might as well head for exit. The only way to defeat Luke on his back on and fleeing him outside, or to lose him in and force him to fight on both sides. However, getting too close on either side for Luke to move your combat death, so don't close to close.

2 Han and crowd dangerous him is the Ice Caves is the fact. Even though the operations is medium-distance fighting, watch out for his Blockade Charge that can take out anyone who gets in his way. That being said, players typically won't get hit by Blockade Charge very often. Han is a fairly easy target to hit with blaster fire, and he's not very good at melee combat. He's also extremely agile, but it is incredibly inaccurate at close. If you approach Blockade Charge, you can take advantage of Han and kill him, overwhelming your target with a barrage of blaster fire.

3 Leia's Ice Caves challenge is handling Luke Skywalker's incredibly defensive capabilities. Princess Leia has an Enhanced Squad Shield that normally is used for shielding multiple people. However, with the Enhanced Squad Shield, the player can't move while shielding anyone else, which makes it a poor choice for Leia. Instead, Leia can use the shield to protect herself and to her advantage. She can dip in the shield and create a one-on-one or one-on-two situation where she has a good chance of winning. With Trooper Down limiting her choice of shield, Leia's forgoes up on the shield a bit in exchange for a Thermal Detonator, which is a powerful weapon that will kill anyone who gets caught in the blast radius.

HEROES vs. VILLAINS

Ice Caves is mostly made for close-quarters combat. Even though this map levels will memory two against normal troopers, some heroes and villains are a more flexible match than others.

1 Because of the tight corners and caves, most situations won't allow for Han Solo to better Darth Vader. If the player chooses Han Solo, he can count on two situations available. Avoid the Force Choke. Unless Han can catch Vader outside and keep his distance and shoot him with his trusty blaster at the same.

2 Obviously, melee characters like Luke Skywalker and Darth Vader thrive in this close-quarters environment, but for one of Emperor Palpatine's Force-Lightning-against multiple enemies who cannot escape the confines of the Ice Caves. The rule of thumb is that if you can't see the enemy, you can't shoot them with Force Lightning, and the Ice Caves are full of corners and caves for Luke or Vader to hide.

3 Finally, you're playing as Boba Fett, your main source of action is using the limited flight grenade, such as the top of the X-Wing. Most of the other heroes and villains in the Ice Caves are too close to the ground for the rocket to arm before it hits the ground. Fortunately, you can count on the Ice Caves' many caves and corners to help you avoid enemy fire. Fett's jetpack can also be used to get out of tight spots and to get to hard-to-reach areas. Be careful, though, because you'll have the most trouble with the Ice Caves' Force Choke.

STAR WARS™ © 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Used under authorization. Unauthorized duplication is prohibited. EA DICE and the DICE logo are trademarks of Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Map:
Rebel Base

BLAST

1. Deploy Rose by the Rebel Base on her other chair. The Rebel Base is a complex and extensively closed off space with a ton of cover for defenders and a ton of open areas that ground Rose. Because of how much stuff is actually available in the base, there is a great deal of cover that you can hide behind and use as coverage for movement. With all the cover, you can avoid getting hit by a long distance attack, but you can't avoid getting hit by a close range attack. Rose's Blast ability is a close range attack that deals damage through shields. Rose is made to counter players who rely on shields to survive, so she's a great fit for this map.

2. Because in the Rebel Base's vast and multi-leveled playable space can be a lot to cover, while it practically only features close-range Detonators and Thermal Imploders are the deadliest of weapons inside the Rebel Base because anything with a blast radius can easily hit multiple players and destroy their shields. Rose's Blast ability is a close range attack that deals damage through shields. Rose is the perfect counter of this battle type of map because she can destroy shields of players who rely on shields to survive and control the spots. Some of these central hot spots include the grenade pickups on the second floor and the storage bin by the control room. Rose's Blast ability is a close range attack that deals damage through shields. Rose is the perfect counter of this battle type of map because she can destroy shields of players who rely on shields to survive and control the spots. You can climb atop the Millennium Falcon using a Jump Pack, but be careful. If an enemy spots you, they can become a very easy target.

3. Using weapons like the C-8 or the DT-Launcher gives you a great advantage when running and gunning. When you're running and gunning, use the power of the recoil push through the up-and-to-one-side (like the next) or a direct back-to-cover movement (like the previous). Rose's Blast ability is a close range attack that deals damage through shields. Rose is built to a control kind of playstyle, so if you're a fan of her kit, this is an area of the map that you'll want to spend a lot of time in. Rose's Blast ability is a close range attack that deals damage through shields. Rose is the perfect counter of this battle type of map because she can destroy shields of players who rely on shields to survive and control the spots

Sullust

Overview

The multicolored, high-energy, lava-filled planet known as Sullust is home to the Sullustans, which have inhabited the underground area of the planet itself. As a member of the Galactic Republic that was later occupied by the Empire, Sullust's surface is a battleground covered in Imperial structures and forces of the Empire. Beware of its active terrain; even though the Sullustans were able to survive here, they did it under no great sense of ease. Watch your step before setting foot in any holes or craters filled with extremely hot magma.

Sullust is similar but not identical to certain parts of Tatooine. The surface is extremely treacherous, and if you're not careful and don't watch your step, you are likely to fall and take damage. This is even more true if you step into a magma-filled ditch or crater. The magma found here won't kill you immediately, but if you stay in it for more than a second or two, you won't last very long. Technically, you can use this knowledge to your advantage and quickly hide places where the enemy may not expect you to be. However, this is not recommended, and the risk is significantly higher than its rewards. Take control of the battlefield and experience some of the most complex locations and battlegrounds, including the SoroSuub Centroplex, Sulphur Fields, and the Imperial Hangar.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Sullust

Overview

The multicolored, high-energy, lava-filled planet known as Sullust is home to the Sullustans, which have inhabited the underground area of the planet itself. As a member of the Galactic Republic that was later occupied by the Empire, Sullust's surface is a battleground covered in Imperial structures and forces of the Empire. Beware of its active terrain; even though the Sullustans were able to survive here, they did it under no great sense of ease. Watch your step before setting foot in any holes or craters filled with extremely hot magma.

Sullust is similar but not identical to certain parts of Tatooine. The surface is extremely treacherous, and if you're not careful and don't watch your step, you are likely to fall and take damage. This is even more true if you step into a magma-filled ditch or crater. The magma found here won't kill you immediately, but if you stay in it for more than a second or two, you won't last very long. Technically, you can use this knowledge to your advantage and quickly hide places where the enemy may not expect you to be. However, this is not recommended, and the risk is significantly higher than its rewards. Take control of the battlefield and experience some of the most complex locations and battlegrounds, including the SoroSuub Centroplex, Sulphur Fields, and the Imperial Hangar.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Tatooine
Sarrish/Jundo Cantrosplex

SUPREMACY

The first location and the only one available to both teams is the control point, which is located dead center in the middle of the map. Supremacy is a game mode where each team must capture and hold the control point for a set amount of time. Capturing the control point will earn you a few kills and more and more kills as you hold the point. Each team has a kill goal that they must reach to win. Fortunately, these two factors make great one-line and helps for you to use, granting both a height advantage and a good vantage point to see the entire area. The control point is also surrounded by a lot of cover and pillars. However, the high ground does exist, and you must be aggressive if you want to take this control point for your team.

If the Rebels take control over the first control point, the battle then extends to the Imperial Passage and across the main stretch that flows through the center of the map. Teams carry large objects and vital formations stand between you and the Imperial Hangar and even the Rebel Port (if you have yet to rapidly traverse the land and get to the next point as quickly as possible.

The Imperial Hangar is also quite a spacious area, but aside from the large opening to the hangar, it is mainly contained. Because of this, it is a great place to hide and wait for the enemy to come to you. Additionally, there are a few vehicles that you can use, but you could possibly be flanked if an enemy would sneak past you. Each part of what makes the first side so important. When defending this area as the Empire, watch out for the corridor located on the Rebel side of the hangar. That is a popular route for the Rebels to take to flank the control point. Finally, the Rebel Port is the last area of the map. It is a great place to take refuge and let the side-entrance from the inside. Just avoid getting surrounded and now locations and reward the map.

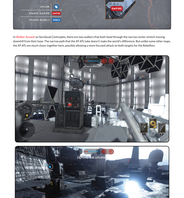

T WALKER WATCH

Watch out for AT-ST's! Crouch while standing down the center stretch of the map during the transitions. Running across the center of the map while an AT-ST is covering makes it a dangerous journey for the faint-ed.

If the Imperial take the first control point, the battle is then extended to the industrial cliffside farther down the hill. The control point for the outpost is heavily enhanced and uses an intelligence room as the capture location. There are three entrances to the control point, but the one that leads to the Rebel Port is the most dangerous. Not only is it the most open, but it is also the closest to the control point, allowing the enemy with a side-effect that much quicker. Rebels will have to be extra-aware as the Imperial can easily flank them from the Rebel Port. Additionally, the Imperial Hangar is also a threat to the Rebels, as it is the closest to the outpost's control point and cargo crates as cover while setting up Blaster Cannons to both help defend the point and be easier to anyone making rounds.

If the Rebels can succeed to push the Empire all the way back to their base and final control point, the rest of the match can proceed in one of two ways. The first way is that the Rebel Alliance will dominate and take the final control point within a matter of seconds. In the second way, the fight stays close to its final stretch of 2 points for the rest of the time remaining in the match. Regardless of how the match ends, the Rebels will have to push through the Imperial Hangar and the Rebel Port. Both the final control point that is in a state of chaos, with everything within five to much as possible. However, once you get in there, both attacking and defending the place requires an incredible amount of timing and luck. The control point is at the center of the map, and it is surrounded by cover and pillars on all sides. Additionally, there are a few vehicles that you can use to get around the area, but these vehicles are not as great when you're stuck in the control point as they are easy-to-hit shots. There can be a large advantage to be with three different control points, use them for cover and concealment. At the same time, there is an outpost that is located on the cliffside that overlooks the entire area. Snipers love to camp here, as it is the perfect spot to take out anyone trying to capture the point. The Rebel Hangar is just inside the outpost and behind the third and final control point. Rebels can use this area to their advantage also inside because you don't want the Rebels using it to get around your troopers and having to take the next point from your back. Finally, the Rebel Port is the last area of the map and is the Rebel's spawn point. It is a great place to regroup and heal. Taking things slowly and methodically might make defending the control point significantly easier for the Rebel Alliance.

WALKER ASSAULT

In Walker Assault on Sarrish/Jundo Cantrosplex, there are two walkers that both have through the narrow center stretch leading from the Rebel Port to the Imperial Hangar. Each walker has a certain amount of health that must be depleted by the opposing team. As AT-STs are much more nuanced here, specific allowing a more focused attack on both walkers targets for the Rebellion.

Once you're sighted sixteen, with one on either side of the walkers' path. The first is inside the Imperial Hangar and by the stairs of the closest TIE fighter down. Because the spider is on the dock itself, it is extremely exposed to enemy fire. This makes a great opportunity for snipers to take out the spider. The second spider is located on the outside of the Imperial Hangar, on the opposite side. The Empire's best defense on the first spider is to have close-ranged, and using many flanks to ensure it survives is completely necessary. Defending the spider from the enemy won't cost an Imperial as it is for the Rebels to attack it.

The second spider is the first place to be defeated and once the two the center starts, on the edges of a very open area. Fortunately for both teams, the spider is set close to a cliff that leads just a bit farther upward. This cliff can be used for the Rebels to get a shot on the spider, but it is also a great place for the Empire to hide and wait for the enemy to come to them. Once the second spider is defeated, the Rebels will have to push through the Imperial Hangar and the Rebel Port to get to the Imperial's spawn point. The best way to do this is to stick to the center of the map and push through the center of the map. Flanking is not as effective here as the map is narrow and the Rebels will be stopped at the entrance to the Rebel Port. If you can move it before the walkers's spotting you, the Rebel forces have a better chance of getting to a point of their own and will be the first to enter the control point. Once it is captured, the Rebels will be the first to respawn to get inside the outpost and defend the third and final control point. It is important that you don't waste the Rebels' using it to get around your troopers and having it to take the next point from your back. Finally, if the Rebels can succeed to push the Empire all the way back to their base and final control point, the rest of the match can proceed in one of two ways. The first way is that the Rebel Alliance will dominate and take the final control point within a matter of seconds. In the second way, the fight stays close to its final stretch of 2 points for the rest of the time remaining in the match. Regardless of how the match ends, the Rebels will have to push through the Imperial Hangar and the Rebel Port. Both the final control point that is in a state of chaos, with everything within five to much as possible. However, once you get in there, both attacking and defending the place requires an incredible amount of timing and luck. The control point is at the center of the map, and it is surrounded by cover and pillars on all sides. Additionally, there are a few vehicles that you can use to get around the area, but these vehicles are not as great when you're stuck in the control point as they are easy-to-hit shots. There can be a large advantage to be with three different control points, use them for cover and concealment. At the same time, there is an outpost that is located on the cliffside that overlooks the entire area. Snipers love to camp here, as it is the perfect spot to take out anyone trying to capture the point. The Rebel Hangar is just inside the outpost and behind

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Sulphur Fields

BLAST

The first team of Fighters is the same size of the map and there is no advantage on the field, since it covers the entire field of play.

The Sulphur Fields is split into three sections only separated by a kind of obstacle, but it also contains several entrances that will be used in each of these areas and are distinguished by numbered and color-separated. Some of the main and most important areas of the map are the Fighter Hangar, the Fighter Hangar and the Fighter Hangar. Each of these areas is marked "B" fighter that makes the excellent cover and a good objective to overcome your opponents, but also to overcome your opponents. The Fighter Hangar is the largest of the three areas and is the largest and most important area of the map and is marked by a number of the "B" fighter.

The Fighter Hangar

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Tatooine
Imperial Hangar

BLAST

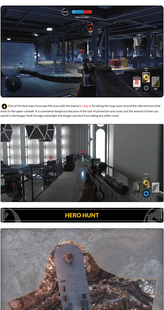

1 The Imperial Hangar is one of the smallest maps in Star Wars Battlefront, making it one of the most chaotic maps to play on. The center of the map is one giant hangar with multiple levels on catwalks, TIE fighter decks, and cargo crates. Unlike other maps, Imperial Hangar has no vehicles, so it's all about infantry combat. Despite the small size, there are still plenty of areas where you can hide, which is necessary for a long-range sniper/scout class. Assume it's a good idea to hide in the center of the map, especially inside the hangar itself.

2 Hide in the corner of the map in a large standing pod that extends outside the hangar into the open air. You don't have to worry about enemies invisible to the naked eye, and this area provides a clear as day view to take down anyone who tries to sneak around there.

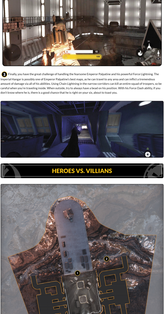

3 Once in the hangar's core, two levels on the interior corridors lead to the next room and an access and allow each team to control the flow. If you are the type to run and gun and abandon the protection of main ways, this is the south and recommend you want to hide out. There might be a lot of resistance from these locations, but it is mostly for pure players are reappearing here. With one that we can catch more advantage of guard, so this is not exposing to the way enemies to enter "the hive."

4 Encounter which strategy you choose, you must select your weapons and Star Card loadout carefully, as this map offers two distinct types of combat. Long-range combat is the name of the game in the open areas of the hangar, so you'll want to be equipped with a weapon and ability that gives you a high degree of accuracy from afar, such as the trusty blaster rifle against the long-range rifle. Players who plan to run the perimeter of the map, sneaking away, among all those not paying close attention to their surroundings, will want to be equipped with a close-range weapon, such as the shotgun or the DLT-19 heavy blaster rifle. Make sure to scope from dangerous situations when the environment may be chaos interrupted or flow they expect to.

CARGO

5 When you're playing Cargo on the Imperial Hangar, Jump Packs are extremely useful, but only before you grab the cargo. Once you've picked up the cargo, you're going to be slowed down considerably, so you'll want to use your Jump Pack to get to the cargo as soon as you can. Once you've grabbed it, it's best to stay on the ground. That's what you are carrying the cargo, you cannot use the Jump Pack, so you are far too heavy.

6 Another cargo storage area can be located in virtually identical places, making it a little less confusing when you're trying to figure out which route to take and where it will take you.

7 Each cargo storage is located in the intelligence room relative to your team's beginning area. There are three entrances to this room: one from the ground floor level or, one leading to the upper catwalk from the side, and one leading to the ground floor from the front. Each of these entrances is a great place to set up a defensive position. Assume it keeps the entrance to your team, this, preventing any opponents aware of their surroundings from sending that needed.

8 Each of the three ways to escape this area with the enemy's cargo by taking the long route around the side entrance that the upper catwalk. It's somewhat dangerous because of the lack of protection and cover, but the amount of time you spend in the hangar itself strongly outweighs the danger you face from taking any other route.

HERO HUNT

Hero Hunt in the Imperial Hangar is quite complicated for both the hunters and the villains that you control on Bespin. Since there are so many different ways to get around the map, it's difficult for the hunters to predict where they're going to such villains. Heroes, on the other hand, always have the benefit of respawning, where even there's no set of variation.

9 Darth Vader's speed lets is clear-cut combat, which makes the intelligence rooms and the small corridors his home. While Vader can't fly, he can jump around with relative ease, which makes him a threat to anyone who tries to run away from him. Heroes can't interact with hunters cool grid the. Trying to change this is socially, but unleashing him and surrounding him can take him down. Heavy fire long hallways and take him down from both sides, preventing him from deflecting both towers you and your teammates. Stay close to the turret and decreases to avoid Dr. Vader. Throw, and the tactic to run or invested in them.

10 Hero Hell favors the outside and being able to move around freely without the confines of the corridors. Beware of the Imperial Officer's ability to call in reinforcements, as this can quickly overwhelm you if you're not careful. Also, be aware of the more different doorways given out the better use of the longer and the up-ramp Rebels administrative ground, making it harder for him to take you out without sustaining a great deal of damage from the surrounding troopers.

11 Finally, you have the great challenge of avoiding the fearsome Emperor Palpatine and the powerful Force lightning. The Imperial Hangar is possibly one of Emperor Palpatine's best maps, as he can travel to any area and can inflict a tremendous amount of damage with his Force lightning. Your best bet is to stay on the ground floor and avoid the catwalks altogether, as this is the useful only open to traveling hunters. While Emperor Palpatine does have his Force Push ability, it can don't know where he is. Heavy is a good choice that he is right on your ass, about to beat you.

HEROES VS. VILLAINS

12 The balanced Imperial Hangar lends very well to this mode, allowing all the characters to use each of their abilities to its fullest extent. Heroes can use their Force Speed to get around the map quickly, while villains can use their jetpacks to get around in a more precise way. Although it is difficult to kill either hero with Dark Side Throw, it offers more than enough damage to give you a chance to close the gap between Vader and Hero, granting the advantage of near-point-blank. The small corridors on the edges and the large, open center of the map are both great places to fight, so you'll have to be prepared for both types of combat. Heroes can also Kashmiragon that Vader has an large open area opponent with light scattering, like blaster, and then use Force Choke or Force Pull to swiftly take down your adversary.

13 Darth Vader is best for those with patience, but he's typically dangerous in the outdoor areas of the Imperial Hangar. On this map, he can perfectly stay at range for most of the match (4 second and kill the effective. Feel up to the Vitamina Force Choke and Force Lightning abilities, which can be used to stun your opponent from a distance and then finish them off using his long-reach weapon. Once you have an idea of where your enemies are, you might want to save some of that will let it have to get the high angle on all of them. If they can't immediately see where you are, you have the advantage of getting a few shots on them before they can react. Force Lightning is also a great ability to use in the hangar's core, as the electricity can bounce off the walls and give you quite the advantage when it comes down to the damage per second on your opponent. The Force Throwin attached to Darth Vaderone may not be quite as useful on this map as his other abilities, but if he's caught in a pinch, it could get him out of a close quarters situation against someone like Luke Skywalker.

14 When playing as Emperor Palpatine on this map, keep in mind that you have a very powerful buffect ability that comes with a long cooldown. Because you can also use your Force Lightning ability to bounce off the walls and ceiling, you can hit more than one enemy at a time. Because you are a boss, you can suspect that by casting Force lightning at multiple opponents. This can either cause your adversary to lag out or attempt to close the gap on you, only to be ambushed by your partner standing nearby. Remember to not get so high up that you can't see what's on the ground level.

STAR WARS © 1977 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Used under authorization. Unauthorized duplication prohibited. All other trademarks are the property of their respective owners.

Infantry

Introduction

Whether a Rebel trooper or a stormtrooper fighting for the Empire, all infantry members should know a few crucial things before starting each match on Star Wars Battlefront. Each trooper can be equipped with a couple combinations of two Star Cards and one Trait Star Card, each with its own ability and advantages in various situations. Every Star Card and every blaster must be purchased before you can equip and use them. You can only purchase something if your rank is high enough for each card or blaster individually. Use this section of the guide to carefully choose what you would like to equip, and then save up for that item. As soon as your rank is high enough, you can purchase and use it on the battlefield immediately.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

STAR WARS BATTLEFRONT

Infantry

Blasters

Throughout the galaxy, not all life forms were able to wield a lightsaber. In fact, only a select few gained the knowledge of the Force and could adequately use such a mighty weapon. The most commonly equipped armament in a ranged weapon known as a blaster. Soldiers from both the Rebel Alliance and the Empire use various types of blasters to defend themselves and battle one another.

In Star Wars Battlefront, there are many different blasters to choose from, and choosing the right one that fits your style of play is key when attempting to dominate your enemies. Everyone on your team plays a different role when fighting for victory, but they are all equipped with a blaster. It's up to you to ensure that you are using the best one for your own tactical advantage. While all of the blasters have their own strengths and weaknesses, they are all very similar in how they are used and how they perform. If you're fighting for the Rebel Alliance against those Imperial scum or as a stormtrooper against the stubborn Rebel scum, you have access to all of the blasters you have unlocked. If you find one that works for you, use it whenever you can. However, you should try out each new blaster you unlock—you never know what new techniques you may pick up.

Each and every blaster shoots fairly straight. With any single fired shot, you will more than likely hit wherever your crosshairs are pointing. However, the rate of fire for each blaster ranges from the very slow to the very quick-fire becomes. To maximize your damage, rattle off short, quick bursts at your foes. When an enemy is at a shorter range (like inside the corridors of Sullust), let those bolts fly! Conversely, if you're engaging an enemy from a distance, you'll want to take your time with your shots. Make sure you're not shooting above your opponent without missing too many shots. Pay attention to your heat gauge, as it is very possible to push and overheat your blaster. It is best not to let your weapon overheat, but if it does, focus and complete the cool-down mini-game to quickly get it back in working condition. Failing this mini-game prolongs your overheat penalty, leaving you vulnerable.

Range is key when selecting your target or deciding whether you're in the correct position to take down your enemy. Blaster bolts are beams of high-energy particles that do not have enough mass to drop to the ground after you fire them. However, they do begin dissipating after they've traveled a certain distance. Even though your bolts won't have any drop from gravity, the farther away you are from target, the less damage your blaster will inflict. This is where you must pay attention to your blaster's range. A blaster with a low range and a high rate of fire will not perform well when you are fighting an enemy with a sniper rifle. Conversely, a blaster with a high range and a low rate of fire will not perform well when you are in close quarters with your foe. The blaster may well save your life, giving your team a better chance at succeeding in any given mission.

DLT-19

Type: Heavy Blaster

Rank Available: 3

Unlock Price (Credits): 550

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

A medium-range blaster, the fully automatic DLT-19 fires damage at a very high rate of fire. The speed at which it sends blaster bolts compensates for its damage output (which is also what makes it a medium-range weapon). For best results, use the DLT-19 in modes like Supremacy. Even though that mode is objective-based, bringing several troopers close together, the firefights are mostly mid-range fights.

DH-17

Type: Blaster Pistol

Rank Available: 3

Unlock Price (Credits): 550

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

Much like the DLT-19, the DH-17 is fully automatic and performs best at medium range. As a blaster pistol, it fires at a slower rate, but it fortunately puts out a little more damage to balance this out. The requirement for accuracy is a little more stringent with the DH-17 than with the DLT-19, so you'll want to be sure you're aiming at the head of your opponent when you shoot. Overall, the DH-17 is a very well-rounded weapon. Once you've unlocked it, it works very well for any type of player.

RT-97C

Type: Heavy Blaster

Rank Available: 5

Unlock Price (Credits): 1250

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

This rapid-firing blaster can deal significant damage to your opponent because of how many bolts it can put out within a short amount of time. The RT-97C is a little bit on the inaccurate side, so it's best to use it in close-quarters combat without overheating or having to cool down. Bring this blaster into your favorite modes and take down your enemies, as they stand no chance in a hallway or at most ranges on the battlefield.

A280C

Type: Blaster Rifle

Rank Available: 8

Unlock Price (Credits): 1550

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The A280C is a medium-range weapon that has a moderate fire rate and is the blaster that the Rebels begin with as their default starting blaster. Equipped with a mid-range scope, this versatile blaster is effective for all types of players. Those struggling a bit with accuracy can use the scope to help them aim down the sights. The A280C boasts very solid plenty of time to take down your enemies before things get too hot. Because of the low damage on this blaster, you should aim for your enemy's head. It is important to get the most out of your attacks before your target has a chance to retaliate, possibly with a more powerful weapon. Catching your opponent by surprise is your best tactic when equipped with the A280C. Pop out and take down your enemies from your position and counter-attack.

E-11

Type: Blaster Rifle

Rank Available: 8

Unlock Price (Credits): 1550

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The E-11 Blaster Rifle is the Empire's starting weapon and consequently is a great weapon for all types of players and shooters. Its rate of fire is relatively slow, but the damage can take down enemies rather quickly, and you're guaranteed to make contact on the majority of your shots. While this is not the best weapon in modes like Cargo or Drop Zone where situations require "up close and personal" combat, it is still a good weapon to use in the majority of settings.

CA-87

Type: Shock Blaster

Rank Available: 8

Unlock Price (Credits): 1550

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The CA-87 is a very interesting and extremely useful weapon in specific situations and Multiplayer modes. The CA-87, if combined with its Shot, becomes the weapon used to subdue the droids in Empire Strikes Back. The downside of this blaster is that it has a very low rate of fire and a relatively short range, but it makes up for it in its ability to stun your opponent. Because it overheat the blaster rather quickly, The CA-87 is a shock blaster, meaning that it fires like a shotgun. When you are in close proximity to your target, it is highly effective. However, at any other range, you may encounter a major challenge when trying to take down your opponent.

T-21

Type: Heavy Blaster

Rank Available: 10

Unlock Price (Credits): 2500

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The T-21 Heavy Blaster is an extremely high-powered single-shot weapon. Firing this weapon as fast as it's up for grabs will overheat the weapon fairly quickly, so take a moment between shots and your cooling system will keep it relatively cool. you must constantly fire it, pulling the trigger repeatedly to heat it up. Firing off three to four shots at a time is a good burst that keeps the gun from ever overheating. The downside is that this weapon is designed for advanced shooters simply because it is a slow-firing weapon. Aim down the sights and count, and do your best to hit them in the head. The better you are at doing this with the T-21, the more often of a player you will be.

SE-14C

Type: Blaster Pistol

Rank Available: 14

Unlock Price (Credits): 2500

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

This blaster pistol is another weapon that works best for advanced players. The rate of fire is quite fast, but the damage is a little low. Because of this, it is important to fire off short, quick bursts to avoid overheating the weapon. The SE-14C has a very bad overheating problem as you may have on the battlefield. Though the burst fire does not touch trigger control, it does allow you to let the blaster cool off between shots. The SE-14C is highly effective if every shot from the burst lands on the target. Without giving your enemies a chance to recover health, hitting them with a few bursts is sure to take them down quickly.

EE-3

Type: Blaster Rifle

Rank Available: 17

Unlock Price (Credits): 2500

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The EE-3 Blaster Rifle might look familiar if you are a fan of the great bounty hunter Boba Fett. This is another blaster that fires a little slower than most, but it makes up for it in its damage output. The EE-3 is a long-range blaster, so you'll want to keep your shots a little less delirious here. This is both a strength and a weakness for the EE-3. The quick burst limits you because you have less chance of missing your target on the last bolt in the blast, assuming that the first bolt hits. However, it can hurt you if you are not paying attention to the heat gauge. Like any fully automatic blaster, the possibility of rapid overheating applies to the EE-3. To make the most out of this blaster rifle, be careful and watch your HUD. Once you have more experience and mastery of the weapon, the EE-3 is one of the most powerful blasters in Star Wars Battlefront.

T-21B

Type: Targeting Rifle

Rank Available: 21

Unlock Price (Credits): 2500

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The T-21B Targeting Rifle is extremely effective at long distances because of the accuracy and range that have been built into this blaster. As the longer-ranged version of the T-21, the T-21B is equipped with a scope and an improved sight system that makes aiming down the sights a breeze. This blaster is a sniper rifle, so you'll want to use it in modes that require a long-range, up-close battle with your opponents. This blaster is just not made for those situations. If you have chances in modes like Supremacy or Walker Assault to keep your distance and pick off your opponents, this is the best pile of action and keeps you at the highest advantage against enemy forces.

DL-44

Type: Blaster Pistol

Rank Available: 25

Unlock Price (Credits): 2500

DAMAGE
RATE OF FIRE
RANGE
HEAT
OVERALL RANGE

The iconic DL-44 has one of the highest damage stats in the game, allowing you to take down enemies rather quickly, but all range. It will drop in damage as stay several rows of how far you are before engaging in battle. Equipped with a scope, this rifle does wonders at long range in accuracy but can also bewilder your opponent in a close-quarters combat situation. One of only downsides to this weapon is that it is a single-shot blaster that over heats after about 6 shots, which forces you to make every shot count if you are engaging in battle. Because of the high amount of damage this blaster can output, it is recommended that you use it in modes like Hero Hunt. Keep the enemy at a medium range for the highest level of success, but know that this weapon can still perform rather nicely in close quarters.

STAR WARS™ & ™ EA DICE. All rights reserved. Game code and screen audio under visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Iron Front and Commissariat

Jump to navigation Jump to search

Iron Front and Commissariat are the two factions in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides.

Iron Front

Iron Front Loadout Screen

Iron Front is a faction in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides. They are the Germans.

Weapons

Iron Front Weapons

Vehicles

Iron Front Vehicles

Gadgets

Iron Front Gadgets

Commissariat

Commissariat Loadout Screen

Commissariat is a faction in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides. They are the Russians.

Weapons

Commissariat Weapons

Vehicles

Commissariat Vehicles

Gadgets

Commissariat Gadgets

Weapons

Weapons

Assault

Assault

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Assault is a specialization in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides.

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Rifle

Automatic Rifle

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Shotgun

Automatic Shotgun

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Light Machine Gun

Light Machine Gun

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Pump Shotgun

Pump Shotgun

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Sub-Machine Gun

Sub-Machine Gun

Type: Assault

Specialization: Assault

Specialization Effect: Assault Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Support

Support

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Support is a specialization in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides.

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Rifle

Automatic Rifle

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Shotgun

Automatic Shotgun

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Light Machine Gun

Light Machine Gun

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Pump Shotgun

Pump Shotgun

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Sub-Machine Gun

Sub-Machine Gun

Type: Support

Specialization: Support

Specialization Effect: Support Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Scout

Scout

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Scout is a specialization in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides.

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Rifle

Automatic Rifle

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Shotgun

Automatic Shotgun

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Light Machine Gun

Light Machine Gun

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Pump Shotgun

Pump Shotgun

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Sub-Machine Gun

Sub-Machine Gun

Type: Scout

Specialization: Scout

Specialization Effect: Scout Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Tactical

Tactical

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Tactical is a specialization in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides.

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Rifle

Automatic Rifle

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Automatic Shotgun

Automatic Shotgun

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Light Machine Gun

Light Machine Gun

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Pump Shotgun

Pump Shotgun

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Semi-Automatic Rifle

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Sub-Machine Gun

Sub-Machine Gun

Type: Tactical

Specialization: Tactical

Specialization Effect: Tactical Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Vehicles

Vehicles

Tanks

Tanks

Type: Tank

Specialization: Tank

Specialization Effect: Tank Specialization Effect

Tank is a specialization in Battlefield 1 Turning Tides.

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Anti-Tank Gun

Anti-Tank Gun

Type: Tank

Specialization: Tank

Specialization Effect: Tank Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Assault

Assault

Type: Tank

Specialization: Tank

Specialization Effect: Tank Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Support

Support

Type: Tank

Specialization: Tank

Specialization Effect: Tank Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Tactical

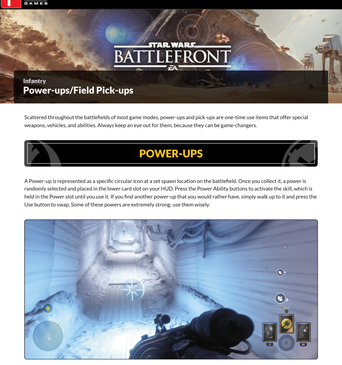

Tactical

Type: Tank

Specialization: Tank

Specialization Effect: Tank Specialization Effect

Stats	Information
Damage	Medium
Fire Rate	Medium
Accuracy	Medium-Long Range
Ammo Type	Medium

Power-ups/Field Pick-ups

Scattered throughout the battlefields of most game modes, power-ups and pick-ups are one-time-use items that offer special weapons, vehicles, and abilities. Always keep an eye out for them, because they can be game-changers.

POWER-UPS

A Power-up is represented as a specific circular icon at a set spawn location on the battlefield. Once you collect it, a power is randomly selected and placed in the lower card slot on your HUD. Press the Power Ability buttons to activate the skill, which is held in the Power slot until you use it. If you find another power-up that you would rather have, simply walk up to it and press the Use button to swap. Some of these powers are extremely strong; use them wisely.

BLASTER CANNON

Stationary blaster that can be placed anywhere there is space. Operates just like the E-Web blasters. It has a shield and stays at a location until destroyed.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Shield Health	200
Rate of Fire	275 RPM
Damage	35 plus 25 explosion damage
Radius	1.3 Meters

CARD REFRESH

Instantly refreshes Star and Charged Star Cards in a hand. Use up your arsenal to take full advantage of this power-up.

INFANTRY TURRET

Automated defense that targets Infantry. It remains active until destroyed. Look for populated locations for maximum effect. Objectives, chokepoints, and power-up locations all work well.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Lock Time	1.5 Seconds (3 Seconds beyond 40 Meters)
Rate of Fire	425 RPM
Damage	10

ORBITAL STRIKE

An artillery barrage that rains destruction on a chosen outdoor location. Aim your shot until the blue reticle lines up with the desired target, and then fire. An aware opponent has time to flee, though. Great against a mob of soldiers or an objective. In an objective-based game, don't worry if kills are not acquired, as clearing out an enemy position is often the first priority. Max damage is ensured unless target exits danger zone. Note that an Orbital Strike cannot be used inside.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Radius	18 Meters
Damage	100 per projectile

PROXIMITY BOMB

Drop the bomb near objectives or any location you want protected. The powerful bomb detonates when anyone gets too close. A beeping sound alerts you that it's active. If you hear a high-pitched beeping noise, you have entered the trigger area of a hostile Proximity Bomb—get out of there!

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Proximity	7 Meters
Fuse	1.5 Seconds when Triggered
Damage	150
Radius	7 Meters, Max Damage within 5 Meters

SENSOR DROID

Gives you a support droid equipped with a blaster. Imperial forces receive a Viper Probe Droid, while Rebels get an Astromech Droid. Both are weak to ion damage. Each droid has two special abilities: lock on and fire upon soldiers as well as other droids and a scan pulse that makes enemies visible for all teammates.

R5 DROID STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Type	Ground Droid
Lock Time	1
Rate of Fire	500 RPM
Damage	20

VIPER DROID STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Type	Repulsor
Lock Time	1
Rate of Fire	200 RPM
Damage	20

SMART ROCKET

This powerful rocket/missile hybrid locks on to vehicles, but it can also be quick-fired against infantry. Locks on and tracks vehicles if fired in general direction. Try to fire from cover to minimize damage taken.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Fuse	Explodes on impact
Damage	500
Radius	3 Meters, Max Damage within 2 Meters

SQUAD SHIELD

Activate to put up a small circular shield for 90 seconds, big enough for several players. Anyone inside cannot shoot out, but it does block blasters, explosions, and grenades. Both friends and foes can destroy the transmitter that projects the shield.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Health	1000

THERMAL IMPLODER

A high-damage grenade with a big area of effect. This has an extremely large radius, which works great against groups of enemies. Be careful that you don't end up in the explosion yourself.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Fuse	1.5 Seconds after impact
Damage	200
Radius	11 Meters, Max Damage within 7 Meters

VEHICLE TURRET

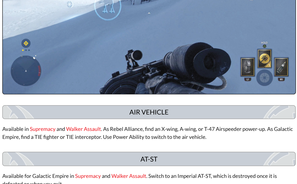

An automated defense that targets vehicles with rockets. It remains active until destroyed. Look for a semi-protected location to place the turret, keeping in mind that it needs to get shots on the machines.

STATS

NAME	CONDITION
Lock Time	1 Second
Ammo	10
Reload Time	10 Seconds
Damage	Take down AT-ST if all ten rockets hit

FIELD POWER-UPS

Vehicle and hero power-ups are found on the battlefield in Supremacy and Walker Assault modes. A unique icon indicates the item being collected. Once you've picked one up, you have 15 seconds to activate the power with the Power Ability buttons before it disappears. Since you are vulnerable to attack, find a safe place to use the power.

AIR VEHICLE

Available in Supremacy and Walker Assault. As Rebel Alliance, find an X-wing, A-wing, or T-47 Airspeeder power-up. As Galactic Empire, find a TIE fighter or TIE interceptor. Use Power Ability to switch to the air vehicle.

AT-ST

Available for Galactic Empire in Supremacy and Walker Assault. Switch to an Imperial AT-ST, which is destroyed once it is defeated or when you exit.

AT-AT

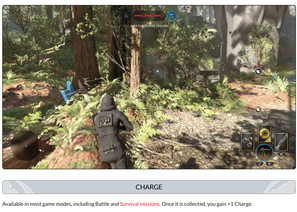

Available for Galactic Empire in Walker Assault only. –Take command of the three weapons on an AT-AT.

HERO

Available in Supremacy and Walker Assault. Once you collect it, activate the power-up to choose from three heroes, depending on your faction. Rebel Alliance chooses from Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Princess Leia. Galactic Empire picks from Darth Vader, Emperor Palpatine, and Boba Fett.

PICK-UPS

Pick-ups are different than power-ups since their benefit is automatically applied when collected. Charge pick-ups are found in most game modes, while the others are limited to specific modes.

CHARGE

Available in most game modes, including Battle and Survival missions. Once it is collected, you gain +1 Charge.

HERO VEHICLE

Available in Fighter Squadron only. This Jedi icon transports you from your starfighter to one of two hero vehicles. Rebel Alliance gets the Millennium Falcon, while Galactic Empire uses Slave I.

EXTRA LIFE

Available in Survival only. Gives you an extra life.

VEHICLE REPAIR

Available in Fighter Squadron and Beggar's Canyon Training mission. Fly through the icon to heal your air vehicle.

ABILITY REFRESH

Available in Fighter Squadron only. Fly your ship through the icon to reset abilities for immediate use.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Vehicles and Turrets

Introduction

Air and ground vehicles play a significant role in both Walker Assault and Supremacy, while Fighter Squadron is all about the starfighters, making it well worth your time to learn how to operate them all. The four training missions that introduce you to the X-wing, Speeder Bike, AT-ST, and T-47 Airspeeder are a great place to get started.

Most vehicles are restricted to one faction or the other with the exception of the Imperial Speeder Bike, which Rebels can operate as well. Turrets are not exclusive to either side and can be used by anyone, except when you are playing as a hero.

A vehicle's primary laser cannons overheat with extended use, as a curved bar beneath the reticle indicates. The meter turns red as you continue holding the trigger. Firing in bursts keeps them from overheating, but if they do reach that point, the weapon becomes unusable until it has cooled off. This loses valuable time, which can result in you missing out on a kill in a dogfight. Vehicle abilities also require a cool down, just like a hero's ability or a soldier's Star Cards.

In Supremacy and Walker Assault, you can abandon a vehicle at any time by holding down the Use button. Control then returns to your infantry character. Take notice of when you are needed back on the ground and should return to your original soldier. Control is lost while abandoning your vehicle, so be sure that you are not headed to your death before you can exit.

Vehicles can tip a battle in your faction's favor, but know your place. If your current objective requires you to remain as a soldier, then forgo the opportunity and continue the ground fight. Be aware of what is happening around you, in the air, and below you.

VEHICLE POWER-UPS

In Supremacy and Walker Assault, vehicle power-ups are scattered all around the battlefield. They appear on your heads-up display once they are within range. Pick one up and activate it to get the opportunity to take control of that vehicle. Try finding a safe place to do so, as your soldier is vulnerable during this time away.

Each time you collect a vehicle power-up, you must decide whether to keep your boots on the ground or take to the skies. Assess the current situation, and make the decision based on your faction's current needs. Are there enemy starfighters that need to be taken care of? Does the current objective require more help on the ground? You only have 15 seconds to use a vehicle before the power-up is lost.

VEHICLE REPAIR, ABILITY REFRESH, AND HERO VEHICLE PICK-UPS

Fighter Squadron employs three different pick-ups. Ability refresh instantly cools the ship's abilities, making them available for immediate use. Fly through the hero vehicle pick-up to switch to the Millennium Falcon or Slave 1, depending on which faction you fight for. Vehicle repair pick-ups recover health when your aircraft has been damaged and are also available in the Beggar's Canyon training mission.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Vehicles and Turrets

Ground Vehicles

Only three vehicles (all from the Galactic Empire) operate on the ground level: AT-ATs, AT-STs, and the Speeder Bike. The walkers are well-armored machines with high-powered weapons, but they are slow and cumbersome. AT-ATs automatically move along a set path in Walker Assault, while AT-STs control much like a soldier but cannot enter tight spaces. Speeder Bikes have little in the way of weaponry, but they make up for it in speed and agility. They can get you where you want to go in a snap.

WALKER CONTROLS

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Move (AT-AT moves automatically)	Left Thumbstick	Left Stick
Aim	Right Thumbstick	Right Stick
Fire Primary Weapon	RT	R2
Zoom (Aim Assist)	LT	L2
Left Ability	LB	L1
Right Ability	RB	R1
Top Ability (if Available)	Y	Triangle
Sprint (AT-ST Only)	Left Thumbstick (Click)	L3
Abandon Vehicle	X	Square

AT-AT

Available game modes: Walker Assault

Type: Four-legged walker

Faction: Galactic Empire

AT-AT ABILITIES

ABILITY	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Small Laser Cannon	Left Ability	Mounted on the sides of the head, this works best against quicker targets (like infantry).
Big Laser Cannon	Right Ability	Mounted below the head, this works best against tougher targets.
Orbital Strike	Top Ability	This artillery barrage rains destruction on a chosen location. Aim your shot until the blue reticle lines up with the desired target, and then fire.

The iconic Imperial walker is at the center of Walker Assault, a Multiplayer mode where the Rebel Alliance and the Galactic Empire fight over two of the gigantic quadrupeds. The Imperial soldiers must protect the behemoths as they walk across the battlefield, while the Rebels attempt to take them down.

Playing for the Galactic Empire, a soldier must find the AT-AT power-up in order to take control of it. It moves on rails, so there's no need to worry about directing it. Three weapons make it a menace to Rebel soldiers. A small laser cannon on each side of its head is mapped to the Left Card slot, while a pair of more powerful cannons, triggered by the Right Card button, is situated underneath the head.

The lighter upper guns are best used against quicker opponents, such as infantry forces. Save the large cannons for tougher targets like those pesky turrets. A view from above its head gives a great vantage point for the light cannons. The camera shifts below the head when the more powerful cannons are used.

An AT-AT's guns are controlled differently than other vehicles. Pressing one of the Ability buttons simply chooses an ability. Press the Fire button to use the selected weapon. The fire rate of the cannons is relatively slow, but they are powerful. Mix up your attacks to take full advantage of its arsenal.

The AT-AT is slow and cumbersome, with a limited upper range when aiming the cannons. This makes it tough to take on the quick and agile starfighters. Rely on your aerial support for that, and concentrate your gunfire on emplacements and groups of infantry.

When using an AT-AT power-up, you are limited to 60 seconds in the cockpit, so make the time count. A meter at the bottom of the HUD lets you know how much time remains.

AT-ST

Available game modes: Overpower training mission, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Bipedal walker

Faction: Galactic Empire

AT-ST ABILITIES

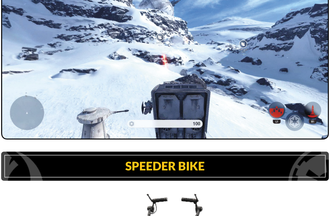

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Concussion Grenade Launcher	5	Left Ability	This launches three grenades and works well against groups of infantry.
Homing Missiles	10	Right Ability	This fires a projectile that homes in on a target.

An All Terrain Scout Transport is a bipedal walker equipped with a variety of armaments. A blaster cannon operates as the primary weapon, overheating when used for a long period without pause. A grenade launcher, equipped in the left slot, fires a volley of three grenades and is capable of wiping out a group of infantry. A homing missile, fired with a press of the Right Card button, can take down a starfighter as long as it has time to get a bead on the target. This makes it a versatile machine for destroying any target.

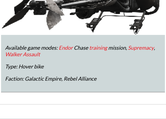

Watch the flight patterns of the starfighters, and note the best opportunities to take them down. Your homing missiles require a little time to lock on to their target. The moment a fighter appears in the distance is a great time to launch the projectile, giving it plenty of time to do its job.

The AT-ST is moved just like a soldier, even sprinting when you press in the left stick. It doesn't take long to get the hang of things. Its armor stands up to infantry gunfire very well, but watch out for anti-vehicle turrets and attacks from above. This walker can be a force to be reckoned with, but beware of complacency, as you are still vulnerable.

Available in Supremacy and Walker Assault when sliding with the Galactic Empire, the walker is a great asset in most situations. However, its inability to move through small openings does limit its usefulness in certain areas. Check out the Overpower training mission to learn all of its ins and outs. These vehicles join the attacking Imperial forces on Survival missions, giving you a great opportunity to learn their weaknesses.

SPEEDER BIKE

Available game modes: Endor Chase training mission, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Hover bike

Faction: Galactic Empire, Rebel Alliance

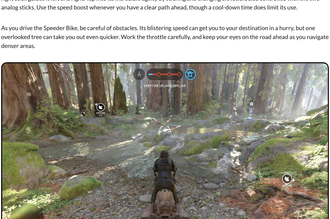

SPEEDER BIKE CONTROLS

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Throttle Increase/Decrease	Left Thumbstick Up/Down	Left Stick Up/Down
Strafe Left/Right	Left Thumbstick Left/Right	Left Stick Left/Right
Elevation Increase/Decrease	Right Thumbstick Up/Down	Right Stick Up/Down
Aim	Right Thumbstick Left/Right	Right Stick Left/Right
Fire	RT	R2
Soft Lock (Hold)	LT	L2
Speed Boost (Nine-Second Cool Down)	LB	L1
1st/3rd Person (Hold)	Down on D-Pad	Down on D-Pad

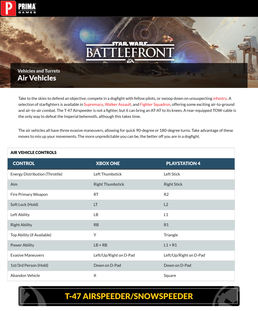

The Imperial Speeder Bike is available in Supremacy and Walker Assault, as well as the Endor Chase training mission. It is very agile and extremely fast, especially with the speed boost activated. A weak laser cannon offers a little firepower, but don't plan on taking on an entire army. Although it is an Imperial vehicle, Rebels can swipe one for their own use.

Despite it being a ground vehicle, the Hover Bike is controlled more like an aircraft. The left stick acts as the throttle, and the right stick guides it left and right. Tap into its incredible agility by strafing and changing elevation, also controlled with the two analog sticks. Use the speed boost whenever you have a clear path ahead, though a cool-down time does limit its use.

As you drive the Speeder Bike, be careful of obstacles. Its blistering speed can get you to your destination in a hurry, but one overlooked tree can take you out even quicker. Work the throttle carefully, and keep your eyes on the road ahead as you navigate denser areas.

STAR WARS® © ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Vehicles and Turrets

Air Vehicles

Take to the skies to defend or attack the campaign in a starfighter with fellow pilots, or swoop down on unsuspecting infantry. A selection of starfighters is available in Supremacy, Walker Assault, and Fighter Squadron, offering some exciting air-to-ground and air-to-air combat. The T-47 Airspeeder is not a fighter, but it can be flung as an AT-AT to its knee. A two-equipped TOW cable is the only way to defeat the imperial behemoth, although this takes time.

The air vehicles all have three evasive maneuvers, allowing for quick 90-degree or 180-degree turns. Take advantage of these moves to mix up your movements. The more unpredictable you can be, the better off you are in a dogfight.

AIR VEHICLE CONTROLS

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Energy Distribution (Throttle)	Left Thumbstick	Left Stick
Aim	Right Thumbstick	Right Stick
Fire Primary Weapon	RT	R2
Soft Lock (Hold)	LT	L2
Left Ability	LB	L1
Right Ability	RB	R1
Top Ability (if Available)	Y	Triangle
Power Ability	LB + RB	L1 + R1
Evasive Maneuvers	Left/Up/Right or D-Pad	Left/Up/Right or D-Pad
Up/3rd Person (Hold)	Down or D-Pad	Down or D-Pad
Abandon Vehicle	X	Square

T-47 AIRSPEEDER/SNOWSPEEDER

Available game modes: Elevation training mission, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Repulsorlift

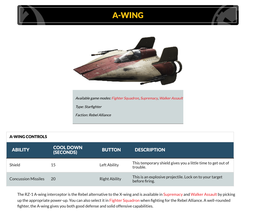

Faction: Rebel Alliance

AIRSPEEDER/SNOWSPEEDER CONTROLS

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Speed Boost	15	Left Ability	This maxes out speed for a few seconds, which is great for rapidly closing in on an AT-AT.
Sensor Jammer (10 Seconds)	15	Right Ability	This jams nearby scanners for 10 seconds, making you invisible on their radar.
TOW-Cable	N/A	Power Ability	Fired from the rear, this can take down an AT-AT by wrapping itself around the walker's legs.

The Snowspeeder is not the fastest of the air vehicles. However, its ion afterburner does give a nice speed boost when needed, even though it can only be used once every 15 seconds. A sensor jammer keeps the plug-off the radar for 10 seconds, great for sweeping in on a vulnerable AT-AT. The only real weapon on the vehicle is the rear TOW cable launcher. This leaves it with little attacking prowess, but a rear TOW cable does offer the ability to take down an AT-AT.

The speeder's pace is set with the throttle, indicated by the yellow meter at the bottom of the HUD. Simply set it to the desired speed, and leave it alone. The ship's evasive maneuvers are unlike the fighters. Pressing left or right causes the ship to bank in those directions, making very tight 180-degree turns. When you push up, the ship rapidly ascends to a higher altitude before settling back down.

DESTROY AN AT-AT WITH THE TOW-CABLE

Fly the Airspeeder near an AT-AT, and activate the TOW-cable when prompted. Note that the walker must be vulnerable in Walker Assault. This brings up a vertical bar with an Airspeeder icon inside. Press up and down on the right stick to keep the icon inside the bar. As long as the icon remains white, you are good. It turns red when you are in danger of losing the TOW-cable's hold, although you do have a little time to recover before it is completely lost.

Four shots appear by the AT-AT's ankle; from there, whenever you succeed, the camera jolts. Each time one changes color, the overall bar loses a shot and you're automatically hit inside. Many very light adjustments to the stick to keep it in the middle. After the fourth shot, you receive confirmation of your success, and the walker is taken down. Be ready to quickly pull back to avoid flying into the ground.

Taking damage can break the cable and cause you to fail the procedure. At the very least, it can knock you off course, sending you into danger. Quickly bring the icon back into the safe range. Note that weapon fire from any walker can cause this effect. Also, watch out when a walker is located close to a wall or cliff. This makes it extremely tough to fly around it without losing contact.

A-WING

Available game modes: Fighter Squadron, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Starfighter

Faction: Rebel Alliance

A-WING CONTROLS

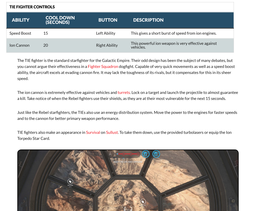

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Shield	15	Left Ability	This temporary shield gives you a little time to get out of trouble.
Concussion Missiles	20	Right Ability	This is an explosive projectile. Lock on to your target before firing.

The RZ-1 A-wing interceptor is the Rebel alternative to the K-wing and is available in Supremacy and Walker Assault by picking up the appropriate power-up. You can also select it in Fighter Squadron when fighting for the Rebel Alliance. A well-rounded fighter, the A-wing gives you both good defense and solid offensive capabilities.

Sunlight engines provide decent speed to the starfighter, while a temporary shield can be activated with the Left Ability. Lock on to an enemy, and tap it to shrink with a effect of a concussion missile. TIEs can be tough to target with their squirrely movements—ensure patient and wait for your moment.

STARFIGHTERS' ENERGY DISTRIBUTION

For all starfighters and Hero ships, the speed is adjusted with the throttle, but unlike the Airspeeder, it also acts as an energy distribution system. A meter just above the fighter's health indicates the power setting. Push up, and energy is shifted to your engines, speeding you up. Push down, and power is sent to your weapon systems, slowing you down while making the fighter's primary weapon more effective.

X-WING

Available game modes: Rogue's Canyon training mission, Fighter Squadron, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Starfighter

Faction: Rebel Alliance

X-WING CONTROLS

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Shield	15	Left Ability	A temporary shield gives you a little time to get out of trouble.
Proton Torpedoes	20	Right Ability	This is a powerful projectile. Lock on to your target before firing.

The T-65 X-wing is more powerful than its Imperial equivalents, though it lacks the agility and quickness of the TIEs. Very similar to the A-wing, the fighter is equipped with a temporary shield and Proton Torpedoes. It is this projectile that ends it apart from the Rebel counterpart. The ordnance does an incredible job of homing in on its target, with enough power to take down a starfighter.

Work the laser cannons in bursts to avoid overheating as you dogfight with the Imperial fighters. It may be necessary to fire ahead of your target to damage it—a message appears in the middle of your HUD when you are successful. The shield ability does not last long, but it can absorb an otherwise deadly shot, giving you a chance to flee to safer skies. Do not forget about the ship's evasive maneuvers, as they can also be a life saver.

Remember to use the energy distribution system to your advantage. As you close in on your next target, shift energy to the engines before powering up the laser cannons and lighting your opponent up. Add power back to the engines to stay behind a fleeing fighter, giving them no time to regain. Watch a TIE fighter's flight pattern. They must wait 15 seconds after using the speed boost before it comes back online. Timing your attacks can be the difference that gives your side the victory.

TIE FIGHTER

Available game modes: Fighter Squadron, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Starfighter

Faction: Galactic Empire

TIE FIGHTER CONTROLS

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Speed Boost	15	Left Ability	This gives a short burst of speed from ion engines.
Ion Cannon	20	Right Ability	This powerful ion weapon is very effective against vehicles.

The TIE fighter is the standard starfighter for the Galactic Empire. Their odd design has been the subject of many debates, but you cannot argue their effectiveness in a Fighter Squadron dogfight. Capable of very quick movements as well as a speed boost ability, the aircraft excels at evading cannon fire. It may lack the toughness of its rivals, but it compensates for this in its sheer speed.

The ion cannon is extremely effective against vehicles and turrets. Lock on a target and launch the projectile to almost guarantee a kill. Take notice of when the Rebel fighters use their shields, as they are at their most vulnerable for the next 15 seconds.

Just like the Rebel starfighters, the TIE is also use an energy distribution system. Move the power to the engines for faster speeds and to the cannon for better primary weapon performance.

TIE fighters also make an appearance in Survival on Sullust. To take them down, use the provided turbolasers or equip the Ion Torpedo Star Card.

TIE INTERCEPTOR

Available game modes: Fighter Squadron, Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Starfighter

Faction: Galactic Empire

TIE INTERCEPTOR CONTROLS

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Speed Boost	15	Left Ability	This gives a short burst of speed from ion engines.
Ion Cannon	20	Right Ability	This powerful ion weapon is very effective against vehicles.

Besides the wing shape, the TIE interceptor is identical to the fighter. It is similarly equipped with a speed boost, allowing you to close distances or escape in a hurry. An ion cannon locks on to Rebel targets before delivering a high-damaging shot. Use its great maneuverability and evasive moves to shake Rebel pursuers and get behind your next target.

Just like the others, the interceptor uses an energy distribution system to power its engines and cannon. Make adjustments to this as you engage the enemy. The TIE's primary weapon is fairly underpowered, so it is sometimes necessary to shift power that way to take an opponent down.

STAR WARS™ & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Games code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Vehicles and Turrets

Hero Ships

Controlled in the same manner as the normal starfighters, hero ships are only available in Fighter Squadron mode by collecting a special hero vehicle pick-up. They are both very well-armored and are equipped with a third ability. Just like the starfighters, these powerful aircraft also possess an energy distribution system.

Be aware that once you collect the pick-up, you become the primary target for most players on the opposing faction. Make them pay with your superior firepower and defense.

MILLENNIUM FALCON

Available game modes: Fighter Squadron

Type: Hero ship

Faction: Rebel Alliance

MILLENNIUM FALCON CONTROLS

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Shield	15	Left Ability	A temporary shield gives you a little time to escape a hairy situation.
Concussion Missiles	5	Right Ability	This is a powerful rocket. Lock on to a target, and deploy the explosive.
Speed Boost	15	Top Ability	This maxes out speed for a short period, which is great for closing in on a target or getting away.

The heavily modified YT-1300 freighter is only available in Fighter Squadron by flying an X-wing or A-wing through a hero vehicle pick-up. This instantly switches you to the Falcon. This well-armored vessel has three abilities: a shield, missiles, and a speed boost.

The hero ship already has higher armor than the normal fighters. Activate the shield ability to boost your defense for a short period, allowing you to escape trouble. The concussion missiles are high-powered rockets. Lock on to your target for an easier shot. The modified sublight engines allow the aircraft to get a significant speed boost, though it does take a little longer to get this hunk of junk going.

When you're being targeted, try to lose your pursuer with the same evasive maneuvers as the regular Rebel starfighters. Pressing left or right performs a barrel roll, while pressing up causes a 180-degree turn.

SLAVE I

Available game modes: Fighter Squadron

Type: Hero ship

Faction: Galactic Empire

SLAVE 1 CONTROLS

ABILITY	COOL DOWN (SECONDS)	BUTTON	DESCRIPTION
Proton Torpedoes	5	Left Ability	This is a powerful projectile. Lock on to your target before firing.
Ion Cannon	20	Right Ability	This powerful ion weapon is very effective against vehicles.
Sensor Jammer(10 Seconds)	15	Top Ability	This jams nearby scanners for 10 seconds, making you invisible on their radar.

Slave 1 is Galactic Empire's hero ship, piloted by the bounty hunter Boba Fett. Exclusive to Fighter Squadron mode, you must collect a hero vehicle pick-up to take control of this spacecraft. This oddly shaped spacecraft is extremely agile and carries a powerful arsenal. Take yourself off the radar with sensor jammer, move in on your target, and light it up with your array of weapons.

With its Proton Torpedoes and ion cannon, Slave 1 has the unique ability to lock on to successive fighters, taking down multiple targets in a small timespan. Its firepower also allows it to directly battle the Rebel's hero ship, the Millennium Falcon, though Han Solo's freighter isn't going down too easily.

The usual evasive maneuvers are available for Slave 1. Combine that with its tight turns, and it can be difficult to target.

STAR WARS © & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Turrets

Various turrets have been set up around the environment. Either faction can employ the E-Web blaster (widely used throughout the maps), along with the ATGAR-14, DF-9, and turbolaser, which are limited to specific locations. Also, keep in mind that the turrets are destructible. Ion weapons, such as an Ion Grenade, are extremely effective against them. Watch your flank when operating one of the open turrets, as you are vulnerable to attack.

TURRET CONTROLS

CONTROL	XBOX ONE	PLAYSTATION 4
Aim	Right Thumbstick	Right Stick
Operate/Exit Turret	X	Square
Fire	RT	R2
Zoom	LT	L2

E-WEB

Available game modes: Any mode with infantry

Type: Stationary blaster

E-Web turrets are located all throughout the four planets, offering decent firepower against groups of soldiers. Available to either faction, using the stationary blaster opens you up to rear and side attacks. Unless you are confident that your flanks are protected, do not spend too much time on the gun.

ATGAR-14

Available game modes: Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Light anti-vehicle turret

This light anti-vehicle turret is effective against other turrets, while also capable of damaging vehicles. It is not enclosed, so you are vulnerable to attacks during operation. The fixed emplacement rotates 360 degrees with very limited up and down movement, though it can hit a low-flying aircraft. It is slow to shoot its powerful bolts, so aim ahead of any moving target (it is best used against stationary targets). A slow rate of fire means that you must make every shot count.

DF-9 TURRET

Available game modes: Supremacy, Walker Assault

Type: Anti-infantry turret

Found exclusively on Hoth, this fully enclosed, anti-infantry turret is great for defending objectives. Be careful in Walker Assault, as these gun emplacements are weak against their mighty firepower. The gun rotates a full 360 degrees, with limited up and down movement. It overheats after several shots, allowing you to take out a group of infantry if necessary. While it is unable to hurt other turrets and vehicles, it deals a little damage to the weakened underbelly of an AT-AT.

TURBOLASER

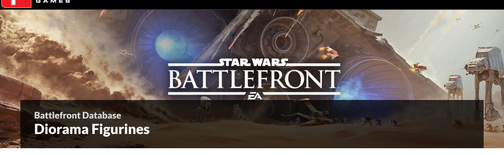

Available game modes: Survival on Sullust

Type: Heavy anti-vehicle turret

Found exclusively at the Imperial base on Sullust, this anti-vehicle turret is extremely deadly against the AT-STs and TIE fighters that attack in Survival mode. Step inside the big cannon, and use its powerful laser to knock the fighters out of the sky. Fire ahead of the flying vehicles to take them down. Waiting until they fly straight out or toward your locations makes shooting them down much easier.

The high-powered laser cannon does overheat, so watch the meter just below the reticle. While it can take quite a bit of abuse, it can also be destroyed. Take control of one, and its health bar displays in place of your own.

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battlefront Database

Diorama Figurines

Beyond the stars, credits, and Multiplayer ranks that you earn as you play the game, awards are given as you complete tasks and reach milestones. These allow you to show off your accomplishments in Star Wars Battlefront. You can view a diorama full of 3D models, which you unlock by reaching certain goals. You earn these Trophies or Achievements by completing various actions.

To view a scene full of character and vehicle figurines, select Diorama from the Collect menu. Figurines are spread across four islands, representing the four planets in the game. You unlock the 3D models by hitting specific milestones in Multiplayer and Missions modes. Categorized by how they are earned, the following tables list all of the figurines, along with how they are unlocked and the island on which they are found.

RANK AND SCORE

Collect points via in-game scoring events, accolades, and challenges to increase your rank. After you play many hours of Multiplayer, Rank 50 and 1,000,000 points are reached, and these models are unlocked.

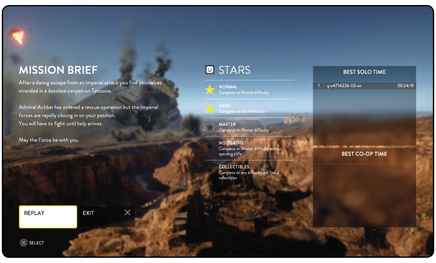

FIGURINE	UNLOCK DESCRIPTION	PLANET
Stormtrooper	Achieve Rank 10.	Tatooine
Princess Leia	Achieve Rank 50.	Hoth
Han Solo	Earn 1,000,000 score in Multiplayer.	Tatooine

GAME MODES

You unlock the following models by playing a whole lot of Multiplayer games. You must win 10 matches in all nine game modes, as well as play another 20 games of Walker Assault.

FIGURINE	UNLOCK DESCRIPTION	PLANET
T-47 Airspeeder	Win 10 matches of each Multiplayer game mode.	Hoth
AT-AT	Play 30 matches of Walker Assault.	Hoth

MISSIONS

You unlock four figurines through the Missions modes. In fact, you must complete everything possible in the single player/co-op side to get them. Refer to the Missions chapter for collectible locations and full details on how to get all 75 stars.

FIGURINE	UNLOCK DESCRIPTION	PLANET
Endor Rebel with Smart Rocket	Complete all Battle missions on Master difficulty while playing against AI.	Endor
AT-ST	Beat all Survival missions on Master difficulty.	Endor
Luke Skywalker	Find all collectibles (Missions).	Endor
Emperor Palpatine	Collect every star on every mission.	Sullust

KILLS

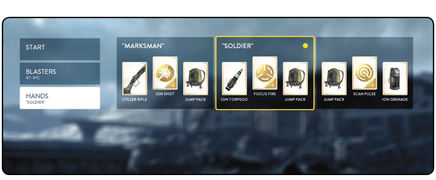

There are six figurines devoted to killing in Star Wars Battlefront. You can earn these in any mode of Multiplayer or Missions.

FIGURINE	UNLOCK DESCRIPTION	PLANET
TIE Fighter	Destroy 150 vehicles.	Sullust
Magmatrooper	Get a total of 1,500 kills as an Imperial soldier.	Sullust
Tatooine Rebel	Get a total of 1,500 kills as a Rebel soldier.	Tatooine
Scout Trooper	Perform 250 headshot kills.	Endor
Millennium Falcon	Score 100 kills with either the Millennium Falcon or Slave I.	Tatooine
Darth Vader	Defeat 250 soldiers while playing as a hero.	Endor

GENERAL

You unlock the following models by using a variety of items in Multiplayer and Missions modes. Equip a Trait in your Multiplayer loadout, and then score kill streaks to level it up. This level is reset at the end of each round. You must reach Level 3 with all five Traits to get the shadowtrooper. There are 13 Asset Star Cards, and each gives you a weapon. Get at least one kill with each card to get the Boba Fett figurine.

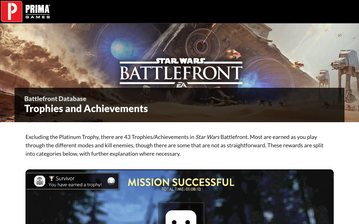

FIGURINE	UNLOCK DESCRIPTION	PLANET
X-Wing	Pick up and use 200 power-ups.	Tatooine
Shadowtrooper	Reach Level 3 at least once on every Trait.	Hoth
Boba Fett	Use all Star Cards and get a kill with every weapon.	Tatooine
Slave I	Ride in vehicles for a total of 10 hours.	Sullust

BASE COMMAND

Download the Star Wars Battlefront Companion app and play the Base Command game. Get a three-star rating on the first siege in the Rebel campaign to unlock this figurine.

FIGURINE	UNLOCK DESCRIPTION	PLANET
Twi'lek Rebel	In Base Command, achieve a three-star rating on the first siege in the Rebel campaign.	Sullust

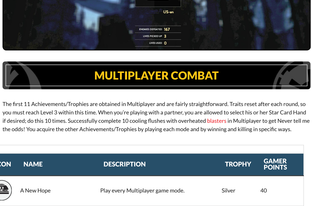

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.

Battlefront Database

Trophies and Achievements

Excluding the Platinum Trophy, there are 43 Trophies/Achievements in Star Wars Battlefront. Most are earned as you play through the different modes and kill enemies, though there are some that are not as straightforward. These rewards are split into categories below, with further explanation where necessary.

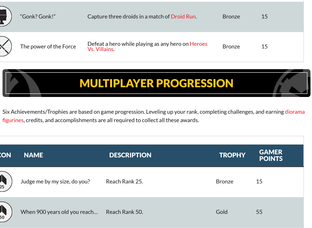

MULTIPLAYER COMBAT

The first 11 Achievements/Trophies are obtained in Multiplayer and are fairly straightforward. Traits reset after each round, so you must reach Level 3 within this time. When you're playing with a partner, you are allowed to select his or her Star Card Hand if desired; do this 10 times. Successfully complete 10 cooling flushes with overheated blasters in Multiplayer to get Never tell me the odds! You acquire the other Achievements/Trophies by playing each mode and by winning and killing in specific ways.

ICON	NAME	DESCRIPTION	TROPHY	GAMER POINTS
	A New Hope	Play every Multiplayer game mode.	Silver	40
	In a galaxy far, far away...	Win one match in each Multiplayer game mode.	Silver	40
	Never tell me the odds!	Successfully perform Cooling Flush 10 times (Multiplayer).	Bronze	15
	I suggest a new strategy	Use a partner's Star Card Hand 10 times (Multiplayer).	Bronze	15
	Shoot first	Be the first in a round to earn a kill (Multiplayer).	Silver	40
	Great shot, kid!	Kill an opponent who is using a Jump Pack (Multiplayer).	Bronze	15
	A cunning warrior	Reach level 3 once with any Trait (Multiplayer).	Silver	40
	Don't underestimate the Force	Earn a total of 100 kills while playing as a hero (Multiplayer).	Silver	40
	Crush them with one swift stroke...	Trample 25 soldiers with an AT-ST (Multiplayer).	Bronze	15
	Don't get cocky	Defeat both the Millennium Falcon and the Slave I.	Bronze	15
	A tremor in the Force	Play once as all of the different heroes (Multiplayer).	Bronze	15
	Precision shot	Get 10 headshots with the Cycler rifle (Multiplayer)	Bronze	15

MULTIPLAYER GAME MODES

You receive the following nine awards for completing specific tasks in each of the Multiplayer game modes. Refer to the Game Modes chapter for details about how each mode works.

ICON	NAME	DESCRIPTION	TROPHY	GAMER POINTS
	That got him!	Use a TOW-cable to destroy an enemy AT-AT in Walker Assault.	Silver	40
	Hold the line!	Kill 10 enemies while attacking or defending a control point in Supremacy.	Bronze	15
	Stay on Target	Kill 10 enemies in a round of Fighter Squadron.	Bronze	15
	What's the cargo?	Kill 10 enemies carrying the cargo in Cargo.	Bronze	15
	Playing the objective	Have the most kills in a round of Blast.	Bronze	15
	The Force is strong with this one	Earn 10 kills in a round as any hero on Hero Hunt.	Bronze	15
	I've been waiting for you	Kill 10 enemies trying to claim your team's pod in Drop Zone.	Bronze	15
	"Gonk? Gonk!"	Capture three droids in a match of Droid Run.	Bronze	15
	The power of the Force	Defeat a hero while playing as any hero on Heroes Vs. Villains.	Bronze	15

MULTIPLAYER PROGRESSION

Six Achievements/Trophies are based on game progression. Leveling up your rank, completing challenges, and earning diorama figurines, credits, and accomplishments are all required to collect all these awards.

ICON	NAME	DESCRIPTION	TROPHY	GAMER POINTS
	Judge me by my size, do you?	Reach Rank 25.	Bronze	15
	When 900 years old you reach...	Reach Rank 50.	Gold	55
	Tell Jabba that I've got his money	Earn a total of 25,000 credits (Multiplayer).	Silver	40
	Distinguished	Earn 100 accomplishments.	Silver	40
	Determined	Complete 25 challenges.	Silver	40
	Collector	Earn any diorama figurine in the game.	Bronze	15

MISSION

These 15 accomplishments are all received in the Missions mode. A few require some effort to complete, but they are all straightforward. Refer to the Missions chapter of this guide for full details and tips for earning each one.

ICON	NAME	DESCRIPTION	TROPHY	GAMER POINTS
	Do...or do not. There is no try	Complete the tutorial.	Bronze	15
	New Recruit	Complete any mission.	Bronze	15
	Together we can rule the galaxy	Complete any mission with a friend.	Bronze	15
	All right, I'll give it a try	Earn a star on all training missions.	Bronze	15
	Impressive. Most impressive.	Earn a total of five stars from Battle missions.	Bronze	15
	Off to a good start	Win any Battle mission on Normal difficulty against the AI.	Bronze	15
	Survivor	Earn a total of five stars from Survival missions.	Bronze	15
	On the ball	Complete any Survival mission on Master difficulty within 25 minutes.	Bronze	15
	Ackbar's Elite	Complete any Survival mission on Master difficulty without dying.	Silver	40
	Scrap collector	Earn any collectible star.	Silver	40
	Your journey has only started	Complete all missions.	Bronze	15
	Master	Earn all mission stars on Master difficulty.	Gold	55
	Safety ain't the point of a joyride	Take no damage in the Endor Chase mission.	Bronze	15
	Best star-pilot in the galaxy	Destroy 10 TIE fighters within two minutes on the Beggar's Canyon mission.	Bronze	15

BATTLE BEYOND

Two accolades fit into the Battle Beyond aspect of the game. Often based on how one side is doing in a match, background interactions add atmosphere to a game. You'll see Ewoks fleeing from danger in the Ewok village on Endor and Y-wings attacking vulnerable AT-ATs in Walker Assault. You can earn "Not bad for a little furball" in the Forest of Endor in Survival mode. Simply hang around underneath the Ewok village long enough, and one will hit you in the head with a rock. For Walker Defender, numerous ion weapons can take down a strafing Y-wing when you're playing for the Galactic Empire in Walker Assault. Man a Vehicle Turret or an Imperial walker (or equip the Ion Torpedo Star Card), and shoot one down.

ICON	NAME	DESCRIPTION	TROPHY	GAMER POINTS
	Not bad for a little furball	Get hit in the head by a rock from an Ewok on Endor.	Bronze	15
	Walker Defender	Destroy a Y-wing in Walker Assault.	Bronze	15

PLAYSTATION 4 PLATINUM TROPHY

ICON	NAME	DESCRIPTION	TROPHY	GAMER POINTS
	Platinum (PS4 only)	Collect all other trophies.	Platinum	N/A

STAR WARS© & ™ 2015 Lucasfilm Ltd. All rights reserved. Game code and certain audio and/or visual material © 2015 Electronic Arts Inc.